U. S. Probes Postal Claim For $2,500 By Blanton

Records Reveal Attempt to Get Funds From Postmaster.

Texas Woman's Savings Involved

An attempt by Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), Texas, representing a constituent, Mrs. Ray Frost Oldham, to obtain $2,500 from Postmaster J. E. Meroney, of Ranger, Tex., in private settlement of a claim, was revealed yesterday in the records of the Postoffice Department.

In a letter to Postmaster Meroney, which the latter promptly forwarded to the Third Assistant Postmaster General in Washington, Representative Blanton wrote:

"I am not filing this matter with the Postoffice Department, but I am calling on you for a settlement of the matter so that if possible it may be arranged without the Postoffice Department having any knowledge of the situation. I realize that if the department knew of * * * this matter * * * it would remove you, and I want to save you this trouble, and also all unnecessary expense."

The claim in question involves the postal savings of the late Mrs. M. A. E. Frost, of Ranger, which were paid over at her request, and in accordance with regulations of the Postoffice Department, to her brother, C. E. Bruce, in January and February, 1932.

Moved Two Years Later.

Nearly two years later, according to Postmaster Meroney's letter to Third Assistant Postmaster General Crowley, Representative Blanton called at the postoffice in Ranger and informed the postmaster Mrs. Frost had been adjudged insane before she withdrew her savings, and that the certificates should not have been cashed for her.

Demand upon Postmaster Meroney for the $2,500 was made in a letter from Representative Blanton, on his law firm's stationery, dated October 27, 1933. In this letter, Representative Blanton said:

"If you are unable personally to settle this matter, I would suggest that you take the matter up with your bondsman, and place these papers before them, and they will probably be able to arrange a settlement with you so that you can be given time to pay them back what they are out without their complaining to the department. Please let me know right away just how soon you will be prepared to make a settlement."

Postmaster Awaits Action.

No subsequent claim for the money has been made directly to the Postoffice Department, which has inspectors in Texas investigating the affair.

It was learned on high authority that the department does not consider Representative Blanton's constituent has any just claim whatever against the Government.

Meanwhile, Postmaster Meroney, a Blanton appointee, having laid the entire matter before his superiors at Washington, and having advised his bonding company in New York

Sound Money Advocate Wins

Vermont G. O. P. Selects College Chief House Nominee.

Montpelier, Vt., Dec. 19 (AP). Charles A. Plumley, retiring president of Norwich University and champion of "sound money," was nominated by the Republicans of Vermont today as candidate for the seat in the United States House of Representatives left vacant by the appointment of Representative Ernest W. Gibson to the Senate.

Plumley's nomination resulted from the only contest in the primary, necessitated by the death several months ago of Senator Porter H. Dale and the temporary appointment of Gibson to his seat.

A special election will be held January 16.

Complete returns today gave: Charles A. Plumley, 14,948; Jeremiah M. Evarts, 13,023; Frederick W. Wakefield, jr., 1,698; Loren R. Pierce, 1,057; Mrs. Blanche B. Bryant, 855.

Plumley summed up his views on money and inflation in a statement which said:

"Any measure tending to stimulate artificial inflation must be approached with cautious consideration. I believe that the regaining of the 1926 price level is a desirable objective, providing it can be accomplished without recourse to any inflationary program which would leave monetary disaster in its wake."

Lindys Reach Home For Yule With Son

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—The Lindberghs flew home today—in time for Chrisimas with Baby Jon.

The colonel and his navigating wife dived low over the Morrow home in Englewood, N. J., saluting their son, and then dropped their red monoplane in Flushing Bay at 2:38 p. m. (Eastern standard time).

Behind them was an odyssey from the Northern Lights to the Equator; before them was Christmas with the folks.

"The only thing we want right now is for all these people to let us go home quietly," the colonel smiled as he and Anne Morrow Lindbergh climbed from their

Detroit Bank "Errors" Told To Senators

Paid Dividends Above Earnings in Hope of Depression Ending.

By Martha Dalrymple.

Evidence that group bankers of Detroit dictated the dividends to be paid by their subsidiary unit banks, even though these dividends were in excess of earnings, was laid before the Senate Banking committee yesterday.

Under the direction of Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, the Senators began their long promised investigation into the Detroit group banking system, which crashed last spring, leading to the national bank holiday of the first few days of President Roosevelt's administration.

Robert O. Lord, former president of the Guardian Detroit Union Group, Inc., under severe questioning by Pecora, admitted members of the group board usually gave "suggestions" to the boards of unit banks as to what dividends they should declare.

Pecora brought out that the group corporation was the majority stock holder of all these sibsidiaries.

Lord also revealed that $27,000,000 was thrown into the gigantic hold-

Hopkins Tells Talmadge He's 'Just Yapping'

Head of CWA Offers to Withdraw Georgia's Rural Funds.

Attacks by Gov. Talmadge of Georgia, on wages paid by the Civil Works Administration in his State, yesterday drew a snappy retort from Harry L. Hopkins, Federal relief administrator, and the offer to withdraw the program from Georgia districts.

Talmadge asserted that if the CWA program continues, Georgia farmers will be unable to hire workers on their farms in the spring. He charged that CWA wages were so attractive no one would work for farmers.

"All that guy wants is headlines," Hopkins declared, informed of the governor's criticism. Then he wired the chairman of civil works in Georgia, offering to withdraw the program from rural areas.

"He doesn't contribute a dime," the outspoken administrator continued about Talmadge, "but he's always yapping. Some people just can't stand to see others making a living wage."

Asked if he could be quoted on the remarks, Hopkins snapped, "Yes, and that goes double."

At the same time Hopkins moved

Opera Singer's Killer Rescued As Coast Mob Cries 'Lynch Him'

San Francisco, Calif., Dec. 19 (AP). Lynch threats followed the fatal shooting today of Miss Emilia De Prato, 26-year-old opera singer, causing officers to remove Umberto Guisti to the county jail at Redwood City. They said he confessed.

Miss De Prato, who was runner-up in a Nation-wide voice contest in 1927, was shot to death on the front steps of her home in South San Francisco.

Guisti, a suitor, walked to police headquarters and surrendered a few minutes later.

"I couldn't decide whether to kill myself or let the law do it," police said he announced.

Louis Belloni, chief of police at South San Francisco, declared he was "apprehensive" of what might occur had the man been kept in the jail there, in view of the recent lynching in San Jose.

The shooting, police said, followed a heated quarrel in the De Prata home, and occurred after the girl started to flee from the house, screaming, with Guisti in pursuit. A neighbor, Mrs. Severini Baldacchi, reported she heard screams, saw Guisti run from the house, and heard the shots.

After questioning by police during which, they said, he signed a confession he had killed the girl because she had jilted him and he feared he had "lost her" because of a proposed trip next week to New York to sing in opera roles, he was hurried from the jail into a waiting car by the sheriff and other officers.

A crowd of excited residents, many from the Italian quarter, shouted menacingly as the man came out the door. Cries of "lynch him!" and "let's get him!" were heard but the crowd appeared to be without leaders. The only at-

Doran Bares Huge Profits In Whiskies

Retailers Make as High as 70 Per Cent, Cost Lists Reveal.

Gin, Costing $12.30 Per Case, Brings $24 Over Counter.

By Frank Getty.

Huge profits exacted by retail liquor dealers were disclosed yesterday, when Dr. J. M. Doran, supervisor of the distilled spirits code authority, submitted to the Federal Alcohol Control Administration wholesale price lists for the country's leading distilleries.

The price lists show that retailers, owing to the current insistent demand, are making as high as 70 per cent profit on blended whiskies, and 100 per cent on gin.

As retail prices in different communities, as well as wholesale quantity allowances and freight charges, vary in accordance with State regulations and other considerations, a complete comparison of wholesale prices with what the consumer has to pay is impracticable.

$24.30 Profit on Case.

Washingtonians who purchase Dixie Belle gin in Montgomery County, however, will be interested to know that the list price to the retailer this week is $9 per case, f. o. b. Philadelphia. The Maryland tax is $1.10 per gallon. The consumer pays $2.50 a quart. The retailer's profit, therefore, is approximately 100 per cent on a case, which costs him only $12.30 after he has paid the tax.

Washingtonians who purchase Red Top blended rye in Prince Georges County may be surprised to learn that the whisky for which they are being charged $54 per case actually cost, in Baltimore, only $31.20 after the State tax had been added, a net profit of approximately 70 per cent.

Comparisons of this nature extend in the list of all available distilled spirits. Old Oscar Pepper, a popular blended rye, nets the retailer a profit of 75 per cent. Spring Garden, blended by the Penn-Maryland Co., and sold f.o.b. Baltimore, costs the Montgomery County dealer $35.70 per case, and he sells it at the rate of $60 a case. And distillers, to begin with, are charging double their prewar prices.

Retained for Blending.

Distilleries did not submit price lists on straight old whisky yesterday, as Dr. Doran explained they desired to conserve this for blending purposes.

Further adjustments in the lists are to be made prior to formal posting under the code, but the consumer will arrive at an idea of who is responsible for current high prices by comparing what he

Hard Liquor Hopes Dashed in Maine

House Ends Bill, Decrees Dry New Years.

Augusta, Me., Dec. 19 (AP).—Prospects that Maine would have legal liquor for the New Year faded suddenly tonight as the House of Representatives refused to enact an emergency bill to make druggists dispensers for "medicinal and mechanical purposes and the arts."

The proposal commanded a majority support, but fell 10 votes short of the two-thirds vote required for passage as an emergency measure.

Prohibitionists cheered as the totals were announced.

Code Price Fixing Declared Invalid

Unconstitutional, Asserts Judge Dismissing Case.

Salt Lake City, Dec. 19 (AP).—Fixing of minimum prices in the State recovery code for barbers was declared unconstitutional today by City Judge C. F. Dalby.

He upheld demurrers filed in behalf of J. C. Duncan and Pete Zaharias, Salt Lake barbers, and dismissed the charge of price-cutting filed against them.

Price-fixing as contemplated in the barbers' code he held to be "contrary to sound public policy" and "a monopolistic practice, and therefore contrary to the spirit and express terms of the Constitution and laws of the State and the recovery act itself."

French Spy Syndicate Broken by 18 Arrests

Paris, Dec. 19 (AP).—A widespread spy syndicate, the newspaper Le Petit Parisien said today, was broken up by the arrest of 18 men and women in the last 48 hours.

The exact charges were kept secret, but the newspaper said the arrests were made in Paris and French provinces, and involved a number of French persons.

Another Hope Blasted.

RFC and Public Works Would Use Nearly Half of Sum.

Treasury, Labor Estimates Lower

Budget and Monetary Experts Confer at White House.

Following estimates that Congress would be asked to appropriate more than $6,000,000,000 when it meets next month, a conference on the Nation's monetary and budget situation was held at the White House last night attended by President Roosevelt and fiscal experts.

At the conclusion of the session in the study of Mr. Roosevelt it was insisted by Stephen T. Early, speaking in behalf of the President, that it was merely a continuation of recent discussions.

It was reiterated furthermore, that the meeting did not contemplate any change in the President's policy. And that it was merely for the purpose of reviewing the entire financial picture.

Those who attended the conference were Acting Secretary of the Treasurer Morgenthau, Gov. Eugene Black of the Federal Reserve System, Prof. George Warren, the Administration's gold expert, and Earl Baillie, adviser to Morgenthau.

Final Major Estimate.

Meantime, estimates of major amounts to be requested have virtually been completed. These include $1,000,000,000 for Reconstruction Finance Corporation, $1,975,000,000 for Public Works Administration, $350,000,000 for Civil Works Administration and $250,000,000 for the Relief Administration.

Added to these principal recovery appropriations, totaling $3,475,000,000, is the estimate of $2,600,000,000, which Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, says will be needed to meet ordinary expenses. This brings the total to $6,075,000,000.

This figure, according to the Associated Press, is expected to be increased slightly by appropriations for running expenses of NRA and such other agencies as the Tennessee Valley Authority, the Farm Credit Administration and the Home Loan Bank Board. These requirements are expected to be comparatively small.

The figure for ordinary running expenses covers appropriations for all ordinary departments of the Government, including the Treasury and the Department of Labor, which Acting Secretary Morgenthau and Secretary Perkins estimate will cost less next year than this year.

Morgenthau said, after appearing before a congressional committee to discuss the subject, that the Treasury would need substantially less than the $244,383,219 appropriated for it this year. Miss Perkins said the Labor Department had recommended an appropriation $133,000 less than the $12,677,000 of the current year.

Billion More for R.F.C.

The estimate of total expenditures was made possible with the announcement of Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, that the Corporation would require $1,000,000,000. This figure filled in a gap in making up the total estimate.

Jones summarized the R. F. C.'s needs after a discussion with Morgenthau, out of which came the announcement that the price of domestic gold was continued unchanged from Monday at $34.06 an ounce. Meanwhile, gold was selling in London for $32.67 at an exchange rate of $5.15⅛ to the pound sterling. Monday's domestic quotation was an advance of 5 cents over Saturday, the first increase in price since December 1.

Along with consideration of appropriations, Congress must consider the question of ways and means of raising the money.

Tax Controversies Pending.

President Roosevelt has indicated his desire to keep liquor taxes sufficiently low to permit legal liquor dealers to compete with bootleggers. At the same time Congressional support of a greatly increased income tax in the upper brackets is growing.

The movement for currency inflation has not been so clamorous recently, although it still is expected to be a major subject of controversy in Congress.

Another battle is expected to center around the NRA and other emergency programs. Several Progressive Republicans have started opposition against these programs and they will be joined by regular Republicans.

Death of Lama Brings Threat of War to Tibet

London, Dec. 19 (AP).—The Daily Mail's Kalimpong correspondent in Bengal said tonight he was informed from a usually reliable source that the Dalai Lama of Tibet was poisoned.

Lhasa, Tibet, Dec. 19 (AP).—The death of the Dalai Lama, the supreme religious ruler of Tibet who was regarded throughout all Buddhist Asia as the reincarnation of Buddha himself, was announced today.

He died Sunday at the age of 60, but wise men in this mysterious land believe a Lama does not cease to exist—he merely discards the "mortal envelope" and his spirit reappears in the person of an infant.

The grand priest had supreme civil and religious power in the country.

Britain May Be Drawn Into Conflict Over Cult's Rights.

Peiping, Dec. 19 (U.P.).—A religious war on the plateaus of Tibet which may involve Great Britain was feared tonight, following the death Sunday of the Dalai Lama, temporal leader of the 3,000,000 Nomads inhabiting the high plains of the Asian Hinterland.

His death was regarded of utmost significance to China and Tibet because the Dalai Lama's troops at present are invading China's western frontiers.

His life-long rival for control of Tibet, the Panchan Lama, was reported hurrying to Peiping from Mongolia, where he has lived in monasteries in recent years.

The Dalai Lama has opposed China since establishment of the republic on the overthrow of the Manchu dynasty in 1911. His temple in Peiping suffered from lack of the old imperial subsidy, and in

Long's Ticket Is Challenged By Regulars

Old Party Repudiates Senator's Choice for Attorney.

New Orleans, Dec. 19 (U.P.).—Senator Huey P. Long reached a crisis tonight in the battle to hold his powerful political regime intact.

The Old Regular Democratic party of New Orleans met in caucus and refused to indorse Long's candidate for district attorney in next month's city election.

The regulars have long controlled the vote in New Orleans, which holds almost one-third of Louisiana's voting strength. Long has demanded that Charles A. Byrne, State senator, be indorsed as the candidate against District Attorney Eugene Stanley.

Stanley, an Anti-Long leader, was responsible for indictment of 513 New Orleans election commissioners of the Long faction, on charges of falsifying returns from last November's general election. Three of the commissioners were sentenced today to serve seven months in prison.

Resignations Demanded.

Monroe, La., Dec. 19 (AP).—Without a dissenting voice, a mass meeting of citizens of the Fifth Congressional District here tonight demanded the resignations of United States Sentors Huey P. Long and John H. Overton, together with four of the highest State officials and called for the "immediate restoration of the government of the State to the people from whom it should derive its power."

300 Reported Killed In Indian Hurricane

Bombay, Dec. 19 (AP).—The death of 300 persons in a hurricane in the Chidambaram district over the week-end was reported in unconfirmed dispatches today.

The report said several hundred persons had been made homeless by the wind and that the damage would amount to £75,000 over a 100-mile stretch between Pondicherry and Negapatam.

Labor Board Granted Full Legal Power

Roosevelt Order Defines Duties; Action Made Retroactive.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt yesterday clothed the National Labor Board with the full legal power it had lacked since its existence was announced by the Chief Executive in a public statement more than four months ago.

Mr. Roosevelt issued an executive order, officially defining the duties of the board, the first order to fix the organization's standing in the Governmental set-up.

The order was retroactive, saying that "all action heretofore taken by this board in discharge of its functions is hereby approved and ratified."

Is Headed by Wagner.

The board, headed by Senator Wagner, of New York, has proposed to take court action on the election of union officials at the Weirton Steel Co. and the E. G. Budd Manufacturing Co.

The board came into existence August 5 when President Roosevelt at Hyde Park issued for newspapers and the public a statement saying that industrial leaders and labor had proposed the "creation of a distinguished tribunal to pass promptly on any case of hardship or dispute that may arise from interpretation or application of the President's reemployment agreement."

Mr. Roosevelt said of the proposal: "I accept it and hereby appoint the men it proposes, whose names will carry their own commendation to the country."

The seven members were given offices in the National Recovery Administration in the Commerce Building and since then have functioned in mediating several hundred labor disputes.

The battles the board found itself in, however, were said to have brought to Senator Wagner a doubt that his organization possessed sufficient legal standing.

Mr. Roosevelt's executive order becomes law by virtue of the power given him under the National recovery act.

Two Nations Hail 'Cease Firing' As 17-Month Chaco War Halts

Montevideo, Dec. 19 (AP).—A respite from war came tonight to the Gran Chaco and the Americas.

Along a 300-mile front in the subequatorial wilderness, over which Bolivia and Paraguay have been in dispute for 50 years, firing from the thatched trenches was ordered to stop at midnight.

At these outposts in the last 17 months 150,000 Paraguayan and Bolivian soldiers have battled; 30,000 have died; 20,000 have been taken prisoner and unnumbered thousands have been casualties of bullets, dysentery, scurvy and typhus.

As the truce of at least 11 days was being arranged by the League of Nations commission named to effect peace, expressions of the deepest joy were voiced on all sides.

In high places, too, there was heartfelt rejoicing that finally the two nations would cease the dispute over the border area, a wilderness of 300,000 square miles of jungle, plains, and swamps which Paraguay has claimed is a part of her territory and which Bolivia has wanted because it would give her a river outlet to the sea.

From La Paz the president of the League Chaco Commission, Julio Alvarez del Vayo; the secretary, Juan Antonio Buero, and the French member, Gen. Freydenberg, hastened to Montevideo to assume charge of the peace negotiations.

On their arrival Saturday they will meet Castro Rojas, former Bolivian foreign minister, and the representative of Paraguay, Justo Pastor Benitez; President Terra, and the chancellors attending the Pan-American conference here.

Bolivia and Paraguay, through their representatives, agreed with the Pan-American nations that the major objective of the peace must be a permanent termination of the territorial war.

Reduction Sought In Electric Rates

$1,000,000 to Be Given by PWA to Finance Corporation.

President Roosevelt expanded his recovery program in three directions yesterday.

He announced formation of the Electric Home and Farm Authority, capitalized at $1,000,000, to advance credit to farmers in the Tennessee Valley to buy electrical equipment and appliances. The authority will be the first Government organization to advance credit directly to consumers.

Past actions of National Labor Board were approved by Presidential order and the board was clothed with full legal standing in disputes with recalcitrant labor organizations and employers.

The National Emergency Council was extended to take over the membership and functions of the Special Industrial Recovery Board. Membership of the council was extended to include the Attorney General, the Director of the Budget and the chairman of the Federal Trade Commission. January 15 was set as the date when the council will take over the functions of about 35 relief agencies.

By Franklyn Waltman, jr.

One of the most unusual and, if it is carried out, far-reaching experiments of the "new deal" was started yesterday when President Roosevelt set up the Electric Home & Farm Authority, Inc., to advance credit to farmers of the Tennessee Valley for purchase of electrical equipment and appliances.

The purpose of the Electric Home and Farm Authority, a mortgage corporation, is to assist consumers in purchasing standard electric equipment at "very low prices" and to bring about reductions in electric rates so as to increase the use of electrical power and stimulate industries engaged in manufacturing electrical appliances.

Government-Owned Firm.

This corporation will be Government-owned and controlled, operating on a capital of $1,000,000, which will be supplied from the Public Works Administration $3,300,000,000 fund. It will be under

Unified Relief Setup Speeded By President

Emergency Group to Take Over Special Board; Big Saving Seen.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

As two more steps to unify the New Deal, President Roosevelt yesterday extended the new National Emergency Council to take over the membership and functions of the Special Industrial Recovery Board and gave it another month to complete organization of a Nation-wide recovery set-up.

With the President presiding over its first meeting at the White House, the council immediately began plans to establish county or city councils in every State to take the place of the 35 or more local agencies that have grown up since last March 4.

Two executive orders, issued during the morning, enlarged membership of the council and deferred until January 16 the abolition of the multitudinous agencies. The first provided that the council "assume responsibilities and carry out the duties of the recovery board," while the second allowed more time to replace the volunteer field agencies.

Directors Here in January.

Following the meeting, Frank C. Walker, acting executive secretary announced selection of State directors was under consideration. They will be called to Washington by the middle of January for explanation of their functions.

Mr. Walker stressed as the primary duty of the councils the dissemination of information by which citizens can obtain relief from any one of a dozen Government agencies. They will also function to protect the consumer's interest against unreasonable prices and in settlement of disputes under the NRA and AAA.

New members named to the council were Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, Director of the Budget Lewis Douglas and Charles H. March, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission. Other members of the council are Cabinet members, administrators of new relief agencies, and a representative of the NRA Consumer's Advisory Board, who will be Mrs. Mary H. Rumsey.

"The National Emergency Council is proceeding with a preliminary organization," a White House statement said. "It is seeking an outstanding citizen in each State as State director. It is studying the organization of local councils and is drafting a system of linking these councils together and with Washington.

"Until this survey is completed it will be necessary to continue the existing local committees.

Large Savings Seen.

"From preliminary estimates of the cost it seems very likely that operation under the council will save a very large sum of money. The use of a single field organization will wipe out needless and costly duplication, and will make for a more effective administration.

"The council also is preparing an easily understood guide for the use of the recovery and relief agencies."

When established the administration will be a huge system extending into all 3,100 counties of the Nation. State directors probably will be paid, Mr. Walker said, but members of the local councils are to serve voluntarily.

Mr. Walker explained steps that have been taken so far, Mr. Roosevelt gave his views, and then all council members discussed coordination of their field boards at the meeting. So extended have the recovery agencies grown that a chart is being prepared to set forth the number and relationship of the bodies.

Plan Information Bureau.

Mr. Walker added that establishment of a central information bureau in Washington for the first time will provide a means by which citizens can find what the Government can do for them.

"That should be most helpful for anyone coming to Washington on business," he said.

Mr. Walker saw a possibility some of the existing agencies would be supplanted before the specified date. He also said various of the NRA and A. A. A. which have served effectively may be made the framework for the new councils.

Questioned concerning the recent announcement that consumer councils would be set up in counties, Mr. Walker said the Emergency Councils will carry out that function also. This means consumers will have representation on the councils as one of numerous interests.

Last Tribute Today For Mrs. Walker

Services to Be Held at Cottage City, Md.

Funeral services for Mrs. Caroline Virginia Walker, 87, who died Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Carl Russ, 22 Hamilton street, Cottage City, Md., will be held there at 2 p. m. today. The Rev. Walter P. Plumley, jr., rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Mount Rainier, will officiate. Interment will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mrs. Walker lived nearly all of her life in Norfolk, Va., having come to her daughter's home last October. Her husband died nearly 50 years ago.

Besides Mrs. Russ, she leaves another daughter, Miss Lillie P. Walker, of Norfolk, Va., and two sons, Frank W. W. Walker, also of Norfolk, and John L. Walker, of this city.

Conference on Labor Laws Set for January

A conference to discuss labor legislation will be conducted in Washington in January, Secretary of Labor Perkins said yesterday. Miss Perkins did not divulge details of the proposed meeting, but said representatives of every State would be invited. It was indicated they would draw up a program of desirable legislation.

Women Insist U. S. Sign Pact At Montevideo

Deluge Hull With Demand for Treaty of Equality in Nationality.

By Kendall Foss.

Feminine pressure upon the Administration to sign the equality of nationality treaty in Montevideo attained unexpected proportions throughout the country yesterday.

The State Department, apparently surprised at the fury of the storm, thought better of its earlier intention to issue a clarifying statement and remained mum. Late in the afternoon Acting Secretary Phillips conferred with the President at length, but no word was vouchsafed following the talk.

It is believed the two weighed the reactions to the United States' announced intention not to sign. But whether they decided to instruct Secretary Hull to affix his name afer all, or concluded there was no occasion to revise the official attitude, remains a close secret.

Briefly, officials decline to see a difference between the American attitude in Montevideo, so bitterly attacked by numerous women's organizations, and the stand taken at The Hague in 1930, which was heartily approved by the same groups.

Many Inequalities Now.

At The Hague, this Government declined to adhere to a proposed world codification on international law because the draft contained unequal provisions as between men and women in respect to nationality laws. Most countries expect women to assume the nationality of their husbands, and children to have the nationality of the father. Particularly in time of war this principle works numerous hardships, and even in peace time it constitutes an important piece of sex inequality.

In Montevideo last week the member nations of the Pan-American Conference adopted a short resolution declaring for equality. The American delegation abstained from voting. The resolution is to be signed today and 16 of the 20 nations present have declared their intention to sign. Nicaragua, Guatemala, Honduras, and the United States have not made their positions known.

The text of the resolution, which is to be treated as an international pact with all invited to adhere, is as follows:

"The contracting States agree that from the going into effect of this convention there shall be no distinctions based on sex in their law and practice relating to nationality."

Internal Laws Biased.

American unwillingness to adhere is based on the fact that our laws are not yet entirely free from sex discriminations. Signature would give the appearance of committing Congress in advance to steps not taken, though admittedly expected confidently in the next session. Among the shower of cables dispatched to Secretary Hull in Montevideo during the past few days are many from Congressional leaders of both Houses urging signature and assuring him ratification will be easy.

Another ground for official hesitation is that a Cabinet committee was appointed last April to revise and coordinate American laws on nationality and naturalization, and this committee has not yet reported. The Secretaries of State and Labor and the Attorney General compose the committee. The subject is more than complicated, and has been ever since the Cable act of 1922 threw the United States out of line with the practices of other countries in matters of nationality.

The Cable act permits American women to retain their citizenship after marrying foreigners and withholds citizenship from foreign women marrying Americans until they have been naturalized. The upshot is a large number of women with no nationality and an almost equally large group enjoying dual citizenship.

The outcry against what is termed "the inexplicable attitude of the American delegation at the Pan-American conference" derives primarily from the fact that this country has long taken the lead in seeking equal rights for women. Disappointment is registered over what appears to twelve of the leading women's organizations to be a failure to maintain this leadership. Not only has the United States relinquished the lead, they feel, but it does not even seem to intend to follow the leadership taken over by others.

The spearhead of the opposition to the Administration is the National Woman's Party through its chairwoman, Miss Alice Paul, and its Montevideo representative, Miss Doris Stevens. Fifteen other organizations of women are behind this group in demanding adherence to the equality of nationality treaty. The cable companies have been kept busy transmitting protests to Secretary Hull from organized women and from many independent believers in equality.

Lone feminine support for the Administration is the League of Women Voters which, while strongly in favor of the principle of sex equality in matters of nationality, does not believe a treaty is the way to gain this end. The league is understood to fear that a blanket statement may harm their efforts to obtain domestic protective legislation for women in industry and business.

Tibetan Lama Dies; Ruler of Buddhists

tal for centuries. It is a "forbidden city" and still remains one of the most mysterious and remote cities on the globe.

The late Lama had an unusually adventurous career. He was trained in a remote monastery. He entered Lhasa as soon as he attained his majority and took the sovereignty of Tibet.

When, in 1904, a British mission, which eventually opened the gates of the forbidden city to foreigners, appeared, the Dalai Lama fled, and for years was a wanderer in Mongolia.

He returned to his capital in 1909, but only for a few weeks. Then he fled again, this time from the Chinese, and took refuge in India.

The Tibetans' uprising in 1912 drove out the Chinese, and the Lama made a triumphant reentry.

Spiritually he was the head of the Buddhist priesthood, which numbers at least 500,000.

An indication of his great civil power was given a few months ago when three Britons, the Marquis of Clydesdale, Col. L. V. Stewart Blacker and Flight Lieut. D. M. McIntyre, had to apply to him for permission to make their daring flight over Mount Everest.

The fliers gave the Supreme Lama the assurance they would rise high above the "home of the gods" atop the mountain so as not to disturb the "dwellers" there.

The late Dalai Lama defied traditions two years ago and ordered an automobile.

The higher Lamas choose the supreme Lama. In so doing they follow the doctrine of reincarnation. Several boys are chosen as "candidates" by omens. One of them is finally chosen, according to the characteristics he shows.

Britain Involved In Threat of War

late years has fallen into decay.

China consistently sponsored the Panchen Lama, who now is regarded as likely to renew his struggle for control of Tibet, with Nanking's support.

Great Britain, it was feared, would be thrown into this struggle, due to the British desire to maintain Tibet as a buffer state between India and Soviet Russia. Tibet, nominally a part of China, is under British control.

The Dalai Lama forced the Panchen Lama, known as "The Living Buddha" by his followers, to flee from his seat at Tashilumpo, eight days' caravan journey west from the Potala Palace overlooking the erstwhile "Forbidden City" of Lhasa.

The Panchen Lama fled in 1924, and in the intervening years has wandered over Asia, seeking support of his struggle to oust the Dalai Lama.

Despite the fact that for centuries the Panchen Lama had been accorded spiritual supremacy in the Lama cult as the "Living Buddha," while the Dalai Lama was his vicar on earth and "Pope," it was the latter who forced the former to flee from Tibet.

Warm Springs Holly Sent to White House

Warm Springs, Ga., Dec. 19 (AP). There'll be a bit of Warm Springs in the White House this Christmas.

The Woman's Club of Warm Springs sent a big box to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt today containing natural Christmas decorations which grow in this section. The box, marked for the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, contains quantities of mistletoe, holly, ivy and other kinds of evergreen that abound in this locality.

Detroit Bank 'Mistakes' Told To Senators

ing corporation by stockholders, including $12,000,000 by Edsel Ford, in a desperate attempt to forestall the crash.

The former bank president admitted the organization of the holding company at the "peak of prosperity" had been a mistake.

There were several errors, he said; all "mistakes in judgment."

Pecora read into the record a series of letters that passed between Lord and the directors of unit banks in which dividends were discussed.

After Lord had suggested a 5 per cent quarterly dividend, John N. Stalker, president of the Union Guardian Trust Co., replied that his board of directors felt it would be unwise at the time, since the company was not earning that much.

Correspondence between Lord and Henry H. Sanger, president of the National Bank of Commerce of Detroit, revealed that the bank directors were willing to declare the "suggested" extra one per cent dividend, if failure to do so would "upset your plans to declare the usual dividend on the group stock."

After reading several letters written by Lord, Pecora pointed out the similarity of terms in which it was suggested that each bank declare a certain dividend.

"Is this an example of the free and independent judgment which you say the individual boards used?" asked Pecora, referring to the National Bank of Commerce dividend.

"Yes," replied the witness. "Knowing that board I can say whatever they decided to do was of their own free will."

Among the "mistakes in judgment," Lord listed:

Holding the stock of joint stock land banks.

Carrying such a large amount of mortgages as the Guardian group held. "Mortgages, said Lord, were not properly the field for commercial banks."

Failure to liquidate securites immediately after the first signs of depression in 1929. Lord explained that he and his associates felt that recovery was around the corner.

At the peak of its financial success, the Guardian group had resources of more than $500,000,000 and an aggregate of deposits from all affiliates of $420,000,000, Lord said.

Of the deposits, only $90,000,000 has not been made available to depositors, said Lord, and even this sum was rapidly being liquidated through Reconstruction Finance Corporation assistance.

In a prepared statement, with which he began his testimony, Lord followed the lead for bankers set by Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of Chase National Bank, who made a long list of recommendations for the senators.

Pecora brought out that directors of affiliate banks signed agreements with the Guardian group by which they exchanged their bank stock for group stock when they retired.

Lord will resume the stand today and will probably be followed by James L. Walsh, former vice president of the Guardian group. A total of 15 witnesses have been subpenaed in connection with the Guardian group, and an equal number is expected to testify in the investigation of the Detroit bankers' group.

Coed's Escort Kills Annoyer

Youth Asks Full Inquiry of Farmer's Shooting on Dark Highway.

Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 19 (AP).—A young law student, who killed a farmer while a pretty coed looked on in terror, requested a complete inquiry tonight with grand jury exoneration.

The youth, Britton D. Young, 21, junior in Western Reserve University Law School, was defended in his shooting of Carl Metling, 52-year-old truck farmer, by the girl he said he protected—Ruth K. Beiter, 21.

Miss Beiter, a junior in Flora Stone Mather College, related how she and Young drove to a darkened road in suburban Pepper Pike Village last night and parked.

"Suddenly the door of the sedan was opened on my side and a flashlight was played on us," she told James P. Hart, assistant county prosecutor.

"A gruff voice demanded, 'What are you doing here?' and repeated the question three times. I said we weren't doing anything and Britton said the same thing.

"The man grabbed me by the ankle. Then Britton said, 'Get away—get away or I'll shoot.' The man didn't get away, but kept tugging at me. So Britton shot."

Young was charged with manslaughter this afternoon by Pepper Pike police in the presence of his father, Attorney Don Young, of Norwalk; his uncle, Representative at Large Stephen M. Young, and the girl's father, Dr. J. R. Beiter, of Canton.

Dr. Joseph C. Tappan, Former Resident, Dies

Dr. Joseph Clarence Tappan, for many years a resident of Washington, died yesterday in New Hampshire, where for the past 20 years he had practiced medicine, it was learned last night.

Dr. Tappan was born here, and was a graduate of Columbia College, now George Washington University. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Edith Tappan, two sons, Thomas and Philip Tappan, and a daughter, Mrs. Charlotte E. O'Connor.

House Veteran Dies.

REP. JAMES S. PARKER (Republican), New York, died at his home here yesterday. A veteran of more than 20 years in the National Assembly, Representative Parker suffered a paralytic stroke last Wednesday. He was 66.

F. A. Gunther, Expert on D. C. Taxation, Dies

Funeral Friday for Oldest Member of Board of Assessors.

Frank A. Gunther, 64, authority on District taxation, and for 17 years a member of the board of tax assessors, died at his home, 3204 Twenty-second street northeast, yesterday after a long illness.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning at the Keller Memorial Lutheran Church, Ninth and Maryland avenue northeast. Interment will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

District officials last night expressed regret at the death of Mr. Gunther, the oldest official of the tax assessor's office in point of service.

Born in Saxony, Germany, Mr. Gunther came to this country at the age of 11. Educated in the schools of Colby, Wis., he later graduated from the College of Pharmacy in that city.

Mr. Gunther's service with the tax assessor's office dated from his coming to this city. He was a past master of Acacia Lodge, F. A. A. M., was a member of St. John's Mite Association, member of Keller Memorial Lutheran Church, and a member of the Board of Trade.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Ida J. Gunther, he is survived by three sons, Frank A., jr., Paul E. and Lawrence, all of this city.

Fr. Cavanagh Mass Today

Body of Capital Priest to Lie in View Tomorrow.

The body of the Rev. Francis X. Cavanagh, fatally injured in an automobile accident Sunday night, will lie in view until this afternoon at the Church of the Assumption, 3407 Nichols avenue southeast, of which he was pastor.

Bishop John M. McNamara will preside at a requiem mass at the Church of the Assumption at 9 a. m. today. Various organizations within the parish will attend, as will groups from St. Ignatius Church, Oxon Hill, Md., of which Father Cavanagh also was pastor.

This afternoon the body will be removed to St. Joseph's Church, Second and C streets northeast, where it will lie in view until 10:30 a. m. tomorrow, when a solemn requiem service will be held, presided over by Archbishop Michael J. Curley, of Baltimore. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

A coroner's jury was sworn in, but no date for an inquest was set. George Allison, 19, colored, driver of one of the cars in the fatal accident, was still in a serious condition at Gallinger Hospital.

The Rev. George T. Bowling, assistant pastor of the Church of the Assumption, a passenger in the machine with Father Cavanagh, was reported improving at Casualty Hospital.

Mother to See Girl, 17, She Gave Up at Birth

Denver, Dec. 19 (AP).—Christmas will bring a reunion of a mother with a daughter she was forced to give up shortly after birth 17 years ago.

Jane Buck, 17-year-old high school senior, is going to Oakland, Calif., to be with the mother, Mrs. Anna Thompson, as a result of an advertisement the girl placed in a newspaper. It was sent to the mother by her sister who happened to see it.

Bandits Hold Up 4, Flee With $3,000

Des Moines, Iowa, Dec. 19 (AP). Four armed bandits held up the credit manager and three clerks in the Sears, Roebuck store early tonight and escaped with $3,000 of the day's receipts.

The men walked through the main floor of the store, crowded with Christmas shoppers, and up a stairway to the business office on a balcony.

They overlooked a $4,000 pay roll in a shoe box beneath the counter.

Paris Refuses Revised Hitler Arms Program

Sir John Simon Will Seek to Moderate French Demands.

Paris, Dec. 19 (AP).—Chancelor Hitler, of Germany, sent a definite rearmament program to the French government today, but the revised demands failed to change the Franco-German deadlock.

An agreement is impossible, it was said in authoritative quarters, unless Hitler "climbs down" in his desires.

Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, was expected during a visit here Thursday to try to moderate the French stand and, in conversations with the French foreign minister, Joseph Paul-Boncour, and possibly Premier Camille Chautemps, to close the breach by assuring that Hitler will make concessions if the French are not too exacting.

Stands for Supervision.

M. Paul-Boncour, it was said, will reply that he is willing to listen to a lessened program which he can submit to the Council of National Defense, and the cabinet and French allies, but will be unwavering in his determination that Hitler must agree to a plan of supervision.

The revised German program, it was reliably reported, called for an army of 300,000 armed men and equality of war materials. Previously, it was indicated that France might not object to this number if Nazi Storm Troopers, regarded here as armed soldiers, but in Germany as party men, were included.

Sir John, it was understood, will suggest that the German chancellor accept an army of 250,000 men, an arms control scheme, and some moves toward "moral" disarmament.

Skeptical of Success.

France and her allies—Poland, Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia—it was said, doubt Germany will accept a control plan of any sort.

When Germany withdrew from the World Disarmament Conference and the League of Nations in October, a proposal for a four or five year period, during which arms would be supervised preliminary to disarming, was one of the points at issue. Subsequently diplomatic exchanges have been going [illegible] and in other European capitals to bring Germany back when the arms parley resumes, perhaps in January. Sir John's visit here this week and later in Rome will be a furtherance of these conversations.

It was said that Hitler's communication today offered to allay French fears with a 10-year non-aggression pact.

The demands were made in a secret report which the councillor of the French embassy in Berlin brought to Paris and presented to M. Paul-Boncour.

Georgia Governor Starts CWA Row

to run down complaints that CWA wages were causing men to desert regular jobs in Toledo, Ohio, to go to work on relief projects. He wired the Ohio CWA administrator to investigate the complaints and ask complaining firms to furnish names of employes who had quit.

Hopkins sent the following message to Ronald Ransom, chairman of civil works, at Atlanta:

"Governor quoted today stating C. W. A. is endangering farm labor. As I advised we are planning to discontinue civil works at beginning of planting season in Georgia. I am prepared to withdraw works immediately from all rural sections of Georgia. Our rules specifically prohibited employment on civil works of any employed workers. Please advise me whether persons on civil works can get other employment. If so, works should be stopped immediately. Senators Russell and George urging extension of quota. Can not understand conflicting statements."

Talmadge asserted that if C. W. A. wages continued, farmers, small sawmills and private business in his State would be "up against it" in the spring. C. W. A. plans announced several days ago, however, made it plain that the program will be tapered off as farm work opens.

Reports that workers were quitting regular jobs have increased persistently the last few days. Yesterday Hopkins said any person found on a C. W. A. list who had left a regular job would be fired.

Talmadge Is Silent.

Atlanta, Dec. 19 (AP).—Gov. Talmadge said he had "no comment" today when informed Harry Hopkins, Civil Works administrator, had said "all that guy (Talmadge) is after is headlines."

The Greeks (Don't) Have a Word.

Athens, Dec. 19 (AP).—Communication lines were seriously disrupted today when postal, telegraph and telephone clerks went on strike.

Senate Report On Louisiana To Score Long

Connally's Investigators to Charge "Intolerable" Election System.

A report to the Senate on "intolerable" and "machine-ridden" political conditions in Louisiana will be prepared soon by the special campaign funds investigating committee which has just concluded hearings on the Overton election case, Senator Connally (Democrat), Texas, announced yesterday.

Simultaneously, Mrs. Hilda Phelps Hammond, chairman of the Woman's committee of Louisiana, issued a statement claiming Senator Overton's election was accomplished "by fraud and corruption."

Testimony Voluminous.

Senator Connally headed the committee which took 3,500 pages of testimony from 223 witnesses during a three-week investigation in New Orleans of charges against Senator Overton, an ally of Senator Huey P. Long.

"My personal opinion is that the evidence disclosed a vicious system of employing dummy candidates as a device to secure control of election machinery," said Senator Connally. He added, however, his committee could do nothing but condemn such practices, since no formal contest against Senator Overton had been filed.

The committee, which has run out of funds, will meet in a day or two to add to the previous record the evidence recently received at New Orleans, and possibly to hear another witness or two, if the latter come here at their own expense.

Dummy Device Scored.

Charges contained in Mrs. Hammond's statement included:

"Senator Overton's election was accomplished by use of fraud, corruption and intimidation. At the polls, the fraud was effected through the dummy candidate device—a fraudulent device which enabled the Long machine to pack the polls with commissioners favorable to Overton, and to guarantee his election, through their use, to a mathematical certainty.

"Senator Overton was bound to be aware of this practice and of its public condemnation, but did not repudiate the dummy candidate device."

The women's committee demanded that the Senate act to unseat Senator Overton, despite the absence of a contest, and concluded:

Officer Begins Yule Campaign

Officer Jack (Santa Claus) O'Connell, hero of children in the Fourth Police Precinct, has started his annual Yuletide party plans.

With continued support, Officer Jack hopes to make this Christmas a merry one for the needy—not only in his precinct but throughout the city. It was 12 years ago that he started his first Christmas campaign, and each year it has grown—almost beyond handling.

Last year was his biggest, Officer Jack asserted. He came to The Post last night to enlist the aid of the Santa Claus Lady and The Post Toy and Doll Fund.

"I'm a little behind schedule this year," said Officer Jack, but declared, "Maj. Brown and Capt. Jerry Sullivan, of the Fourth Precinct, have given me their o. k. to proceed."

With the cooperation of business and civic leaders the "Santa Claus Cop" will attempt to see that every needy family applying for aid is cared for.

Children of the neighborhood will be entertained before a huge Christmas tree on Christmas Day. Baskets of food, the policeman said, will be scarce this year due to the late start.

Hopkins Eye Chief to Quit

Famed Specialist Once Held Post at Georgetown.

Baltimore, Dec. 19 (AP).—The retirement of Dr. William H. Wilmer on July 1 from the directorship of the Wilmer Institute of Opthalmology of the Johns Hopkins Hospital was announced tonight at his office.

Dr. Wilmer, who is 70, sought to resign last year, but he was prevailed upon to continue with his work until he reached the age limit.

The ophthalmological institution which bears his name was founded in 1925 with an endowment of $3,000,000, largely the contributions of his former patients, distinguished persons from all over the world who had come to him for treatment.

Among his patients had been a number of Presidents of the United States, King Prajadhipok of Siam, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, J. P. Morgan, Booth Tarkington, Viscount Grey of Fallodon, Sir Auckland Geddes and Lieut. James H. Doolittle, the noted Army aviator.

His successor will be named by a committee which will be apopinted for that specific purpose.

Dr. Wilmer is a member of the Legion of Honor of France and was decorated with the distinguished service medal. Georgetown University, with which medical school he was connected before coming to Baltimore, awarded him its decoration of the Angelo Secchi Academy of Science last March.

During the World War he was in charge of Army Medical research laboratories in this country and in France. In 1931 he was commissioned brigadier general in the Army Reserve Corps.

Uniformed Rat Catchers Make Appearance

Rats!

Big ones and little ones. Dark ones and light ones. From the city's bleakest hole to the housewife's cleanest kitchen. They don't come in any size or shape to dismay Washington's newest organization—the rat squad.

Don't attempt to be rid of your rats until consulting one of the District's uniformed experts. Uniformed? Yes, in the most modern fashion.

Pied Pipers of New Era.

Pied Pipers of a new era are these workers of the District transient relief. Even a training course must be completed before rat chasing activities begin. Instruction on how, when and where to find the rodents is given by Louis A. Lindecop, sent from New York by the Department of Health to school recruits in the long-lost art of rat catching.

After three weeks of training his pupils are turned loose. The results have been astounding. Within the past two weeks a total of 2,000 rats have fallen victims to modern methods. In one warehouse alone a day's work netted 300 rodents.

The men, about 100 in all, are divided in groups of 2 and 4, and work in different sections of the city. People wishing their property renovated leave their names with the transient relief agency and the men call the next day. The work is done without cost.

Men Given Uniforms.

In order that the men may present the neatest appearance possible, they have been uniformed by Mr. Lindecop. They wear zipper jackets, caps and gray trousers. They were to be furnished with gray trousers with a yellow stripe, but this recommendation was not approved.

The men have been trained in politeness, courtesy and promptness, in addition to setting and baiting traps.

Mr. Lindecop, who has been New York's pied piper for more than 14 years, has been called back to that city, where he will have charge of almost 2,000 men.

He expects to leave here within a few days. The work will be turned over to assistants.

One Held as U. S. Fights Fake "Bottled in Bond"

Kansas City, Dec. 19 (AP).—One man was ordered held for trial today in a Federal drive on bogus bonded liquor, said to be flowing into Kansas City for holiday sale.

The man gave his name as Earl Walter, 35. Six bottles of corn liquor bearing counterfeit "bottled in bond" stamps were seized in a raid on Walter's flat, officers said at the man's arraignment before a United States commissioner.

Ice-Covered Men In Wreck Rescued

One Delirious as Indians Find Pair in Alaska.

Ketchikan, Alaska, Dec. 19 (AP).—Described by their rescuers as "crawling pieces of ice," George Steele, 60, and Charles Hanson, 50, were brought to a hospital here today after a blizzard dashed their small boat upon the rocks of Annette Island.

Thrown into the icy waters in the wreck of their craft, the Palmer S, they started crawling along the beach, freezing as they crawled. Metlakatla Indians saw a light on the beach, and found that Hanson, unable to use his hands was holding a flashlight in his mouth.

Though Indians said the men were on the beach only half an hour, Hanson was delirious when rescued.

Labor Board Gets Full Legal Power

mediation, conciliation or arbitration all controversies between employers and employes, which tend to impede purposes of the National industrial recovery act, provided, however, the board may decline to take cognizance of controversies in any field of trade where a means of settlement provided for by agreement, industrial code or Federal law, has not been invoked."

The White House issued the text of the order without explanatory comment. Chairman Wagner was out of the Capital.

The board has requested Attorney General Cummings to obtain an injunction to prevent the Weirton Co. from possible interference with union elections in its plants at Weirton and Clarksburg, W. Va., and Steubenville, Ohio.

A similar move was understood to have been taken in the case of the Budd Co. union official election at the Philadelphia plant.

National Council Called.

While the Administration proceeded to strengthen this unit of its recovery machine, it also moved to weld together all of its economic rehabilitation agencies. Mr. Roosevelt convened his National Emergency Council for the initial meeting to organize recovery agencies.

A tentative plan for consolidation was brought to the White House by Frank Walker, acting executive director of the council. Individual operations of the agencies, however, were ordered by the President to continue until January 16.

Lobby Wants NRA to Join In Marketing

Consumers Board Is Asked to Support Move for U. S. Corporation.

Request that the Consumers Advisory Board of NRA join the movement for a Government marketing corporation was made yesterday by the Peoples Lobby in a communication addressed to Mrs. Mary H. Rumsey, chairman of the board.

"It is obvious that consumers can not be protected so long as corporations are allowed to carry their assets and liabilities at $334,000,000,000," the letter said. "Codes are no substitute for honest capitalization."

Aims at Corporation.

The lobby said it is working for a corporation empowered to buy farm products, process them and sell directly to consumers. It added that such a corporation would buy as far as possible from farmers' cooperatives and sell to consumers' cooperatives.

"The Norris-Sinclair bill creating such a corporation, with provisions for a revolving fund of $500,000,000, was defeated in 1924 by the meat packers, millers, bakers, milk distributors, and others whose profits would thereby be ended," the statement continued. "We anticipate opposition from these same selfish interests now.

"We do not propose that the Government shall pay fixed prices to farmers to cover speculation in farm lands, but honest costs of production."

Not Part of Program.

The lobby said such a plan is no part of the President's program to raise prices to the 1926 level, which the statement characterized as "the latest straw to break consumers' backs."

"It is to effect a direct route from produced of farm products to consumers. It may involve taking part of the textile industry, as well as food processors."

Bribery? That's Fighting Word As 2 City Police Forces Clash

Metropolitan Leader Says Park Chief's Orders Is "Slap in Face."

Washington's two police departments—the Park Police and the Metropolitan Police — last night were engaged in a battle of words.

The Metropolitan and larger organization—they have nearly 1,400 men and the Park Police have 80—took the offensive last night at a meeting of the Policemen's Association of the District of Columbia.

Capt. P. J. Carroll, head of the park bluecoats, was accused in a resolution adopted by the Metropolitan Policemen, of having issued through "innuendo" certain "defamatory" statements about the senior group.

In an order, purported to have been issued by the red haired park police chieftain, the guardians of the Capitol's landscapes were enjoined to adhere to "honesty and sobriety."

The Carroll statement, which made vague reference to "extortion" and "bribery," ended with the remark, "you are all aware of what is happening to the Metropolitan Police Department."

"It was a direct slap in the face for the Metropolitan police," said Sergt. J. E. Fondahl, president of the Association of Metropolitan Policemen.

21 Countries Seek Liquor Trade Quotas

(Associated Press.)

With negotiations for an increased French wine quota deadlocked by the tariff boost France imposed on American products, 21 nations were jockeying yesterday for the trade advantages they might gain by sending their liquors into the United States.

Mexico was one of the entries.

The Mexican Charge d'Affairs, Dr. Don Louis Padilla-Nervo, presented his country's case before a committee consisting of Frederick Livesey, assistant economic advisor of the State Department, Ray Miller, of the Alcohol Control Administration, and representatives of the Treasury, Agriculture and Commerce Departments.

A liberal quota was sought for aguardiente, habanero, tequilla and various other native drinks especially desired by the Mexican population in States bordering Mexico.

Maurice Garreau-Donbasle, the French commercial attache, conferred with American officials again yesterday about the impasse on the increased French wine quota caused by the tax on import licenses to be imposed January 1. However, the French commercial attache had not received any new instruction from Paris.

Garreau-Donbasle said he hoped to have instructions today which will enable him to resume active negotiations. He said importers of fruit and other American products had put the differences between the French and American governments in a false light.

French Drop Tax Plan:

Paris, Dec. 19 (AP).—A wave of sharp criticism from the United States resulted today in the abandonment, in favor of lower figures, of a heavy French import tax on apples and pears.

Experts in the Ministry of Agriculture wondered subsequently how far they could go in increasing duties without killing the reciprocal feature of an American agreement for a bigger wine quota from France.

In the commerce department the developments caused a furore, and Minister Eynac sought a leak whereby the United States learned that France intended to add import licenses and taxes of 3½ cents a pound on apples and 5 cents on pears.

Eynac, it was reliably reported, told a group of French apple importers that they must have given out some indication of a plan, and that "you kind of Frenchmen ought to leave the country."

Jail Fugitives Write They Will Return Soon

Manteo, N. C., Dec. 19 (AP).—Two polite prisoners escaped from the county jail by sawing the bars of their cell windows early today.

Danger Period For NRA Over, Johnson Feels

Results Please General, Predicting 95 Per Cent Eagle Coverage Soon.

Speeding the NRA machinery to unprecedented effort yesterday, Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson announced he expected to push 75 more codes through the mill between now and the first of the year so that January 1 will find 95 per cent of the Nation's employment under the Blue Eagle.

With eight codes approved yesterday by the President, the 75 added to 168 already signed would represent a grand total of 85 per cent of the country's employment, Johnson said. Business men operating under the President's Reemployment Agreement, which was to be extended yesterday by Executive order, would account for the other 10 per cent of employment.

At present, Johnson added, 70 per cent of American workers are under codes.

Looking back on the progress of the NRA through the chaotic months of organization, Johnson said he was "pleased" with the results of the "toughest job" he ever had undertaken.

Johnson said he went into the NRA without expectations of any sort and would not have been surprised had there been an "explosion." He contended, however, that apparently all danger has passed.

Wright Happy Old Dispute Is Nearer End

Air Pioneer Agreeable to Have Lindbergh as Mediator.

Dayton, Ohio, Dec. 19 (AP).—From the laboratory where he still is working on problems of the airplane, Orville Wright sent word today that he is "delighted" that a home in America may be found at last for the craft he and his brother Wilbur made—the first powered plane to bear a man aloft.

His comment followed word that the Smithsonian Institution in Washington—founded by an Englishman—is making ready to open negotiations to have him bring the first airplane from the museum near London, where it now rests. The plan is to place it in the Smithsonian, right in front of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis.

And Col. Lindbergh, Orville Wright said, has his "hearty approval" as the suggested mediator, even to the extent of being a committee of one to finally settle the dispute that has raged intermittently since 1925 between Wright and officials of the Smithsonian.

The argument that resulted in the Wright plane being sent to England arose over the wording of a label written for the Langley Airdome in the Smithsonian, calling it "the first machine capable of flight carrying a man."

The Wrights called that an affront, and pointed out that Langley's craft wasn't flown until years after their epochal adventure in 1903, although Langley built his machine the same year.

Wright himself, he said in a statement today, has fostered since 1925 the idea of an impartial investigation to settle the matter.

Retribution from the first, he said, has been in the power of the Smithsonian authorities.

Col. Lindbergh was suggested as one of a committee of mediators by Dr. Charles G. Abbott, curator of the museum. He has not yet been approached, however.

Detective Sergeant Ill.

Detective Sergt. Joseph Waldron, assigned to Headquarters, was seriously ill yesterday in his home, 7012 Georgia avenue northwest. Physicians said Waldron suffered an attack of acute indigestion. His condition was somewhat improved late last night.

Wrecked Havana Newspaper Plant After Mob Raid

Wide World Photos.

A mob armed with army rifles attacked the plant of the newspaper El Pais in Havana, Cuba, as part of a demonstration by the Cuban Federation of Labor against the recently enacted law ordering employment of 50 per cent native labor in all establishments. Four men were killed in the riots, including a linotype operator on El Pais, largest circulated paper in Cuba. Many were wounded. The El Pais plant was gutted by fire.

Legion Chief Here to Seek Veterans' Aid

National Commander to Visit President on Relief Plan.

A legislative program calling for restoration of World War service-connected disability payments at rates in effect prior to passage of the economy act last March will be laid before President Roosevelt this week by Edward A. Hayes, National commander of the American Legion.

Commander Hayes was in the Capital yesterday conferring with National legion officials on a four-point rehabilitation program adopted by the legion convention last fall.

In addition to restoring benefits to veterans disabled in service, the legion will ask Congress to provide hospitalization for all honorably discharged former service men financially unable to care for themselves, restoration of compensation in "presumptive" service-connected cases, in placing upon the Government the burden of disproving nonservice connection and payment of allowances to widows and orphans of World War veterans on a basis comparable with benefits paid families of deceased Spanish War soldiers.

Admiral Raby Shifted To San Francisco Post

Rear Admiral James J. Raby, commandant of the Charleston (S. C.) Navy Yard, yesterday was ordered transferred by the Navy Department to be commandant of the Twelfth Naval District and the Naval Operating Base at San Francisco.

There he will relieve Rear Admiral George W. Laws, who will be retired for age March 1. Admiral Raby's successor was not named.

Gas Is Up—Why? Oil Official Asked At Tax Inquiry

Representative Frank Crowther (Republican), New York, intends to find out why the retail price of gasoline jumped 2 cents a gallon in Washington this week, and so informed the House Ways and Means Committee.

He put the question yesterday to M. E. McDowell, of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, who was testifying against subcommittee proposals to abolish consolidated income tax returns.

"I've been away from the office for 48 hours," said Mr. McDowell, "but I will get the information for you tomorrow."

As the data is not "relevant" to committee hearings, Mr. McDowell said he would supply the information personally to Representative Crowther.

Fourth Police Precinct Back Around Jan. 1

Capt. Jeremiah Sullivan Will Command Force of 58 Patrolmen.

The old Fourth Precinct in the Southwest section will be reestablished about January 1, with Capt. Jeremiah Sullivan in command. Capt. James E. Bobo will replace Capt. Sullivan at the Fifth Precinct.

The Fourth and Fifth Precincts were merged two years ago under the direction of former Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby, and were identified as the Fourth Precinct, covering the entire Southwest and Southeast section north of the water front.

Since the merger, the old Fourth Precinct headquarters, on E street near Four and a Half street southwest, has been used as a storehouse. It is now being made ready for occupancy. The former Fifth Precinct, at Fifth and E streets southeast, again will be designated as the Fifth Precinct.

Lieutenants assigned to the Fourth Precinct are B. R. King and Oscar J. Letterman. King is now attached to the Fifth Precinct and Letterman is a night inspector. Lieuts. John Flaherty and L. E. Kelly will be aids to Capt. Bobo when he assumes command of the Fifth. Flaherty is now at the present Fourth Precinct and Kelly is at the Eleventh.

Sergeants assigned to the Fourth Precinct are C. C. Goldman, E. K. Shelton, and John R. Leach, while Sergts. T. T. Dalhouse, J. M. Larkins, and J. J. Agnew will go to the Fifth. Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown also assigned 58 privates to the Fourth Precinct and 55 to the Fifth.

Robbers Miss Money, Leave Prints in Bank

Yeggs Enter Bowie Vaults, Quit After Opening Empty Safes.

Baltimore fingerprint experts last night were trying to link the attempted robbery early yesterday of the Bank of Bowie with three other recent Maryland bank robberies.

Police Sergt. Walter Martin, who took fingerprints, said the "job" resembled the attempted robbery of Galesville branch of the Annapolis Banking & Trust Co. Other banks robbed within the last two weeks include the State Bank, Forest Hill, and the Nicodemus Bank, Hagerstown.

The would-be robbers of the Bowie Bank were apparently frightened away when a canvass, which shielded their ascetylene torch, caught fire. Nothing was taken.

George T. Jones, Pennsylvania Railroad watchman, said he heard a noise when he passed the bank at 1 a. m. yesterday. Passing again at 4:30 a. m. he saw the canvass burning in front of the building, where it had been thrown by the bandits.

He called William Luers, cashier, who notified police. The front door had been broken in. Two safes, which contained no money, had been opened. The third, containing $20,000, had been tampered with. A 5-foot oxygen tank remained in the building.

U. S. Workers Get 2 Saturdays Off

Extra Holiday Time for Next Week-Ends Assured.

President Roosevelt plans a Christmas gift for all Federal employes.

It was made known at the White House yesterday that the President will order all departments closed all day on the Saturdays before Christmas and New Year's Day. He was represented as feeling Government workers were entitled to the added holidays because of extra duties imposed on them by the recovery program.

Officials explained employes thus would be excused from Friday night until Tuesday morning for the two weeks.

Frankie Lake Held as Vagrant.

Chicago, Dec. 19 (AP).—Frankie Lake, former Chicago beer merchant in the early prohibition days, was charged with vagrancy today and held in $10,000 bond.

Oyster Pirate Suspects Face Charges Today

Maryland Official Says Full Investigation Will Be Made.

Eighteen alleged oyster pirates, arrested during Monday's battle with police on the Potomac River off Popes Creek, Md., will be given a hearing today before Justice of the Peace William H. Hickey, La Plata, Md.

All are charged with "scraping" oysters and failing to comply with the Federal law requiring numbers on motor boats.

Meanwhile Swepson Earle, head of the Maryland conservation commission, cruised the lower Potomac River aboard the State boat McLean.

"I shall conduct a sweeping investigation of the whole trouble," he declared before leaving Baltimore, "and it will probably result in a shake-up of the commission's law-enforcement department."

Charles County Police Upheld.

Friends of the arrested oystermen, who complained to the attorney general's office that Charles County authorities acted outside their authority in making the arrests, were informed the county police acted rightly.

Bitter complaints have been hurled at the State Conservation Committee by inhabitants of the Potomac River country who oppose the "scrapers." It is charged that Earle is in sympathy with the "scrapers" and the State boats consequently make no arrests.

Residents of Popes Creek last night still remained in a state of expectancy, although Deputy Sheriff Bruce Wilmer, who has headed the fight against the "scrapers," reported "all was quiet."

During the day, he said, he and other deputies combed the lower Potomac but found only a boat of legal "tongers."

Guard Deputy's House.

A guard has been thrown around Wilmer's house in case friends of the "pirates" attempt revenge. The nine boats, taken Monday and now tied up at the Popes Creek dock, are also under guard.

The war, of two years' standing, reached a climax Monday when ten State police and a score of deputies, in three boats, battled the alleged outlaws.

One man was wounded, 18 were arrested, and 9 boats confiscated. Three boats and 7 men were allowed to return to Virginia with the understanding warrants would be sworn for them.

Board to Value Transit Firm

Utilities Group Advised to Get Data on Deal Between 2 Carriers.

The Public Utilities Commission is preparing to pass upon the "fair value" of the Washington Rapid Transit Co., although the Capital Transit Co. so far as the commission knows, has taken no definite steps to acquire the carrier.

An opinion suggesting that the commission acquire certain information before passing upon any deal between the two transit companies was submitted to the utilities body yesterday by William A. Roberts, assistant counsel.

The commission's only standard of valuation for the bus line now is the valuation compiled in 1931, but never established. This sets the reproduction cost new at $800,000 and the valuation less depreciation at approximately $600,000.

It is not expected that the Capital Transit Co. will be able to acquire the bus company at such a low figure, particularly as the latter has recently shown some small profits.

Gov. Murray Loses Collection Move

Receivership Petition Is Overruled.

Oklahoma City, Dec. 19 (AP).—Gov. William H. Murray lost his first legal skirmish today in an announced series of district court suits to collect approximately $5,000,000 in penalties allegedly due the State from six insurance companies.

A three-judge court today upheld a defense demurrer to his application for receivership of Oklahoma properties of the Prudential Insurance Co., valued at $21,000,000. The petition alleged $550,000 is due in fees and penalties since Statehood.

The judges held the governor's petition set forth insufficient grounds. The final decision, however, will be made in a trial of the case on its merits, probably within the next two months.

Insull Failure A Conspiracy, Says Lawyer

Receiverships Described as "Fraud" to Cover "Crookedness."

Chicago, Dec. 19 (AP).—The Insull receiverships were branded by Attorney Samuel Ettelson in Federal court today as a "fraud," conceived by Samuel Insull, sr., to "cover his crookedness."

Federal Judge Evan A. Evans agreed with the attorney that Insull Utility Investments, Inc., was "ripe for receivership" 10 months before the actual fall. The court took under advisement Ettelson's charges that the elder Insull and his bankers and creditors were guilty of collusion in selecting receivers and attorneys.

Seeks to Bar Fees.

Ettelson gained a hearing by moving to refuse fees to Calvin Fentress, former coreceiver of Insull utility investments and to Fentress' attorneys.

Evidence had been introduced that Insull planned the receiverships, picked complaining creditors, chose an Insull attorney as receiver to act with Fentress and finally was forced to resign as a receiver himself when evidence of malpractice turned up. As Judge Evans took the matter under advisement, he observed:

"I am absolving Mr. Fentress and the bankers of fraud and collusion, but what was the purpose he, Insull, had? As the largest stockholder was he actuated by fraud? The point was well taken that when Fentress and the bankers found out alleged illegal acts, they asked Insull to withdraw as receiver. But if the court should decide to pay Mr. Fentress, would not that be an encouragement to others?"

Ettelson acted as attorney for his wife, reported the loser of $140,000 in Insull stocks. He summed up his charges in eight points, contending the receiverships were planned as follows:

1. To "enable Insull to cover his crookedness" in management of the companies.

Sought to Hold Control.

2. To keep the whiphand himself, and his representatives as receivers and attorneys.

3. To maintain control in any reorganization.

4. To place Insull in a position to profit from reorganization.

5. To enable receivers and attorneys to draw large fees from the estate.

6. To enable Insull's personal attorneys to draw pay as receivers' attorneys from company estates.

7. To prevent personal liability suits and criminal prosecution.

8. To enable banks as favored creditors to protect their interests against interests of stockholders.

Insull Plans Trip.

Athens, Greece, Dec. 19 (AP).—Samuel Insull was said by acquaintances today to be planning to go to England when the expiration of his police permit January 31 forces him to leave his refuge here.

British authorities in Athens, however, said the former Chicagoan would not be granted a British visa until instructions were received from London.

Toronto Ruling Awaited.

Toronto, Dec. 19 (AP).—A decision in the latest attempt of Martin J. Insull to evade trial in the United States on charges of embezzlement, grand larceny, and theft by bailee, rested tonight with Justice Charles Garrow.

He took under advisement a defense motion for the formal discharge from custody of Insull, former utilities operator. If the motion were granted it would end the 14-month fight by United States authorities to bring Insull to trial.

Falls Church CWA Request Approved

Streets to Be Improved at Cost of $6,500.

The Fairfax County office of the Civil Works Administration was notified yesterday afternoon that the street project in Falls Church, Va., had been approved.

This project includes the grading and graveling of most of the town streets and gutters, the trimming of shade trees, and replanting of a number of trees along the main streets. The cost of the work in the Fairfax County section of the town will be approximately $6,500.

The 48 men engaged in civil works projects that did not receive their pay Saturday because Federal warrants had not arrived were paid yesterday by Dr. F. W. Huddleton, C. W. A. disbursing officer.

Adult School Enrolls 247 at Alexandria

The adult school for Alexandria, which will open early in January, has now registered 247 persons, of whom 124 are white and 127 colored. The age of the pupils range from 16 to 35 years, according to T. C. Williams, superintendent of schools.

The present plans provide six classes for both white and colored. The majority of those registering have signified their desire to take courses in typewriting and stenography. The minimum number which may be accepted for any one class is 10. Approximately 12 teachers, now unemployed, will form the faculty of the school.

Snug Harbor whisky	9.00
Morro Castle rum	9.00

These prices are for car lots, but 100-case lots will be delivered for an extra $1 per case.

Explanatory Letter.

The Schenley Products Co. accompanied its lists with an explanatory letter more illuminating of the distiller's situation than the bare prices themselves. The letter, from Harold Jacobi, president, read:

"Our prices on whisky range from $11.99 to $16.91 per case for 12 quarts (3 gallons). These goods are blends of straight whiskies only—no alcohol or spirits added. Our blends consist of old whiskies as well as new whiskies, and the difference in price is caused by the quantity of old whiskies put into each blend.

"I would like to call your attention to the fact that it costs us approximately $2 per case to pack this whisky, and a direct selling expense of another $2 per case Taking this into consideration, the Blackstone whisky would show a net price to us of $7.99 to cover the cost of the whisky, the profit to us, as well as overhead and administrative expenses.

"I would also like you to bear in mind that this company has paid as high as $12.50 per gallon for old whiskies; in fact, old whiskies have sold, to our knowledge, for as high as $300 a barrel. As you are well aware of the quantity of whisky in barrels which is 16 years old, you can figure for yourself that whisky has sold as high as $15 to $16 per gallon.

Develop Aging Process.

"This company, after long experimentation, has developed a method of 'quick-aging' whisky. Through this method we remove from young whiskies the objectionable characteristics and are able to use a much larger percentage of younger whiskies in the blends. This process is rather costly in that it entails the constant attendance of highly specialized chemists, and the process itself reduces the quantity of whisky. The results of our experimentation have been splendid and we have taken orders for some of these blends at a price of $7.20 per case of three gallons.

"Against our selling price for these goods, you must take into consideration that the cost of bottling as well as selling expenses are practically the same as for the higher-priced goods and, therefore, the net amount received by the distiller is certainly such a price as would not show any profit commensurate with the nature of our business, or the results that a good business organization should show."

Siever Buried, Death Still Murder Mystery

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 19 (AP).—Dr. Leonard Siever, Pasadena dentist, was buried today, one week after he was found shot to death in a driveway. The identity of his slayer is still unknown, as is the motive.

Chief of Police Charles Kelley said he would question more than 700 persons with whom Dr. Siever was acquainted, before he closed the investigation.

Diphtheria in Hospital Brings Closing Order

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 19 (AP).—Memorial Hospital was ordered closed for 48 hours by Health Commissioner Daniel V. O'Leary this afternoon because of 21 cases of diphtheria, 20 among nurses.

Policemen were posted at the entrance to prevent patients and visitors from being admitted, and hospital officials also have ordered no one to leave.

2,008 Persons Get Jobs in Maryland

CWA, PWA Ease Situation in Prince Georges.

Two thousand and eight persons have been given jobs in Prince Georges County under the C. W. A. and P. W. A. since November 25, it was announced yesterday.

So great has been the rush that five persons have been added to the office force at the National Reemployment Service headquarters, Hyattsville.

In spite of the wholesale placement, however, T. J. Camfield, head of the reemployment office, said yesterday there are 1,702 persons yet jobless.

Professors Hit Money Policy, Urging Reform

Compilation, However, Is Marked by Variety of Remedies.

New York, Dec. 19 (U.P.).—Opposition of the present monetary policies of the Administration at Washington was expressed by professors of colleges in seven States, according to letters made public today by James Brown, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York.

The writers criticized methods of currency manipulation, although revealing considerable difference of opinion as to the course to be pursued in returning to a gold basis. Some of the opinions collected by Brown follow:

Raymond Phelan, Tufts College—"A manly about-face at Washington upon the question of money is our need for the hour."

John T. Madden, New York University—"It is evident that the depreciation of the dollar can exercise only a slight influence on the movement of typical domestic commodities which are not traded in on the world markets."

Elbert Alvis Kincaid, University of Virginia—"The present policy tends to develop a struggle between divergent economic groups for control of the dollar for their own ends and thus accentuates instability where stability is the only condition upon which better times must be postulated."

Roy L. Gardis, Vanderbilt University—"I believe a restoration of the gold standard will restore confidence to such an extent that the expansion of credit will secure the desired results."

Neil Carothers, Lehigh University—"The one means of restoring confidence, removing the strain of repudiation and insuring economic recovery is a return to the gold dollar standard established by law in 1873, confirmed in 1900 and protected by every Administration through war and depression until the present time."

E. A. Agger, Rutgers University—"The return of the gold standard should, I believe, be a major objective of Government policy."

Three Persons Killed When Train Hits Car

Waco, Tex., Dec. 19 (AP).—Three persons were killed today when their automobile was struck by a northbound Missouri-Kansas-Texas train at a grade crossing.

The dead: B. E. Adams, his wife and Scobe Crawford, half brother of Mrs. Adams. The car was flung 200 feet down the track.

Boy Killer's Brother Acquitted in Slaying

Chicago, Dec. 19 (AP).—Emil Manzone, 20, arrested several months ago along with his brother, Peter, 18, in New Orleans, today was acquitted of the slaying of Policeman Maurice Marcusson, shot by one of four youths he sought to question on suspicion.

Peter several days ago was sentenced to 25 years in prison for another slaying.

U. S. Probes Postal Claim By Blanton

Texas Postmaster Says Representative Asked Saving Fund.

of the claim, is anxiously awaiting developments.

The attitude of the department, unofficially, apparently is to pat him on the back and tell him not to worry.

Representative Blanton admitted to The Post he had written to Postmaster Meroney on behalf of Mrs. Oldham.

"The correspondence relates to a claim my constituent has against the postmaster," Blanton wired from his home in Abilene last night. "Mr. Meroney is a splendid gentleman with no charges of any kind whatever involving moral turpitude filed against him."

Postoffice inspectors in Texas have unearthed the following facts surrounding the unusual case of a Congressman attempting to obtain a settlement from a postmaster through suggestion of the latter's removal:

Mrs. M. A. E. Frost, an aged resident of Ranger, who lived with her only brother, C. E. Bruce, communicated with Postmaster Meroney on January 28, 1932. She had suffered a fractured hip, and could not visit the postoffice, but sent word she wished to draw out her postal savings account.

Postmaster Meroney, well acquainted with Mrs. Frost and her brother, provided form 304 for the woman to fill out, went to her home and discussed the withdrawal with her, witnessed her signature to each of five $500 certificates, and paid over the money to Bruce.

The postmaster affirms that Mrs. Frost gave no indication, by word or deed, of being mentally unbalanced, and that the first he knew of her having been adjudged insane was when Representative Blanton appeared with a demand for the $2,500 on behalf of a grand-daughter of the woman, nearly two years later.

Twice Adjudged Insane.

Investigation disclosed that Mrs. Frost had been adjudged insane on October 27, 1931, in county court, and on December 19, 1931, in district court. She had appealed from the findings, and her appeal was pending when she died, early in 1932.

Mrs. Frost had made a will leaving her property to her brother. The will was held invalid, because of the results of the insanity hearings, and Mrs. Oldham, a grand-daughter, became the legal heir.

Mrs. Oldham and Bruce reached a settlement between themselves as to a division of Mrs. Frost's property.

Then arose the question of the $2,500 withdrawn from the postal savings account and paid over to Bruce at his sister's request.

It was decided to see whether another $2,500 could not be obtained, in view of the fact that Mrs. Frost had been legally insane when she signed the certificates and filled out Form 304.

The demand upon Postmaster Meroney followed.

Actress' Husband Facing Tax Suit

Government Is Seeking $47,398.10.

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 19 (AP).—A lien against Arthur Hopkins, husband of Doris Kenyon, the actress, for back income taxes amounting to $47,398.10, was filed today with the Onondaga County clerk by Frank J. Shaughnessy, Federal collector of internal revenue in the Syracuse district.

Hopkins, real estate broker, who has a home at Cazenovia, near here, and Miss Kenyon were married last June 14 at her estate in Beverley Hills, Calif. On October 28 she filed suit for divorce at Hollywood, charging incompatability.

Letters in Blanton Postal Claim Query

Texas Postmaster Sends Full Report to Superiors.

Following are the letters from Blanton to Meroney, from Meroney to the Third Assistant Postmaster General and from Meroney to Blanton:

Blanton & Blanton
Lawyers
Abilene, Texas,
October 27, 1933.

Hon. J. E. Meroney,
Postmaster,
Ranger, Texas.

Dear Postmaster:

I am writing you relative to the $2,500 of postal deposits which Mrs. M. A. E. Frost had with you at the time she was adjudged to be of unsound mind and a non compos mentis, covering by Certificates Nos. 210, 211, 213, 214, for $500 each, issued to her by you.

Concerning the above, I am inclosing you a copy of a judgment rendered on October 27, 1931, by Judge C. L. Garrett in Cause 3279 in the County Court of Eastland County, Texas, adjudging the said Mrs. M. A. E. Frost to be of unsound mind and a non compos mentis, and appointing a guardian for her estate, such judgment being based upon the verdict of a jury, who, after due trial, found Mrs. Frost to be of unsound mind.

Insanity Judgment Inclosed.

I am also inclosing you a copy of a judgment rendered by Judge George L. Davenport in the Ninety-first Judicial District Court of Eastland County, Tex., on December 19, 1931, adjudging the said Mrs. M. A. E. Frost to be of unsound mind and a non compos mentis, such judgment being based upon the verdict of a jury of 12 men, who after due trial found her to be of unsound mind and incapable of managing her own business.

In connection with the above, I want to call your attention to the fact that thereafter, on January 29, 1932, long after the said Mrs. M. A. E. Frost had twice been adjudged to be of unsound mind, both in the probate division of the County court of Eastland County, Tex., and in the Ninety-first Judicial District Court of Eastland County, Tex., you went to her home at night, and had her sign, while in bed, such certificates Nos. 211 and 212, and paid out to an unauthorized person the $1,000 covering the said two certificates, and again on February 2, 1932, you went to her house and had her sign, in bed, said certificates Nos. 210, 213 and 214, and then paid out to an unauthorized party the $1,500 covering said certificates, which payment was wholly unauthorized by law and by the regulations of the Postoffice Department.

Copy of Answer Sent

In such connection, I enclose you a copy of the answer filed by E. C. Bruce in the county court of Eastland County, Texas, in the case where there was an attempt being made to probate a will alleged to have been signed by the said Mrs. M. A. E. Frost, on January 13, 1932, after she had been adjudged to be of unsound mind, but before you paid out said funds, wherein the said Bruce admits she was of unsound mind when she was tried in county court on October 27, 1931, and also when she was tried in the district court on December 19, 1931.

I also inclose you a copy of the judgment of the county court, declaring said purported will to be invalid, and annulling it because the said Mrs. M. A. E. Frost was of unsound mind, and again adjudging her to be of unsound mind on said December 19, 1931, and appointing Mrs. Ray Frost Oldham, administrator of the estate of the said Mrs. M. A. E. Frost, deceased, and authorizing and empowering her to take charge of said estate, and to bring suits against any persons or corporations owing said estate or refusing to turn over to her property belonging to said estate.

I also inclose you a copy of letters of administration issued by the said county court of Eastland County, Texas, to the said Mrs. Fay Frost Oldham, administrator of the said estate of Mrs. M. A. E. Frost, deceased.

Matter Kept Secret.

In view of the fact that I am your personal friend, and have thought a great deal of you during the time we have known each other, and I know somewhat of the difficulties that now beset you, I am not filing this matter with the Postoffice Department, but I am calling on you for a settlement of the matter so that if possible it may be arranged without the Postoffice Department having any knowledge of the situation. I realize that if the department knew of your handling this matter at this woman's house at night, and outside of your postoffice, it would remove you, and I want to save you this trouble, and also all unnecessary expense.

If you are unable personally to settle this matter with this administrator, I would suggest that you take the matter up withyour bondsmen, and place these papers before them, and they will probably be able to arrange a settlement with you so that you can be given time to pay them back what they are out without their complaining to the department. Please let me know right away just how soon you will be prepared to make a settlement.

Harris & Ewing.

REP. THOMAS L. BLANTON.

Very sincerely yours,
(Signed) THOMAS L. BLANTON,

Letter by Postmaster.

Ranger, October 30, 1933.

Third Assistant Postmaster General.
Division of Postal Savings,
Washington, D. C.

My Dear Sir: I am inclosing herewith a letter from Congressman Thomas L. Blanton, which is self-explanatory. However, he does not state the exact facts in the case.

The following is a detailed account of the case as I know it to have happened:

Mrs. M. A. E. Frost opened a postal savings account with this office June 10, 1925, depositing $2,500.00, which balance she maintained continually until January 29, 1932.

Mrs. Frost lived on Wayland road, in the outskirts of Ranger, for a number of years, and with her lived Mr. C. E. Bruce, her only brother, as I understand. Each time for the past seven years, when she came to collect her interest on the postal savings deposit, Mr. Bruce would come with her. I came to know them both very well.

Asked For Withdrawal.

On January 28, 1932, Mr. Bruce came to the office and asked me if Mrs. Frost could cash her entire account. I told him that she could if our drawing allowance would permit and if she would not have to wait longer than until the first of February, when I would have sufficient funds to pay her. He informed me that she could not get around very well, not having recovered from a fractured hip, sustained in a fall some months previous. I gave him form No. 304, and told him to have her fill it out according to directions and I could pay him. The next day, the twenty-ninth, he came back to the office and told me that Mrs. Frost, after talking it over with him, decided that as neither of them could see or write very well, that if I did not mind, she would like for me to come to the house to see her about the matter. A few minutes later, between 9 and 10 o'clock of the morning of the twenty-ninth, I went to see Mrs. Frost, her brother, Mr. Bruce, going with me. When I arrived she was sitting on the side of the bed. I told her that Mr. Bruce said she wished to see me. She said that she did, and that she wanted to cash her postal savings account. I told her that I could not bring the money out to the house and she asked me if I could give her brother a check, and he could deposit it for her. I informed her that I could not do that. She then asked me if I could give Mr. Bruce the money at the bank, and stated that he transacted her business for her. She told him to have Mr. Hall Walker complete the transaction for her. I agreed to handle the matter in that manner.

However, I informed her that my drawing allowance for the month had been depleted to the extent that I could not pay any more than $1,000 and the interest that day, but could pay the remainder on the first of February, three days later. She agreed, and I witnessed her signature to each of the five, $500 certificates at this time. I took two of them direct to the bank. On arriving at the bank I drew the money out and counted it out to Mr. Bruce and he went directly to Mr. Walker's desk. Mr. Walker was there and, as I supposed, had Mr. Walker to make out a deposit slip covering the amount. On February 1, Mr. Bruce came to the office and I went to the bank with him and drew out $1,500 and the interest on that amount due, and as I finished counting it out to Mr. Bruce, Mr. Walker came into the bank on his way to his desk and Mr. Bruce followed him, and as I supposed again, had him make out a deposit slip covering the amount.

Had no Knowledge.

As to Mrs. Frost having been adjudged insane prior to this transaction, I knew positively nothing about it. Had I had even a hint of such action, I would have investigated thoroughly and would have followed the law with reference to settlement of account over which there is a dispute of right. When talking to her on the occasion of my visit to her home, I noticed nothing in her action or conversation that gave me even a hint that she was mentally unbalanced.

From the date the last transaction was completed, until on or about the eleventh day of this month, I heard nothing of Mrs. Frost being even suspected of insanity. On October 11, 1933, Representative Thomas L. Blanton came into my office and asked if I knew I had settled an account with a depositor that had previously been adjudged insane, and told me who it was. He also informed me that the money was never deposited in the bank in the name of Mrs. Frost, but put in a safety deposit box belonging to Mr. Bruce.

Reported to Bondsmen.

Besides this report, I am also reporting this matter to my bonding company in New York.

With this report I am also inclosing a copy of my reply to Mr. Blanton and a copy of my letter to the bonding company.

I have laid the facts before you just as I know them to be and will be glad to have the matter investigated by the department.

Very sincerely yours,
(Signed) J. E. MERONEY,

Letter to Blanton.

Ranger, Tex., October 30, 1933.

Hon. Thomas L. Blanton,
Abilene, Tex.

My Dear Mr. Blanton: This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 27th inst. with reference to settlement of postal savings account of Mrs. M. A. E. Frost, now deceased.

In closing may I say that I have read and considered your letter very carefully and find that some of the statements contained therein do not agree with the facts in the case.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) J. E. MERONEY,
Postmaster.

Peace in the Chaco.

After 18 months of hostilities, costing the lives of thousands of men and the waste of tens of millions of dollars, an armistice between Bolivia and Paraguay at last seems to be assured. If once secured, fighting is unlikely to be resumed, for both countries are weary of a war which has drained their manpower and resources without promise of compensation from any possible settlement.

Skillful propaganda can make all wars seem just and noble to the participants, but to Americans, who certainly have preserved neutrality of opinion in this distant struggle, there has been little that is inspiring and much that is pathetic about the Chaco conflict. Two small and impoverished nations, of kindred origin and culture, have been sedulously engaged in cutting each others' throats for possession of a jungle area graphically described by a traveler in those parts as "Green Hell." Perhaps civilization and honor and justice, the right of self-determination and the future of democracy may have been involved, but just where it is hard to say.

The issue now is how repetition of such senseless slaughter is to be averted for the future in a part of the world formerly relatively free from large-scale warfare. It is a problem in which the League of Nations, which has a commission of investigation in the war zone, the United States and the Latin-American countries individually and collectively are all interested. The close of hostilities in the Chaco is the logical time to consolidate, and thereby effectuate, efforts which heretofore have been both sporadic and inconsistent.

Domestic Extradition.

Difficulties involved in the extradition of criminals from one State to another constitute one of the serious impediments to speedy administration of justice. "Under the present set-up," says Frank J. Loesch, head of the Chicago Crime Commission, "with the myriad technicalities of extradition laws among the several States, the most wanted criminals are able by use of the brains of shady lawyers to cloak themselves with immunity through extradition laws." It is to remedy this situation that Mr. Loesch has launched a movement to liberalize extradition through cooperation of the States.

The duty of every governor to surrender a fugitive from justice to the State in which he is alleged to have committed a crime is clearly set forth in the Constitution, in statute law and by decisions of the Supreme Court. But between the existence of that duty and its fulfillment there is sometimes an irritating gap. If a State executive refuses to permit extradition of a fugitive from justice another State may be thwarted in its efforts to enforce its own laws. Closer cooperation among the States is needed to end this unnecessary obstruction to law enforcement.

The ineffectiveness of present extradition procedure gives impetus to the movement to transfer police powers to the Federal Government. It must not be thought that the failure of prohibition has entirely overcome the demand for extension of Uncle Sam's law enforcement activities. Every fresh ripple on the wave of crime brings forth proposals that a national police force be established, that the Federal Government take over responsibilities properly reserved to the States. A great deal of this agitation, which often tends to disregard the fundamental American principle of State's Rights, would disappear if the States were more cooperative in handling extradition procedure.

Rounding Up Camp Followers.

Past commendation of Secretary Ickes for his uncompromising war upon lobbyists who looked to the Public Works Administration as a "field ripe unto the harvest" must be renewed. Further congratulations are in order because of prompt action in removing Searcy Slack, engineer in charge of the Georgia district, who represented himself as being able to secure a $2,000,000 allotment, provided the proper fee was forthcoming. Praise must also go to John H. Fahey, chairman of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, for vigorous action upon complaints from Chicago that excessive charges had been made there for appraisals.

With the advent of every Administration, there is an influx of self-servers—party camp followers looking for spoils. They pretend that they are able, by the exercise of influence or friendship, to secure speedy and favorable action on pending matters. The Roosevelt Administration has not been free from this burden. On the contrary, because the party has been out of power 12 years and the patronage turnover is great, and because the Administration has had so much money to spend, there have been rather more lobbyists than usual.

Of course most of them are fakirs, without any of the influence to which they pretend. But that does not alter the necessity for alertness. An administration that is spending billions of dollars, with speed in distribution as an essential to success of its program, might easily become its own worst enemy, more likely to fall from decay within than under attacks from without. Secretary Ickes, Mr. Fahey and others who are waging unremitting war upon influence-parasites do the Administration, as well as the country, a good turn.

Unsatisfying Satisfaction.

Undersecretary of the Treasury Morgenthau professes to be satisfied with the price-raising efficacy of the gold-purchase program. He notes that a selected list of commodities plotted on a Dow Jones chart shows an average advance of 5¼ per cent since October 21, while the dollar price of gold has increased 16 per cent during the same period. According to report, Mr. Morgenthau does not attach much importance to the fact that the gold price has advanced more rapidly than the price of the selected commodities mentioned.

If Mr. Morgenthau had employed another index to measure price changes, he might feel less confident that there is a casual connection between the rise in gold prices and the current advance in certain commodity quotations. The index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the most comprehensive and hence most representative measure of changes in the level of wholesale prices, does not support the theory that the gold-buying campaign has been accompanied by a sustained rise in prices. By the beginning of December the bureau's index had dropped 1½ per cent below its high point of November 18 and was only fractionally above the level reached in September, more than a month prior to the inauguration of the gold-buying activities. In the week ended December 9, the index rose only three-tenths of 1 per cent and at that time stood 12½ per cent above the level of the preceding year.

In view of the many expedients employed by the Administration to raise prices, the limited increases that have occurred in recent weeks and the advances over last year would be explicable even if the gold-purchase program had never been pulled to earth from the empyrean heights of theory where it was born. The operations of the A. A. A. in curtailing crop output, and levying taxes upon processed goods, have helped to raise prices of certain products. The loans made to cotton and corn growers at rates above current market levels likewise have advanced the prices of those commodities. The NRA program has added to the production costs of organized industries, resulting in some cases in pronounced increases in prices of manufactured goods.

Apart from these factors, public works spending and liberal credit policies have assisted prices to rise. In short, if there had been no gold buying, and no monetary manipulation of any sort, a rise in prices was to have been expected. The fact that it has been so hesitating and uncertain since the gold-buying campaign was launched is the surprising development that really calls for explanation.

Mr. Leo Pasvolsky*.

Since it is a foundation, and not an individual, the Brookings Institution, which has just published "Current Monetary Issues," by Leo Pasvolsky, is not strictly eligible for full membership in the Tory Club. Under the rather rigid rules governing admission, the best that the Brookings Institution can expect is a corresponding membership in that considerable, and growing, congery which looks with skepticism upon the administration's gold-purchase policy.

Of course Mr. Pasvolsky himself is entitled to the right hand of full fellowship, and his name is duly enrolled. It is followed by an asterisk, but this signifies merely that his Toryism is somewhat adulterated by being that of a group of distinguished economists rather than a merely individual aberration.

The Wright Airplane.

Although the first machine-powered airplane capable of carrying a pilot in flight was constructed in the United States and was first flown at Kitty Hawk, N. C., it is now in the Science Museum at London. That plane is the most treasured relic of aviation. It is a source of regret that Orville Wright permits it to remain in a foreign country.

Wilbur and Orville Wright are now recognized the world over as the inventors of the first practical heavier-than-air flying machine. It is unfortunate that the Smithsonian Institution did not recognize the significance of their achievement before the Wright plane was sent to Great Britain. The labeling of Samuel Pierpont Langley's invention as "the first machine capable of flight carrying a man" is now conceded to have been a mistake. But some time ago Smithsonian officials agreed to accord proper recognition to the Wright brothers in return for permission to exhibit their plane in the National Museum. Now Dr. Abbot, Secretary of the Smithsonian, has agreed to give the Wright plane outstanding display, to submit the label for Mr. Wright's approval and to make any other practicable concession to obtain this valuable memorial of American inventive genius.

Since Col. Lindbergh, who has been suggested as a mediator in this case, has now returned from another historic flight, the present is a good time to press for the return of the Wright plane to the land of its origin.

Mr. Wright was quite naturally resentful over the attitude once taken by the Smithsonian. But the institution has gone as far as it possibly can to make amends. It is to be hoped that the inventor will accept this new invitation to negotiate for enshrining the historic plane in Washington. For the issue is not one concerning only Mr. Wright and the Smithsonian Institution. Sentiment and National pride call for the homecoming of this notable relic. Mr. Wright's contribution to American aviation would not be complete without consummation of the project.

Mr. Caffery in Cuba.

It may be hoped that a new chapter in the history of Cuban-American relations will be written as a result of the arrival in Havana of Mr. Jefferson Caffery, special representative of President Roosevelt to the harassed republic known in happier days as the "Pearl of the Antilles." Behind Mr. Caffery's recent experience as Assistant Secretary of State lies a distinguished service record of which a fair proportion has been spent in Central and South America. He has the training to confront one of the most difficult of our current problems in foreign relations.

That the problem is as yet far from solution was indicated as recently as last Sunday, when one of the two remaining daily newspapers in Havana was wrecked by a mob antagonistic to its critical attitude toward the Grau San Martin regime. A government which permits such methods to silence opposition can scarcely be regarded as secure in its control, however popular it may be with the uncivilized elements which compose all mobs.

At the same time it is apparent that the Grau San Martin regime has demonstrated a tenacity, and an appeal to at least a large element of Cuba's population, which entitle it to be regarded as the functioning de facto government of the republic. And it is further apparent that with the bottom knocked out of the economic life of that country through the collapse of sugar prices, it is far more difficult for any Cuban government to function on a plane which might be taken for granted in times of prosperity.

As Mr. Caffery assumes his new post, with the good omen of an enthusiastic welcome in Havana, it is no more than just to remember that even by depression standards Cuba is today a most distressful country. It is also proper at this juncture to remember that the historic American doctrine of diplomatic recognition, as laid down by Thomas Jefferson, concerns itself not at all with the complexion or character of a foreign government, but solely with its ability to maintain stability and order.

Two Governors.

The day after a mob at San Jose, Calif., took two prisoners from the county jail and lynched them, Gov. Rolph said to newspapermen: "They made a good job of it and I hope this lesson will serve in every State of the Union."

The day after a mob abducted Cord Cheek, a 19-year-old Negro, in Davidson County, taking him into an adjoining county to lynch him, Hill McAlister, Governor of Tennessee, called the illegal execution a "disgrace to the State." Furthermore, he has offered $1,000 reward for the apprehension of the murderers, following which a criminal judge has ordered the grand jury of Davidson County to suspend all other work and devote its time soley to investigation of the mob action.

As between the two governors, there is no doubt as to which has served the cause of American civilization more constructively. The degrading "lesson" from California is properly spurned by Tennessee.

Letters to the Editor

The Post welcomes letters from its readers. All communications should be signed with the writer's name. Upon publication initials or pen names will be used if requested. Letters should be limited to 300 words.

Note on the Press Under the NRA.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If publishers accept the newspaper code with a licensing provision in it, or such a code should be imposed upon them, and they should afterward contest it in the courts, the code will be sustained by the Supreme Court of the United States upon the ground that the object of the code is to regulate employment, wages, hours of labor, &c., in newspaper plants, and not the restriction of their freedom of publication, to which there can be no serious objection if the code is limited strictly to those purposes.

But let us suppose, which is not unreasonable, that after the code is accepted or imposed, and been sustained by the court on the ground mentioned, the Federal authorities should revoke the license of a paper on the ostensible ground that it was not complying with the National Recovery Administration, but in reality because the paper had printed something displeasing to the Administration, or had refused to print some of its propaganda. It can be readily seen that should the publisher contest such action on the ground of infringement of his constitutional rights he would have a hard and expensive road to travel, and such a prospect, and the chance that he might lose his license and be ruined, would so intimidate the press of the country that none but the boldest would dare exercise their freedom under the Constitution.

The Supreme Court has decided many cases in which it has sustained acts of Congress as not infringing the freedom of the press, but it has never passed directly upon the question as a whole or defined the limits of its meaning. For example it has upheld an act of Congress excluding from the mails papers carrying lottery ads; and a law of Ohio creating a board of censors of motion picture films. It also sustained the espionage act of Congress of June 15, 1917, which was an extension of the original act drafted by me and enacted by Congress, holding that it did not infringe the freedom of the press in forbidding publication of military secrets, &c.

Cases on the questions discussed are very numerous, but are not cited, as they would encumber this letter and be of little interest to the public.

There is, however, one case which is so significant and so in harmony with the present tendency of judicial decisions to accord with the will of society as it may manifest itself from time to time that a quotation from it would seem to be warranted. In Coleman v. MacLennan, 98, Pac, 281, 283, 78. Kan. 711, the court said:

"Liberty of the press" is still an undefined term, and, like some other familiar phrases of constitutional law, must remain undefined. Certain boundaries are fairly discernible within which the liberty must be displayed, but precise rules can not be formulated in advance to govern its exercise on particular occasions. In the decision of controversies, the character, the organization, the needs, and the will of society at the present time must be given due consideration. * * *"

The present Supreme Court is noted for its progressiveness, and tendency to decide cases touching the public welfare more in the interest of society than on the technical grounds of individual right; and we can rest assured that it will go the limit in sustaining the emergency legislation of Congress designed to work the country out of the present dangerous depression.

ALEXANDER SIDNEY LANIER.

Truth About China.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Having spent over 30 years in China, I was amazed at the contents of a letter in your issue of December entitled "A Word From China."

It seems to put all the blame for the "crime" of the opium traffic on foreigners and the unequal treaties. One would conclude that China, herself, had absolutely no responsibility for the present conditions.

While it will not be denied that the gangs that smuggle drink and drugs where they may, do their best to engage in such work in China, yet Mr. Linebarger is surely not ignorant of the so extensive cultivation of the poppy in many parts of China, nor yet of the fact that this is the result of the direct action and coercion of Chinese officials. The Chinese Republic did a noble thing in wiping out both the cultivation of opium and the bootleggers in it. But today the pushing of the growing of the poppy is the work of officials, to fill their pockets, with no concern for the good of the people or of the country.

At the same time, these officials are much concerned that these facts be concealed from the world. Films showing the poppy fields in bloom, also the gathering of the juice, are destroyed. I have ample proof of this. Such pictures are forbidden as being detrimental to the republic. The unequal treaties are not the cause of the traffic, but the facts given above.

As a well-wisher of China, I believe that her best interests are not served by the misleading and exaggerated statements used in the article in question.

A FRIEND OF CHINA.

The Shopping Column.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It came to me very suddenly today how much I depend upon your shopping column. I am a very busy woman and do not have time to visit many shops in quest of a needed article.

Each morning I read this column very carefully and make a note of the things that are of interest to me. I then call your office and find the name of the merchant who handles the article in question. Nine times out of ten I am suited and save time for both myself and the sales girl by knowing where to go and what to ask for.

I want to tell you that no doubt there are many women who do as I do and I think it is a very wonderful service you are giving the public.

RUTH KINNEY.

Suggestion for the Banks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Banks require a minimum deposit of $100, or average of $100 during month, or charge 50 cents. Their customers have been hit hard enough with bank closures and failures, so why not try a minimum of $50 with a charge of 25 cents if still above $25 minimum, or 50 cents if under $25, until such time as things get much improved? They could restrict checks issued against it. The banks are not so busy now that their limited forces could not take care of possibly added paper work, and while some accounts are small now, they may become the good accounts of the future and bring other business to the bank. There always will be the accounts that are not and never will be desirable, but the banks can take care of them by reserving the right to close any account that for any reason is considered by them undersirable.

PRO BONO.

Appreciation of Editorials on Economics and Finance.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want to tell you how very much I enjoy the editorials in The Washington Post on economics and finance. I particularly like them because they state facts, giving authorities, and then lead one by lucid reasoning to logical conclusions. This treatment of the various subjects does not confuse, like most dissertations on finance, but allows the man in the street, by his own mental processes to understand what the economists have been rather futilely trying to teach him. Finance and economics are so much to the fore in these times, that any actual light on the subject made understandable to the mass of the people is of great common service.

J. P. STORY, Jr.

Referred to Mr. Hopkins.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What is the plan of the C. W. A. reemployment? Of the 4,000,000 men who are to be placed on the pay rolls, are they to receive a check each week, by mail, from the Government? Or does the local administration issue the pay checks drawn from local funds?

If the local administration refuses to register with the C. W. A. office in Washington the names of the applicants for employment, what steps can be taken? What can the starving people of this community do to be equal with the rest of the Nation? Your kindness will be greatly appreciated by the needy.

The Army's Morale Is Gone When the Soldiers No Longer Shave

By Robert Quillen.

If a poor boy destined to sink or swim by his own efforts should ask for the single rule most likely to bring him success, my answer would be: "Keep clean."

Cleanliness, as you have heard, is next to godliness; but it is more than that. It inspires godliness and also the right kind of worldliness.

If the boy has reached high school age without having learned the value of cleanliness, some friend should say to him: Regardless of obstacles and inconveniences, take a bath every morning—or a hot one at night and a cold one in the morning—and put on clean socks and underwear and a clean shirt. And if you can afford but one change of clothes do your own washing at night as working girls do.

You will answer that relatively few boys keep themselves so clean, and the answer to that is that relatively few boys ever amount to anything.

The consciousness of being clean encourages a wholesome self-respect and a decent personal dignity as nothing else can.

It stiffens the backbone and holds the chin up and develops the assurance and poise necessary to look the world in the eye as an equal.

But that is not the end of it. A boy conscious of clean clothes and a clean body is inclined to keep his mind equally clean.

He feels too decent to fill his mind with smut. He considers himself a gentleman and to the best of his ability he behaves as a gentleman should.

Does such behavior really increase his chance of success?

Well, one man of unusual ability, having earned promotion to the second biggest job in a national industry, lost his chance because of his table manners. And Senator Carter Glass defeated a candidate for a high appointive office because he had once seen the man pick his nose in public.

An unwashed hide and sour clothes are offensive to a critical world, and the critical part of the world is the part that can make or break you.

Along the Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

GOOD MORNING, ladies and gentlemen of the radio audience. The WHAM network this morning brings to you Miss Diebenkorfer who will again talk to you on "Our Government." Miss Diebenkorfer.

BARGERON.

Good morning, Friends of the Air: I want to talk to you this morning about the fascinating work your Government and mine is pursuing in the Tennessee Valley. Its every phase is so interesting, so absorbing that one enters upon it with zeal. The project, as a whole is, of course, so stupendous, so magnitudinous that it is awesome and likely to take one's breath.

But there are the many, many individual little plannings which we of the army of workers associated with the undertaking find simply divine. And every day opens up new avenues for us, avenues by which your Government and mine can make living so much better, just as the long studies of milk by that eminent scientist, Mr. Pasteur has made things so much better for the babies.

* * * *

FOR example, only the other day some of our agents were rummaging around in the mountains near the North Carolina line. They were not looking for anything in particular, but those of us who work for your Government and mine have so often found that just rummaging adds vastly to our store of knowledge.

Well, in this isolated country what should our agents run across but two leaders, or rather there were leaders in the raw. They would not have been apparent to the untrained eye, but to the trained eye of our agents their worth to humanity was instantly recognized. One of them had started a movement to build a school which all the youngsters for miles around could attend. It was not a school like Antioch College, of course, but the fact that it was a school, and that this man had started the movement, told our trained agents at once that he was a leader, or had the makings of a leader.

* * * *

WELL, it occurred to our agents immediately that these two primitive leaders could be utilized in the New Deal. So they were brought to Norris City and their potential leadership qualities measured. In another era we would have sent them to the Bureau of Standards at Washington for these measurements, but the system of assaying and weighing has become outmoded. The New Deal, my friends, wants to make its own measurements and not follow the methods that came over from the Old Order.

The tests were gratifying and you can bet that the two agents were congratulated by our chief, Dr. Morgan.

It is our plan now, or rawther the plan of your government and mine to keep these leaders here with the view of propagating an entire new set of leaders for the country. Our experience of the past few years has convinced all of us that the country needs new leaders, that the old ones have led us to the brink of disaster. As fast as these new leaders are developed we will ship them to various sections of the country to take over the leadership of those sections, whether in banking, or in the arts of whatever undertaking they may be best suited to lead in.

I know you are awaking the question: Suppose when these leaders get to New York and take over our finance they should revert to the type of our former leaders will not the Government's investment be lost?

We have prepared for that contingency. You see, we, that is, you Government and mine, intend to make over New York and our finance, to integrate it with the leaders, so to speak. Thank you.

Ladies and Gentlemen: You have just heard Miss Diebenkorfer on "Our Government." Educators desiring copies of Miss Diebenkorfer's speech to teach in their schools may have same by writing Station WHAM.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

One of the most entertaining and accomplished of living writers is Maj. Maurice Baring. He was born in 1874 and is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature in Great Britain.

His autobiography, "The Puppet Show of Memory," is charming and diverting from beginning to end. He was brought up in a beautiful home in England, amid the greatest luxury and refinement, received a splendid education at Eton and Cambridge, and was trained to enter the diplomatic service.

He was attached successively to the British Legation in Paris, Copenhagen, Rome. He was war correspondent in Manchuria, Russia, Constantinople; although well past the age, he enlisted in the World War, and did distinguished service, winning a major's commission.

But it is not because of any of these things that I am writing this article; it is because of the long list of novels, plays, poems, essays, autobiographical writings that flow from his pen. He speaks and reads Russian fluently; and has written many interesting criticisms of Dostoevsky and Chekhov. Among his novels I like best "Daphne Adeane" and "Comfortless Memory;" among his plays, "Diminutive Dramas;" among his memories of his life, the book mentioned above and "Lost Lectures."

U. S. to Offer Direct Credit For Farmers

Roosevelt Forms Electric Home, Farm Authority Corporation.

As a mortgage corporation the Home and Farm Authority, Inc., would be an eligible borrower from the RFC. It was revealed Monday that the lending power of the latter probably would be extended by as much as $1,000,000,000. Thus potentialities of a series of similar mortgage corporations could be far-reaching in their effect on increasing consumption.

Any extensive advancement of consumer credit might require far more than $1,000,000,000. At all events, if the RFC contents itself with seeking only $1,000,000,000 additional from the next Congress, it would bring the emergency recovery program budget to $3,475,000,000, running the total which Congress probably will be asked to authorize above $6,000,000,000.

Spurs Mass Consumption.

Establishment of the Electric Home and Farm Authority marked the first effort of the Roosevelt Administration to stimulate mass consumption with credit. Previously steps have been taken to subsidize consumption with outright relief and CWA grants, and through the AAA crop reduction benefit payments. In this general direction also were the recent PWA loans to railroads for the purchase of steel rails.

But this is the first time the Government has thrown open the coffers of its Treasury to enable the mass of consumers to purchase articles needed in their everyday lives. For the present the plan will be confined to the Tennessee Valley and to the purchase of electrical equipment, but if it is successful, the White House secretariat indicated, it will be extended.

Another aspect of the creation of the new corporation is that, having spent millions of dollars on development of Muscle Shoals, with $50,000,000 appropriated last winter for the Tennessee Valley project, the Government is forced to develop a need for the power it is generating. Thus it is necessary to finance electrification of farms now equipped only for oil lamps.

Officials Are Named.

President Roosevelt, in announcing the new corporation, tied it in with his Tennessee Valley program by naming as the agency's first officials Arthur E. Morgan, Harcourt A. Morgan and David E. Lilienthal, chairman, director and general counsel, respectively, of the Tennessee Valley Authority. As Government officers, they will subscribe for and hold the corporation's $1,000,000 capital stock.

Although the President in his executive order approached this aspect of his plans from a desire to promote industry and consumption under the NRA, Mr. Lilienthal placed emphasis on electrical development of the Tennessee Valley, contending the objective of the program was a wider use of electricity.

Mr. Lilienthal contended that for the purpose to be successful "there must be a broad-scale distribution of very low cost, standard quality electric-using appliances and concurrently a revision downward of electric rates." The new agency, he added, would be based on a cooperative program in which the Federal Government, electrical utilities, both publicly and privately owned, electrical manufacturers and dealers will participate.

He explained the Government's participation would include "assisting in financing consumers in purchasing standard electric equipment at very low prices, securing reductions in electrical rates by agreement with the utilities, publicly and privately owned, so as to make use of this equipment feasible for the average householder and farmer, and engaging in educational work and research to lower further the cost of electric equipment and make it better adapted to the needs of the average home and farm."

Mr. Lilienthal contended that the program "does not contemplate a disruption" of the regular dealer outlets for the sale of electrical appliances. On the other hand, he thought "the program will stimulate the dealers' general business."

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

The Once-Over

By H. I. Phillips.

WELCOME TO A FLYING HEROINE.

Welcome home, Anne Lindbergh! (The Colonel is welcome, too; but this is your trip.)

After all, he merely flew across the ocean alone.

You did something far more remarkable.

You flew for five months with your own husband.

• • • •

You set a world record, Anne.

Never before in world history did my wife make a five-month trip with her husband without shaking him at some point in order to have her own way.

Par for the experience is about five days.

• • • •

Before this trip you were known as the wife of Charlie Lindbergh, the first man to hop the ocean alone.

From now on the Colonel will be known as the husband of Anne Lindbergh, a woman who let her husband finish a trip according to his original plans.

• • • •

Charlie's Lone Eagle flight looks pretty soft now in comparison with yours, Anne.

He had to keep flying.

You could have quit any time.

• • • •

He was uncomfortable on his famous hop only a day or so.

You have been uncomfortable all summer and part of the winter.

All he had to eat on that 1927 trip was a sandwich and a cup of coffee.

You've had to stand the bad cooking of a dozen countries.

When he did get around to a square meal it was in Paris.

With you it was a matter of take it or let it alone.

There was no time on his trip when he could have stopped to do a little shopping.

There must have been a thousand times on your trip when you could have had a grand time buying things, looking in department store windows, trying the native ice cream sodas and dropping into a movie house.

• • • •

Charlie loves those flying togs.

You're not crazy about them.

• • • •

You don't.

• • • •

Charlie isn't very sociable; he doesn't mind being away from people.

You like folks.

Not having a chance to play bridge for five months is no punishment for him.

Being a woman, you must have suffered going all that time without bidding five spades—and making it!

• • • •

Again welcome home, Anne Lindbergh, extraordinary woman!

No other woman ever lived who could take that trip with her husband and return still on speaking terms with him.

During the entire five months you never made him turn around and go back because you had forgotten your handbag!

AND ALL EXPENSES PAID.

We know a man who wanted to spend a week or ten days in Washington and so he accepted a position in the Brain Trust.

Maj. Gen. O'Ryan served through the World War, but in accepting the police commissionership of New York he proves that he hasn't yet seen trouble enough for one man.

All similes: As unreal as a gang of perspiring workmen erecting a Christmas tree on the grounds of a Florida hotel at high noon.

Pope Is Planning Christmas Speech

College of Cardinals to Be Assembled.

Vatican City, Dec. 19 (AP).—Pope Pius is considering making a Christmas address—a plea for peace—before the full College of Cardinals, at midnight Saturday (6 p. m., Eastern standard time, Saturday).

The speech probably will be made in Italian and delivered in the consistory hall.

Prelates said the Pope had not yet made up his mind whether his speech would be broadcast by radio, but that if he decided in favor of such a broadcast it would be made on an international hook-up.

Detroit Fears Another Toolmakers' Strike

Detroit, Dec. 19 (AP).—The Detroit News today says another strike of tool and die makers is threatened here, and that a vote is being taken among the 15,000 members of the Mechanics' Educational Society of America.

The paper says officials of the society would neither confirm nor deny that a strike vote, with Sunday work and overtime in dispute, has been taken.

Just Folks.

Old Age.

Old age is bought with trouble and with care.
Men pay with heartaches for their silver hair.
One can not reach to 70 without pain,
There's much to suffer length of life to gain.
Who meets a gray-beard smiling as he goes,
Looks upon one acquainted well with woes.

Men can not reap so full a sheaf of years
Without full knowledge of grief's bitter tears.
Ere he can come to Age he first must bear
Time's ever-changing round of fretful care,
Must cope with disappointment and with doubt;
Lose what he gains and keep his courage stout.

I know this care which frets me now must pass.
Winter will leave and spring renew the grass.
Some smiling old man sitting in his chair
Has borne such burdens as are mine to bear,
And still he finds life good, and so shall I

Rail Union Head Dies.

Salt Lake City, Dec. 19 (AP).—Charles Edward Sullivan, 64, for the last six years general chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, died in Shafter, Nev., of a heart attack.

D. C. Lawyer's Son Wins Fame As Scientific Leader at 27

Dr. E. S. Lamar, Cobuilder of Research Furnace, Rockville Graduate.

DR. EDWARD L. LAMAR.

One of the Nation's most brilliant young scientists, codesigner of a tiny electric furnace capable of producing a heat exceeding anything known on the surface of the sun—that is the distinction achieved at the age of 27 years by Dr. Edward Stonestreet Lamar, of Rockville, Md.

Dr. Lamar is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Lamar, of Rockville. Mr. Lamar is an attorney in the Washington Building.

Ten years ago Dr. Lamar was president of the graduating class at Montgomery County High School, Rockville. This week at Cambridge, Mass., was announced discovery by Dr. Lamar and two colleagues at Massachusetts Institute of Technology of a new source of protons, or heavy particles of electricity for bombarding the nuclei of atoms—a small glass vacuum tube which produces hot spots of thousands of degrees.

After leaving Montgomery County High School, Dr. Lamar attended Washington and Lee University at Lexington, Va., for two years, winning a scholarship in his first year. He received his A. B. and M. A. degree while serving as instructor in physics at George Washington University in 1927-28.

For a year and a half, Dr. Lamar did research work in the U. S. Fixed Nitrogen Laboratory here, then went to Princeton University on a fellowship. There he studied for two years under Dr. Karl T. Compton before obtaining his doctorate. He left Princeton for a summer in the research laboratories of the General Electric Corporation at Schenectady, N. Y., before going to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology as assistant physicist.

Bank Bandits Get $2,200.

Hot Springs, N. C., Dec. 19 (AP).—Four bandits held up the Citizens Bank here today, shut two officials and a customer in a vault and then escaped with $2,200 after exchanging shots with the bank cashier.

Reich Launches Export Campaign

Warning Issued Against Tariff Barriers.

Berlin, Dec. 19 (AP).—A campaign to revive Germany's dwindling exports was inaugurated today by the German Foreign Trade Council in its first session.

Kurt Schmitt, federal minister of economics, extended a bid to other nations and declared that "the German government is prepared to cooperate closely with all countries and to promote trade with those nations which do not shut us out by protective measures."

The fact that the Reichsbank was compelled yesterday to reduce its transfer quota on loan payments from 50 to 30 per cent was said to be sufficient proof of a close relationship between debts and exports.

Bilbo's Baggage Stolen When Rain Stalls Auto

Greenville, Miss., Dec. 19 (AP).—Former Gov. Theo G. Bilbo of Mississippi, now connected with the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in Washington, lost two suit cases and most of his traveling wardrobe when he stopped here over night on his way to his home in Poplarville, Miss.

He arrived in his car in a downpour of rain and went to the home of friends. The luggage was stolen from the automobile during his visit.

Duke Proposes Congressional Review of Case

Lawyer in Ouster Action Considers Appeal to Legislators.

Intimation that he would seek Congressional review of disbarment proceedings now under way against him in District Supreme Court was given yesterday by Jesse C. Duke, Washington attorney.

He made the intimation following a colloquy between himself and Chief Justice A. A. Wheat, who sought to shorten the proceedings by eliminating duplication of testimony.

"I'm getting this for the record," Duke said. "I'm afraid this isn't the end of this record (referreing to the transcript of the disbarment proceedings) as far as Congress is concerned."

Refrain From Action.

The three justices sitting in the case conferred and then refrained from taking any action. One of the justices, however, requested the shorthand reporter to write for him the passage "relating to Congress" as soon as possible.

Capt. Harold W. Orcutt, assistant United States attorney, who prosecuted a rum ring conspiracy case from which arose the present trial, occupied the stand all day yesterday. He had previously, on Monday, been on the stand five hours.

Queried as to omission of certain exceptions taken by attorneys at the rum trial from the bill of exceptions which the court of appeals was asked to pass upon in review, Capt. Orcutt replied that in his opinion all of the omissions were proper because of immateriality or failure to note properly the exception by the appealing defendants.

Bill of Exceptions Cited.

Charges against Duke arose when he stated that Trial Justice F. D. Letts and United States Attorney Leo A. Rover had deliberately sent to the Court of Appeals a "diluted, deleted, incomplete, inaccurate and false" bill of exceptions. He also claimed both had "obstructed justice."

Duke lost his appeal in the Court of Appeals and also in the United States Supreme Court.

Bank Receiver Files 7 Suits

Robert F. Baldwin, receiver of the Commercial National Bank, yesterday in District Supreme Court filed seven suits, two based upon stock assessments and five on unpaid promissory notes.

Mr. Baldwin asked $2,000 from Betty B. Horn, 1373 Jefferson street northwest, who about two month before the bank closed owned 20 shares of stock which she sold. Catherine F. Bode, 1221 L street northwest, was sued as the owner of 15 shares. She was assessed for $1,500.

Those named in suits on notes were Peter A. Drury, Twenty-fifth and G streets northwest, $14,000; James Kerr, 2136 Leroy place northwest, $7,000; Joseph J. Moebs and E. A. Moebs, Dupont Circle Building, $10,554; Bernard Chessin, 1508 Connecticut avenue northwest, $1,772; William H. Johnston, 3515 New Hampshire avenue northwest, $2,218, and William H., and Harriett L. Johnston, also of the New Hampshire avenue address, $1,500.

Lowdermilk Gets Soil Service Post

Erosion Authority Named Vice-Director.

Appointment of Dr. Walter C. Lowdermilk as vice director of the Soil Erosion Service of the Department of the Interior was announced yesterday by Secretary Ickes.

Dr. Lowdermilk is regarded as an eminent authority on erosion, and made the study which demonstrated the relation between vegetable matter on the ground in forests, and soil and water conservation. During research on famine in China, Dr. Lowdermilk discovered the connection between timber cutting, consequent erosion, and visitation of famines.

By Morgan Baker
(Trade-mark Applied For)

TAKING their grievances before Congress, members of the Civil Service Reinstatement League yesterday began mailing letters to each Senator and Representative.

BAKER.

"In July," the letters relate, "President Roosevelt stated that he had asked the heads of Government agencies to give preference in filling all new positions to those Government employes dismissed under the economy act. This verbal order was not made compulsory and has not been carried out.

"Today in Washington some 3,700 dismissed Government workers are registered at the Civil Service Commission as 'looking for work.' * * * No real attempt has been made to reemploy these people. Instead of transferring or rehiring dismissed and furloughed Civil Service employes, the new recovery agencies created without Civil Service control have in most cases been manned by patronage, without regard to merit.

"Instead of curtailing the number of dismissals or hiring an adequate working force * * * the personnel is kept small by a system of speed-up and overtime work."

The league letters vigorously attack the pay cuts and ask the members of Congress to press legislation on this program:

1. Reinstate dismissed Civil Service employes.
2. Stop wholesale dismissals.
3. Restoration of pay.
4. Repeal of the marital clause, section 213, economy act.
5. Maintain the merit system.

Latest labor groups promising to attend the general conference under auspices of the league are the Central Labor Union and the veterans' preference committee.

ARNOLD KRUCKMAN.

THIRTY years ago Arnold Kruckman, Tennessee Valley Authority, lay on the sands at Kitty Hawk, N. C., and watched the Wright brothers make the first flight in a heavier-than-air machine. Being the only newspaperman on the scene, he jubilantly rushed to a telegraph office and wired in a 2,000 word story—a clean scoop—to his New York World. There were other reporters on the Kitty Hawk assignment, but they had grown weary of days and days of waiting and had gone to a neighboring town.

Mr. Kruckman was amazed the next day when the World failed to carry his story. He queried New York.

"We don't believe it," was the reply.

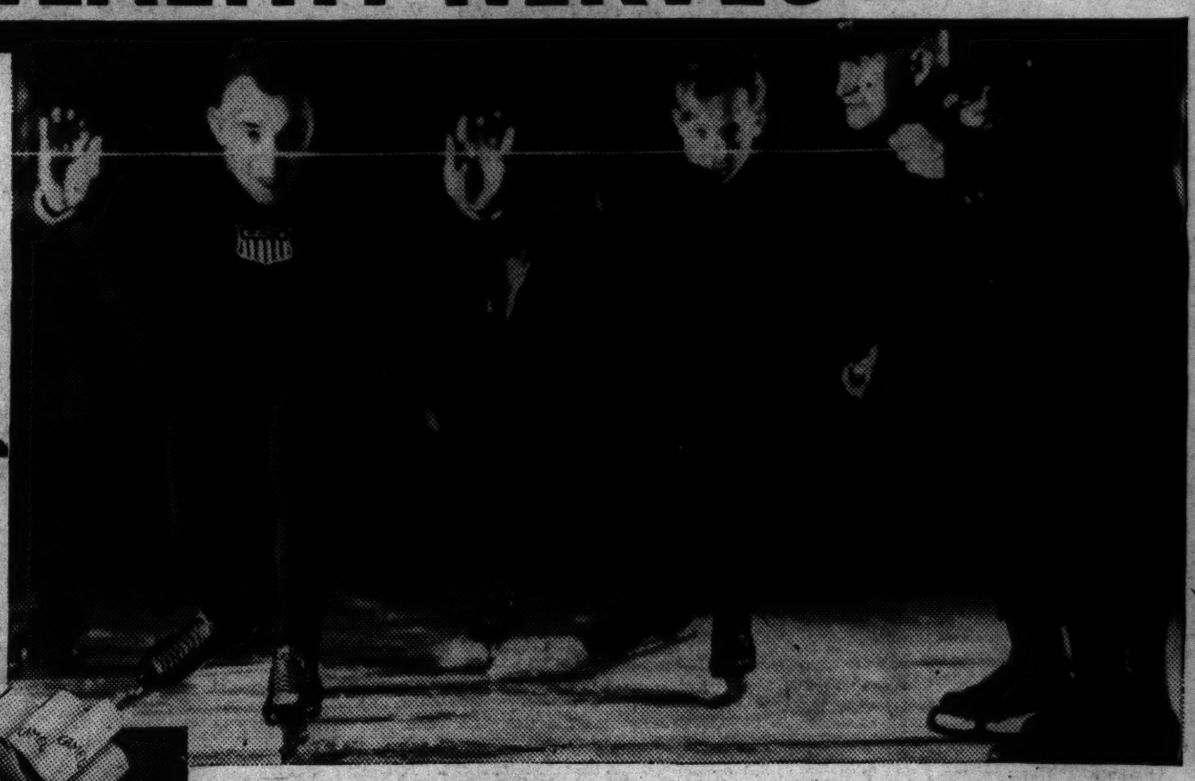
IRVING JAFFEE

(At Right)—Again Jaffee makes a thrilling finish as he speeds to victory! Winner of 1,000 medals and trophies, including three Olympic Skating Championships, Jaffee has brought the highest skating honors to the U.S.A. Asked recently if he was a steady smoker, Jaffee said, "Yes—but that goes for Camels only. I have to keep my wind, you know, and healthy nerves."



A MATCHLESS BLEND

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

You've often seen his name and picture in the papers—Jaffee, the city-bred boy from the U.S.A. who beat the best that Europe had to offer, and became the skating champion of the world! Speaking of speed skating and cigarettes, Jaffee says: "It takes healthy nerves and plenty of wind to be an Olympic skating champion. I find that Camels, because of their costlier tobaccos, are mild and likable in taste. And, what is even more important to a champion athlete, they never upset the nerves."

Change to Camels and note the difference in your nerves... in the pleasure you get from smoking! Camels are milder... have a better taste. They never upset your nerves. Begin today!

CAMEL'S COSTLIER TOBACCOS

NEVER GET ON YOUR NERVES... NEVER TIRE YOUR TASTE

Payrolls, Jobs Drop in Month Over Nation

Labor Department Lists First Such Decline Since March.

A slightly off-tune note was struck in recovery progress yesterday when a Department of Labor report revealed that between October 15 and November 15, employment and pay rolls fell off for the first time since March.

Manufacturing employment dropped 3.5 per cent, the monthly compilation showed, and payrolls declined 6.2 per cent.

Officials expressed no alarm over the showing, however, and Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, asserted the decline was not unexpected. She brought forward figures which showed, despite the drop, that November totals still were 20 per cent ahead of November, 1932, in employment and 30 per cent ahead in payrolls.

Miss Perkins said the rise in employment since March has been steady, and that her office expected a drop along in September or October. It failed to materialize, and developed only in the October-November period, a period which for the last 10 years has shown a normal drop, with the exception of 1925, she explained.

2,500,000 Net Gain.

The loss in manufacturing employment was estimated at 234,000, and 53,000 additional were estimated to have been put out of work in nonmanufacturing industries. The decline, Miss Perkins said, left a net of 2,500,000 returned to regular jobs since March.

A "considerable portion" of the employment decline was attributed by the Labor Department to a falling off of manufacturing. Some of the decline was treated as seasonal.

The report showed much to be entered on the credit side of the employment ledger, however. Comparison of March and November indices showed a gain of 29.6 per cent in employment in the eight-month period, while November pay rolls were 50.6 per cent ahead of the March figures.

These percentage gains would indicate the increase in actual number of workers in manufacturing industries over this interval would approximate 1,460,000 workers and that weekly pay rolls in November were $37,100,000 greater than in March," the report said.

Largest Drop In Decade.

The 3.5 per cent employment drop was the largest for the October-November period in 10 years with the exception of 1925, which showed a gain, and 1929, which had the same fall-off. Only two, tobacco and machinery groups of the 14 groups into which manufacturing is classified showed a gain in employment.

Leathers led the decline with a fall-off of 11.1 per cent. The iron and steel group had a 3.1 per cent decrease and iron and steel industry fell off 3.3 per cent.

On the brighter side, Miss Perkins pointed to upturns in heavy industries, despite falling off of employment within this group. Steel and iron forgings, she said, showed gains; agricultural implements were up 7.2 per cent; machine tools rose 5.7; engine and tractor manufacturing increased 5.5, and typewriters were up 8.3 per cent. Other lines she reported as showing gains were cigar and cigarette manufacturing, book and job printing, newspapers, glass and chemicals. Retail trade she reported as 2.2 per cent up.

Private building construction declined 7.1 per cent in the October-November period, the report showed, but public works activities were getting well under way with 250,000 persons directly employed on such projects.

'Fine Trip, But My Nose Is Cold,' Anne Comments at Landing

Slips Away for Coffee as Reporters Cluster Around Lindy.

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—Anne Lindbergh smiled shyly as she climbed out of their seaplane today, after her famous husband, ending a flight of almost 30,000 miles and a five months' job as navigator and radio operator.

She was concerned mostly over a very cold nose, and wanted, first of all, something hot to drink.

Reporters flocked around Lindbergh, but almost no one paid any attention to the small, girlish figure in riding breeches and wooly white-hooded dickey—the sort of garment one sees on pictures of Arctic explorers. Her eyes shone, her face was ruddy with health, and she looked as fresh as though she were beginning, not ending her flight.

Near Mrs. Lindbergh was just one young man, a reporter, and she took his arm as she picked her way over a grimy wooden pier.

Surprised By Reception.

"You know, we really didn't expect all this reception here," she said. The Lindberghs had flown over North Beach Airport and then swooped away because of a slightly larger "reception." She turned to look at her husband, who was following with reporters clustered around him, and murmured:

"Oh, perhaps I'd better not wait for him."

Had she had a good trip?

"Yes, we had a lovely time all right, but right now my nose is cold."

She spoke with reason, for the gray air was chilly, and a damp wind blew in from Flushing Bay. The ground was wet and muddy. Anne Lindbergh put both hands, almost hidden in the long sleeves of her flying costume, over her face.

"I hope they've got something hot to drink," she went on. A young woman came toward them, and Mrs. Lindbergh greeted her joyfully.

The young woman was Miss Edna Taylor, secretary to George Post, vice president of the Edo Aircraft Corporation. She led the shivering Anne into the company's office and to an upstairs room. Here both the fliers drank coffee.

Lunch Wagon Sends Coffee.

Miss Taylor was just as talkative about the coffee-drinking party afterward as Mrs. Lindbergh had been about the trip. No, said the secretary, Mrs. Lindbergh hadn't said anything at all. She seemed cold and glad to get to the coffee, which had been brought in from a lunch wagon across the road.

Like her husband, Anne begged to be excused from any interview. But she couldn't escape a small crowd. By this time the residents of College Point knew that the Lindberghs had landed there, and women with babies, small boys, and elderly gentlemen were mixed with the newsreel cameras and police cars in the muddy road.

Anne was eager to see her small son, Jon, but she did not stop to call the home at Englewood, N. J., where he is being cared for by her mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow. She had put in a long-distance call to inquire about him when the plane reached Miami.

Lindy's Log

Notable Flight Took Pair to Varied Climes.

(Associated Press.)

The objective:

The scenes:

Four continents from the dancing Northern Lights to the crawling Congo's valley; 31 countries and colonies visited; 41 stops made, distance traveled, more than 28,000 miles.

The climax:

The time:

One hundred and sixty-four days. Flying time, more than 200 hours.

The story:

July 9—Off from New York for North Haven, Me.—fog—down at South Warren, Me.

July 11—Over the forest primeval to Nova Scotia.

July 12—Away from Halifax, over the Labrador fog banks to St. John's.

July 22—Up to Greenland—the Vikings' trail—the stern shore of Norsemen's haven.

July 31-August 12—Tours of the North—the clustered islands of the ice cap.

August 26—Shetland Islands, where the ponies came from, to staid Copenhagen, the city of bicycles.

September 4, 20, 22—Stockholm—the Venice of the North, Finland, Leningrad—the winter playgrounds of the Tsars.

September 25-October 25—Moscow—the fjords of Norway—the sticky fogs of England—the Emerald Isle of Erin—the high road to Scotland.

October 27—Paris.

November 2-November 27—Holland—the Zuider Zee—Switzerland and the Alps—Spain and the Moorish castles—Portugal and the blue bay of Lisbon—the Azores—the Canaries—down the windward shore of Africa.

November 30-December 14—Gambia and the treacherous river at Bathurst—the moonlight take-off for Brazil—over the middle passage of the old slavers—Brazil and the voyage up the Amazon—over the fastness of the Brazilian swamps—Trinidad—Puerto Rico.

December 17—over the Spanish Main—the golden isles of Guala—down at venerable Charleston—the Gullah lands.

Lindys Arrive Home, Wearied By Air Voyage

"We consider the trip a success, and we believe our work has been accomplished."

"Believe me," said Lindbergh, his face broad in the famous grin and red with cold, "we're glad to be back."

And Anne, climbing out of the cockpit behind her husband, jumped to the dock beside him and said:

"I know I'm glad to be back."

Then to Englewood they went.

Their last hop was from Charleston, S. C. Crowds recognized the ship roaring over New Jersey. Racing over Teterboro airport, a big plane with photographers arose to come alongside, and the colonel began a game of tag with his pursuers.

The big plane was faster than the Lindberghs' but the colonel shot his plane into a haze to the west and a few minutes later was over the teeming East River.

Ships strained their whistle cords and blasted salutes. New York watched the sky. The trim air yacht circled low over the stream and darted for Flushing Bay.

The Lindberghs saw the crowd at Curtis Airport and dropping down about a half a mile off shore. The colonel taxied his ship to a flat. Mrs. Lindbergh smiled at the crowd on the beach. Lindbergh moored his plane and the couple stepped ashore.

So wholly unprepared was the company for the Lindberghs arrival at that particular landing place that it was necessary to rent an automobile to take them home.

The couple covered the last leg of their voyage, 640 miles, in three minutes less than six hours.

The flight of the Lindberghs was characterized by precise navigation, sudden decisions to visit this spot or that, extensive surveys, frequent fogs and bad weather and a technical exactness that conquered the extremes of climate.

Wish to Travel Satisfied.

One of those daring trips took them almost to the eightieth parallel, up to the Clavering Island, on the northeast Greenland Coast and thence to Iceland and Copenhagen.

After the famous flight from New York-to-Paris in 1927, Lindbergh had wanted to journey about Europe. But arrangements for his return home aboard a U. S. cruiser cut short these plans.

This time, he and his wife traveled a-plenty.

Out of Copenhagen, the couple slipped for a visit to Sweden, to the farm where Lindbergh's grandfather lived. Two quiet weeks they spent here.

Aged Man Revealed As Southern Hero

Nomad, 87, Identified as Jeb Stuart Trooper.

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 19 (Special).—An aged man picked up from the highway in an exhausted condition and brought to the Salvation Army home here has been identified by Major Bouterse as B. F. Berry, a member of Gen. Jeb. Stuart's famous Cavalry troops during the War Between the States and a holder of the Confederate Cross of Honor.

Thomas N. Read, attorney of Hinton, W. Va., identified Berry.

Berry, his condition improved since his stay at the Salvation Army, home, recalled raids he made with Stuart through this section, and told of participating in the Battle of Antietam. He was born in Randolph County, W. Va., 87 years ago.

Marine Band to Hear Own Music at Movie

A program of Department of Agriculture sound motion pictures will be presented this evening at the Marine Barracks following the regular concert of the Marine Band Orchestra. Music for the films was supplied by the orchestra under the direction of Capt. Taylor Branson.

The films include a study of American roads and scenic pictures of the forest service.

Jewish Students Face Loss of Citizenship

Berlin, Dec. 19 (AP).—An order of the Prussian minister of education today decreed that Jewish medical students in Prussian universities must give up their German citizenship if they want a doctor's degree.

The only other course open to them is to change their status to that of resident foreigners.

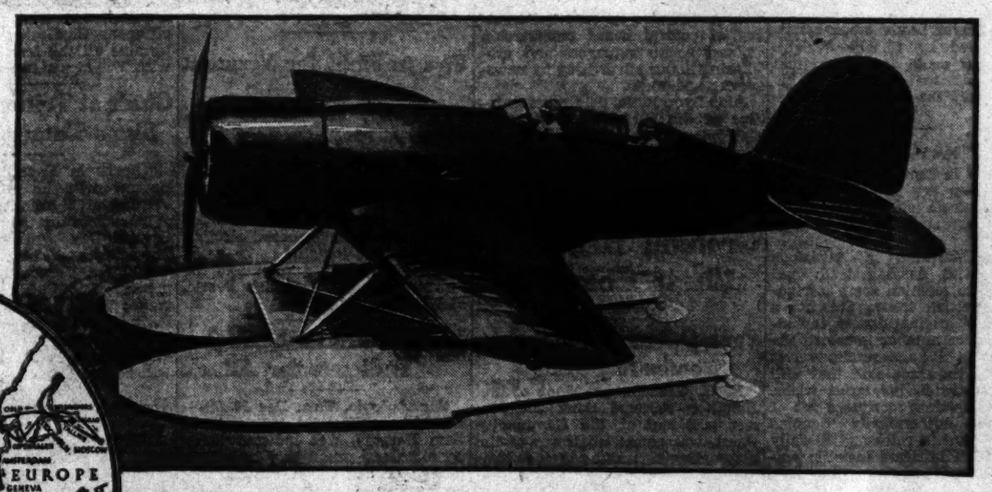
WELCOME HOME
COL. AND MRS. LINDBERGH



We heartily welcome Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh on their return home to the United States. Covering 30,000 miles over Labrador, Greenland, Europe, Africa and South America, including east and west crossings of the Atlantic Ocean in temperatures ranging from sub-Arctic cold to the intense heat of the tropics—they skillfully conquered distance and weather alike.

Powered by a 715-horsepower Wright Cyclone Engine, a Lockheed Sirius Monoplane carried the Lindberghs all the way. What is more, their Wright Cyclone functioned perfectly throughout the entire flight—a proud performance.

Wright Engines and Colonel Lindbergh have made history together. A 220-horsepower Wright Whirlwind carried him in the "Spirit of St. Louis" to Paris on his first magnificent flight across the Atlantic. A 575-horsepower Wright Cyclone bore the Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh from Washington, D. C. over the icy wastes of Northern Canada and Alaska to Japan and China. And a 715-horsepower Wright Cyclone served them well on this latest and longest journey.

Colonel Lindbergh is technical advisor to Pan American Airways System and Transcontinental & Western Air, two of the world's largest transport systems. From this flight, made in the interest of Pan American Airways System, he brings back technical data and information of the greatest importance to the program for an American trans-Atlantic air service.

We again salute the skill of Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh.

Varied Talent Lures Many to Night Resorts

Supper Clubs Compete for Pre-Christmas Favor With New Shows.

Frank Parrish's Camel, which is billed as coming "direct from the Sahara Desert," furnishes the comedy on this week's bill at the Shoreham Hotel supper dances. This is the first time this original act has ever been seen in Washington. The star headliner for the week is Robert Rhodes, late featured singer in "Music in the Air," "Rose Marie," "My Maryland" and many other stage productions.

Julie Gilbert, dancer extraordinary, who was formerly with Roxy and His Gang, and who has appeared in all the leading theaters in the country, shares dancing honors with the Dancing Leyla. Alma and Rowland a sensational dance team fresh from Broadway are also on the bill.

Heigh-Ho Now Booking.

New Year's and the rapidly approaching holiday season are being talked about at the Heigh-Ho Club, up Connecticut avenue way.

Pete Macias has arranged a special program of entertainment to herald the advent of 1934.

Ramon already can show a lengthy list of reservations for what promises to be the largest night of celebration in the Capital's recent history. One party took a table only a few days after the Heigh-Ho opened in early October.

Current Bill.

Drew and Winthrop, continental dance team, are the headliners on the entertainment side this week. "Tony and His Accordion," a lad who seems to be out for a longevity record with Maestro Pete, continues on, of course. The talented performing members of the band have also worked out a number of new specialties.

For those who do not go in for so much dancing, the original Heigh-Ho idea of continuous music, both modern and not so modern, has a distinctive appeal.

Club Michel Sets Pace.

Most night clubs gain their patronage because of their shows . . . their music . . . or their food . . . but at the Club Michel, it seems, each of these is in capable hands.

What more agreeable entertainers or more striking personalities are there than "Skin" Young and Charlie Wright? These two boys are just about the cleverest in the business, and are largely responsible for the "prosperity wave" that is flooding the Club Michel. Charlie with his baton, accordion and voice could entertain for hours, while "Skin" Young could never stop his singing and impersonations, if it weren't for "the child labor law."

Wright and Young, this week, Walter Von Herbulis has surrounded with another bevy of Broadway artists. First honors rightfully belong to Marion Wilkins and Jack Meyers, whose famous "Bolero" and "St. Louis Blues" numbers are original and different presentations. Then there is attractive Nina Allen, whom every Washingtonian should know, for Miss Allen is one of the home-town products who made good on Broadway and "Ru de la Paiz." Victoria Regal also has some novel dancing to present to Michel patrons.

A Touch of Old Spain.

Morita Martinez, a vivacious senorita with flashing teeth and eyes, not to mention some intriguing Maewestish tricks, presents a sequence of original dances, including a toreador number in which she manipulates a huge scarlet velvet capa with the same skill that Will Rogers shows in his lariat tricks. Senorita Martinez' costumes are of the rich, authentically Spanish type, brilliant in color and literally loaded with intricate metallic embroideries.

Brusiloff's Specialists.

Leon Brusiloff's orchestra is developing new entertainment qualities every day. "Gay" Schaeffer and Ray Donahue are a pair of singers who would grace any show. "Gay" is the slightly maniacal blonde who goes in for such nutty songs as "Reefer Man," while Ray is the nice-looking lad with the good voice who sings "straight."

There are two floor shows nightly, one at 8 o'clock and the other beginning at midnight. Brusiloff dance music is featured in both, while luncheon music is presented by the Arsenio Ralon trio.

Hi-De-Ho From Harlem.

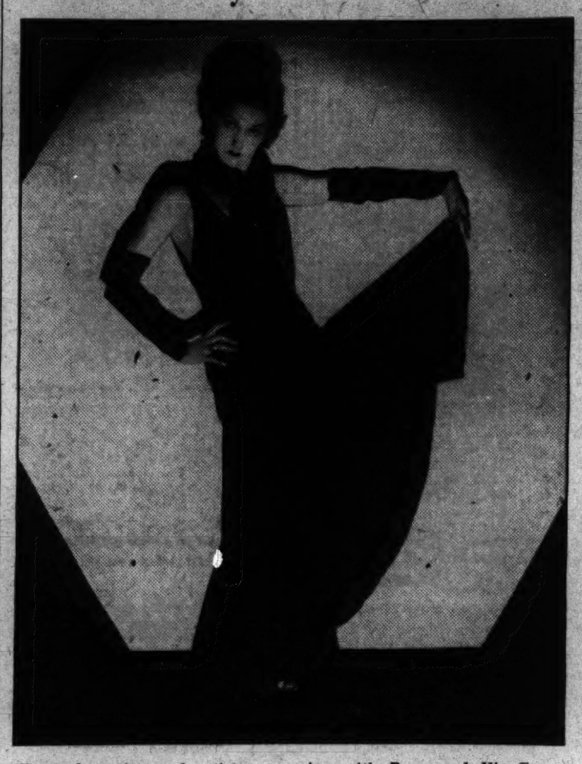
Harlem hi-de-ho finds its best expression at Washington's Cotton Club, the midnight-and-later dance spot for folks who like to stay up late and go places.

After finishing up an earlier show at the Lincoln Theater, the big Cotton Club floor ensemble comes to the Tenth and U street club to spend the rest of the evening until it is literally morning. They put on three shows, one at midnight, another at 2 a. m. and another at around 3:30 a. m.

The chief musical attraction is Duke Eglin's 13-piece orchestra with its full harmony section. The Elgin orchestra is pronounced one of the star radio units presenting music from Washington. While the Eglin orchestra can play the sweetest of "sweet music," it goes in more strongly for Harlem harmony.

The Cotton Club floor show is the largest in the capital. It is headed by Bobby Chapman, master of ceremonies, and "Gypsy" West a soprano, who dances as well as she sings. There are an added trio of speedy tap dances, both men and girls, and an extremely good-looking and rhythmic chorus.

One of Roxy's Gifted Graduates



Formerly a featured artiste appearing with Roxy and His Gang, and a familiar figure on the foremost of our theater stages, Julie Gilbert, "dancer extraordinary," has transferred her terpsichorean gifts to the entertainment of those who enjoy diversion as they dine. Miss Gilbert is currently an important feature of the floor show being presented at the Shoreham Supper Club.

Mystery Bullet Wounds Marine

Expressing determination to find the source of the bullet that shattered the windshield of a Navy mail truck in Potomac Park last night, postal inspectors, District and park police continued an intensive inquiry last night.

Possibility that the shot, which wounded Marine Private Leo Ensminger, guard on the truck, may have been intended for some other objective was expressed by investigators.

The truck was en route from the navy yard to the Navy Department. Officials said nothing of unusual value was being hauled by the vehicle.

While police were told of a gun being fired in the vicinity of Columbia Island, in the Potomac, they were inclined to discount any bullet having traveled unobstructed as far as the Ellipse—where the missive hit the truck.

Rum Plan Topic At Chevy Chase

Civic Association to Hear NRA Field Worker.

Liquor control plans will be considered by members of the Citizens' Association of Chevy Chase at 8 p. m. today in the E. V. Brown School.

In the recent hearing held by District Commissioners, the executive committee of the association opposed the selling of liquor in the area represented by the organization, but it also opposed the limiting of control board membership to real estate taxpayers and prohibiting liquor advertising by newspapers and radio.

Aldo Lyon Raffa, field representative of the NRA and lecturer at Georgetown University, will address the meeting on the part played by the consumer in the recovery program. Following his address there will be open discussion.

Graham Heads Chest Committee

Four Others Appointed to Nominating Group.

E. C. Graham, president of the Hamilton National Bank and former president of the Community Chest, was named chairman of the nominating committee of the Community Chest at a meeting of the Chest executive committee yesterday. Also on the committee are Mrs. C. C. Glover, jr., Allen Pope, Morris Cafritz and Dr. John R. Hawkins.

This group will nominate members of the board of trustees who will be elected at the annual meeting set for 8 a. m. Monday, January 22, in the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Women's Supervisor Quits in CWA Dispute

The resignation of Miss Mary E. Stocking as supervisor of work projects for women under the emergency relief bureau was accepted yesterday within a few hours after it was submitted.

Miss Stocking's resignation was the culmination of a dispute with Capt. Howard F. Clark, executive officer of the District Civil Works Administration. Her appointment was made December 5. The job of assigning women to C. W. A. work is now in the hands of Miss Eloise Topley.

A Downy Growth On His Upper Lip Costs Just $12.83

Seattle, Dec. 19 (AP).—Growing a mustache cost Keith A. Pelkey, truck driver, $12.83 and attorney's fees.

Answering a suit on a promissory note in justice court, Pelkey said he was not of legal age when he signed the note, hence could not be held responsible.

The plaintiff's attorney said Pelkey had misrepresented his age. He pointed to Pelkey's mustache.

"I've been trying to raise a mustache for 48 years," the lawyer said, "and I haven't succeeded yet."

Kiwanis Carolers Sing at Hospitals

Club President-Elect Is Serenaded.

Later they visited the homes of their president-elect, Lewis T. Breuninger and Dr. Custis Lee Hall. The group was composed of William R. Schmucker, George A. Small, Herman F. Carl, Charles W. Pimper, George H. Winslow, James B. Edmunds, William N. Freeman and Edwin F. Hill.

Tomorrow night they will visit the Home for Incurables and Gallinger Hospital.

Educator Leads Congress Race

Five in Fight for Vermont Seat in House.

Montpelier, Vt., Dec. 19 (AP).—Charles A. Plumley, retiring president of Norwich University, took the lead in the five-cornered fight for the Republican nomination for U. S. Representative as 89 out of 248 towns in Vermont's special election were recorded tonight.

Plumley had 6,283 votes and his nearest opponent, Jeremiah Evarts, of Windsor, had 4,719.

Lieut. John H. Murrel Indicted for Attack

San Antonio, Tex., Dec 19 (AP).—Lieut. John Herhold Murrel, Fort Sam Houston, was indicted today by a Federal grand jury here on a charge of assault on the military reservation October 22. Blanche Ralls, twice a divorcee, was the alleged victim.

The name of the alleged victim of the attack in the original charge filed before United States Commissioner Paul A. Lockhart was simply "Blanche Ralls," and in the indictment today it is "Blanche Ralls Boisclair."

D. C. Grocers Organize First Code Authority

Officers Elected to Control Administration of NRA Pact.

Wholesale and retail grocery trade leaders here announced the establishment yesterday of the District of Columbia food code authority to administer food and grocery codes after they are signed by the President.

E. G. Yonker, president of the Sanitary and Piggly-Wiggly Co., was elected chairman, and M. H. Mazo, of Mazo-Lerch Co., and president of the District of Columbia Wholesale Grocers Association, was elected secretary. The office of treasurer was left vacant until the council has studied the question of financing with the National code authority, which meets here next Wednesday.

The local authority is the first established under the grocery codes, recently transferred from the A. A. A. to the NRA.

C. H. Jansen, secretary manager of the National Association of Retail Grocers, and chairman of the National food and grocery code authority, yesterday said.

"Establishment of the District of Columbia code authority is the first important step in the organization of the State and local administrative authorities, which will bear the burden of administration of this code. The food and grocery trade affects every home, and every man, woman and child in this country."

Besides Mr. Jansen, Mr. Yonker and Mr. Mazo, the meeting was attended by Isaac Jacobson, president of the District Grocery Stores; Morris Kraft, president, United Food Stores; John Brayshaw, president of the District of Columbia Retail Grocers Association; F. A. Dodge, secretary of the District of Columbia Retail Grocers Association; John Slack, manager of Magruder's; B. D. Silliman, Washington representative of the Food and Grocery Chain Stores of America, and Hector Lazo, executive secretary of the National Food and Grovery Distributors Code. Authority.

Pension Threat Starts Inquiry

(Associated Press.)

The Veterans' Administration initiated a hurried inquiry to determine whether veterans receiving more than $50 a month on civil works projects should have their pensions reduced to $6 monthly.

The investigation was started after word reached the administration that Capus M. Waynick, North Carolina State reemployment director, made a statement to this effect. He said C.W.A. payrolls were Federal pay rolls and pointed to a pension regulation that veterans receiving more than $50 a month on a Government job should have their pensions reduced.

The regulation he mentioned does not apply to veterans injured in battle.

Spokesmen for Frank T. Hines, the veterans' administrator, said this matter had never been considered by the administration, but that a full inquiry would be made.

The administrator wired to James S. Pittman, manager of the regional office at Charlotte, N. C., to determine all the facts in connection with Waynick's statement.

Choir at Takoma Park Sings Tomorrow Night

"Gloria in Excelsis," by E. K. Heyser, will be sung tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock by the choir of 30 voices in the Takoma Park Seventh-Day Adventist Church. The soloists will be Mrs. Ethel Reed and Mrs. Vernon Engeberg, sopranos; Mrs. E. E. Franklin, contralto; Vernon Engeberg, tenor, and R. C. Gray, basso.

Mrs. Thomas Cunningham will be at the organ, and Virginia Kimball will be the piano accompanist.

Postal Savings Hold Largest Fund in History

Citizens have entrusted to the postal savings system more money than ever before, according to the Associated Press. Clinton B. Eeilenberger, Second Assistant Postmaster General in charge, said yesterday there was $1,199,281,139 on deposit at the end of November, an increase of almost $10,000,000 over the close of October and $314,110,670 more than a year ago.

Slain Singer

MISS EMILIA DA PRATO, opera singer, who was slain yesterday in San Francisco. Umberto Guisti, 27, shot her, police said.

Singer's Slayer Saved From Mob

tempt at violence was made by a brother of the slain girl, Percio De Prata, who struggled with officers in an attempt to push his way to Guisti.

Muttered threats were heard and the crowd surged around the officers. Young De Prato suddenly lunged forward.

"I'll see you strung up!" he shouted, pushing toward Guisti. Officers restrained him as Guisti was hurried into the waiting car and away.

Guisti gave his age as 37 and said he had been instrumental in getting roles for Miss De Prata. He was booked for murder.

Received at White House.

Miss Emelia de Prato won second place with National Radio Audition of 1927, together with a $2,000 prize and a three-year radio contract. At that time, she and other winners were received at the White House by the late President Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge.

Studies under several famous teachers followed for four years. For a season she was a star singer over a Los Angeles radio station.

A native of Italy, she came to America with her parents when three years old. While her parents were working in a packing house, she won singing renown at an early age. With opera as her ambition. She studied while going to public schools and working as a stenographer in a lumbering firm.

Many Leaders Fight Revision Of Income Tax

U. S. and Business Heads Assail Report to Ways and Means Body.

By Robert C. Albright.

The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday defended a subcommittee report on income tax revision against a combined attack by Administration officials and business interests.

The subcommittee's proposals to abolish foreign income tax credits and eliminate consolidated income tax returns to net the Treasury $30,000,000 more in new revenues were assailed by a parade of witnesses.

Assistant Secretary of Commerce John Dickinson opposed elimination of foreign tax credits as detrimental to trade revival, while railroads, oil companies and other industries protested abolition of consolidated returns.

Despite the criticism, which followed closely Acting Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's opposition last week, Representative Samuel B. Hill (Democrat), Washington, subcommittee chairman, said he still favors the recommendations.

"And I think most of the committee feel as I do," he added.

Farm Leader Favors Plan.

From Chester Gray, representing the American Farm Bureau Federation, the subcommittee proposals received substantial support. He favored both of the controversial proposals, also asking a lowering of income tax exemptions, an increase in corporation and gift taxes and $2.50 a gallon tax on liquor.

Opening arguments against the subcommittee plan to discontinue the arrangement whereby foreign income tax payment is credited against Federal income tax, Assistant Secretary Dickinson said this is no time to place additional burdens on American business abroad, adding:

"American business should be given a chance to regain its foreign markets."

He argued the change is "hardly worth making," as it involves only $10,000,000 in additional revenues.

A similar position was taken by Mitchell B. Carroll, representing the American section of the International Chamber of Commerce, who indorsed Acting Secretary Morgenthau's opposition to the plan and argued foreign countries are more generous with their own industries.

Ben C. Dey, speaking for the Southern Pacific Railroad, and Jacob Aronson, representing the New York Central Lines, voiced railroad opposition to the plan to eliminate consolidated income tax returns.

Rail Exemption Asked.

Asking that railroads be exempted from the provision, Mr. Dey said it would be a serious blow if all 61 Southern Pacific subsidiaries are forced to file separate returns. He said the plan might force some roads into bankruptcy.

"It would only mean we would have to borrow the money to pay them from the R. F. C.," he said. "On a consolidated return basis, we lacked $30,000,000 last year of having taxable income, and then had to borrow $22,000,000 from the R. F. C."

Mr. Aronson likened railroad corporation to a department store, some departments of which were making money and some were not. He said it is no more fair to make railroads file separate returns for subsidiaries than to make a store file separate returns for each department.

George P. P. Bonnell and John G. Buchanan, representing the Armstrong Cork Co., and M. E. McDowell, speaking for the Standard Oil Co., of New Jersy, told advantages of a consolidated return, while Harry Tipper, of the American Manufacturers Export Association, of New York attacked proposals to eliminate foreign tax credits.

CWA to Analyze Job Information

1,693 Workers to Survey Employment Data.

Employment information on several million persons, who have registered with the United States Employment Service since July 1, will be gathered and analyzed as a Civil Works Administration project, Administrator Harry Hopkins announced yesterday.

A total of 1,693 persons will be engaged in the work. Five will be employed in the District on the project.

Records of various offices contain much case-history material, officials said, which is essential in planning for future employment and guiding sound relief and reemployment plans. This will be compiled by C. W. A. workers.

Gas Company Hearing Halted for Holidays

The prolonged hearing on the valuation of the Washington Gas Light Co. will be adjourned following today's session until some time in January, to allow for the Christmas vacation.

Canned Carols in Store Nightly At National Community Tree

Canned carols are in store for Washington as a by-product of the National Community Christmas Tree celebration next Sunday eve.

After President Roosevelt has pushed a button at 5:08 p. m., illuminating the decorated spruce, delivered his greeting to the Nation, and the crowd has dispersed, that won't be the end of big doings in Sherman Square.

Not by 20 brand-new phonograph records!

Encompassing a selection of carols, instrumental music, religious oratorios and others in the holiday mood, the mechanical entertainment will be turned on nightly between Christmas night and New Year's night, from 8 to 10 o'clock.

Amplifiers hung on the tree will carry the music, and 175 sturdy folding seats, with leather padding, will await whosoever cares to sit for the concerts. Construction of the Presidential stand, together with that for the Marine Band and children's choruses, will be started today.

Trial of Woman Opens In Film Man's Death

No End of Books

Christmas Gifts for the Daughter of the Woman Who Danced With King Edward, and the Man With a Wander-Lust.

Three mementoes of Prince Albert Edward are still with us on every hand—his figure on the tobacco tins, the style some men have of leaving the bottom button of their vests unfastened and the fact that day-wear trousers have cuffs. All else is misty and dim with time. Very few people can remember him save as a middle-aged man. The period of his youth has so long vanished that, when I relate it to myself, for example, it becomes a genealogical matter. He was 19 when he visited this country and Canada and the house in which he stayed during his days in Nova Scotia was that of my great-great-uncle. Equally for most of us, Prince Albert Edward stands an historical figure.

For the astonishing aspect of the Victorian dynasty was its wealth of years. It had enough and to spare. One can glibly give the dates of Victoria's reign and the round sun will make little impressions. But note that while she sat on the throne "France had two dynasties and a republic, Spain three monarchs, Italy four kings," and we can realize what England knew of mundane permanence. Note, too, that when Albert Edward was 45 his mother "was still telling Mr. Gladstone that nothing confidential should be entrusted to him as he talked too much." And that the title of "King and Emperor" did not rest upon his shoulders until he was 60. Years, it seems, did not matter at Windsor.

But through all these passing years the eye of a Frenchman now pierces. M. Andre Maurois, biographer of Byron, Shelly and Disraeli, having gathered his materials and set up his totals, gives us "The Edwardian Era" (Appleton-Century, $3). It is a full and able picture of the times of Albert Edward, full as only the voracious appetite of so practiced a biographer could make it, able as only the precise Maurois hand could draw it.

One comes almost to believe that English history should be written solely by Frenchmen. The English, like most races, are so "natural" to themselves. Who but a Frenchman would have remarked, in telling of the notorious Tranby Croft baccarat scandal which involved the prince in 1891 and brought down upon his head the wrath of England: "There was something ridiculous in this indignation over a game of cards, coming from a people who solidly betted on horses and carried a text from the Bible over the Royal Exchange."

The prince was amazed and hurt at the to-do over this incident. It was out of all proportion. But just that fact indicated one very conspicuous feature of the prince's life—it was not in proportion with the realm. His father, the gentle and methodical prince consort, had reared him most carefully. But when he was grown, was presumably ready, there was nothing for him to do but to rule over the "Marlborough set," attend plays and busy himself over etiquette and dress, and as best he could amuse himself. "The prince was a bored man," writes Maurois, and Max Beerbohm's caricature of him being stood in a corner of Windsor Castle at the age of 40 by his "royal mamma" is not funny. That the crown found him at 60 with so much sound diplomatic sense and such adept bonhomie as he indubitably possessed may be considered a miracle. That this history in hand finds him the central, if not dominating, figure of his era is a tribute to qualities which enforced adult infantilism could not crush.

Maurois has drawn many other characters with wit and insight. Lord Saulisbury, with his baggy trousers and constant motto: "To think chemically;" Lloyd George, eloquent Welsh politician, answering back to the King; Arthur Balfour, called "Pretty Fanny" at college for his delicate ways, growing more and more active in the strife of Downing street; Herbert Asquith, Joseph Chamberlain, Viscount Haldane, Edward Grey, Bulow and Cambon—all the leading men of these intricate times are caught and their influences unraveled. William II of Germany is met time and again, always an unbelievable character. One can not forget the picture of him rushing off impetuously to the bedside of his dying grandmother, being shouldered about the room by his British cousins, and then winning the approval of the nation by his unfeigned grief at Victoria's death. It was he and Albert Edward who together lifted her body into the coffin. What did the Kaiser do with that memory in the late summer of 1914?

Anyone with a nostalgia for the pageantry of England's apex in history will linger over every page of M. Maurois's book. But it must be read in that mood. Even the empire's own poet knew that the captains and the kings would depart.

* * * *

It was amid the crashing of dynasties, of peoples and creeds, that Frederick Palmer passed his life. He tells the whole story of all he saw during the wide-flung life of a correspondent in his book: "With My Own Eyes" (Bobbs-Merrill, $3.50). For anyone with a wander-lust this is excellent and exciting reading.

He was 15 when he began his career. "May I write something for you?" he asked the editor of the Morning Post in Jamestown, N. Y. "Why don't you?" the editor asked in turn. "What do you want me to write about?" young Palmer kept on. The editor's reply was the keystone of a lifetime, "What you can find to write about, son." Frederick Palmer has been acting on that advice ever since.

The search took him to London, Paris, Greece, Turkey, Alaska, the Philippines, China, Japan and Siberia. Then, after the Russo-Japanese War, came a lull of eight years—"my happy years," says Palmer. But he was still the war correspondent in the eyes of the newspapers, and when there was a fear that the first production of "The Playboy of the Western World" in New York might cause rioting among the audience, Palmer was assigned as "dramatic critic." He visited San Francisco after the earthquake and the Panama Canal. He went on the great naval cruise around South America. Then followed trips to Central America, Turkey and Mexico, and August, 1914, arrived.

Palmer's unique contributions to the literature of the war come from two posts he held—one, the sole American correspondent allowed with the British army in the early part of the war, and the other that of chief censor for the A. E. F. And in it all he sees but a single lesson—that war will always be with us, that the coming generation never learns its suicidal cost. After a lifetime of watching battles he knows how insidiously false is their glamour.

"With My Own Eyes" is an endlessly enthralling book. Palmer seemingly knew everybody and saw everything. He relates within these covers enough adventures to fill the lives of five other men. That is why you will enjoy it in your armchair.

"Phenomenon" Book Trade Calls Novel

Hervey Allen's Four-Pound Novel, "Anthony Adverse" Sets Sales Record.

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—"Anthony Adverse," Harvey Allen's 1,224-page four-pound novel, has passed into the class of phenomena, the book trade has decided.

The book is universally known as "Anthony," and spoken of as a person rather than as a book. "Anthony" is now around the 275,000 mark in sales.

It is, according to book trade figures, the largest sale of recent years for a novel and the largest depression sale of any book. "Anthony" was published June 26, of this year, and has consistently dominated fiction best seller lists each month since.

Sale of 50,000 copies of an average sized novel nowadays is cause for great joy in publishing circles, although some volumes of yesteryear have established tremendous selling records over a long period. Sinclair Lewis' books, most of them, belong to the predepression era. "Main Street," including reprints, has sold more than 725,000 and "Elmer Gantry," next most popular, well over 400,000.

The world sale of Erich Maria Remarque's "All Quiet on the Western Front" is more than 3,000,000 copies in all editions, including reprint; H. G. Wells' "The Outline of History" has passed the million mark in world sale, and Will Durante's "The Story of Philosophy" approaches 525,000.

In fiction, Hull's "The Sheik" has gone, over the years, between 700,000 and 800,000 copies.

Book men say several factors have entered into "Anthony's" success—a possible improvement in public taste, a psychological situation in which there existed a real demand for a rattling good story upon a sound philosophical basis, and a general interest in its physical dimensions.

What's in Fashion?

Directed by Amos Parrish

Brooches and hair ornaments this season sparkle with rhinestones, sequins, marcasite and transparent pastel beads.

New York, Dec. 20.—"I hope I get something very new," lots of women are saying. Or . . . "practical . . . decorative . . . really elegant . . . very smart." Substitute any one of those adjectives you like. The answer to all can be found in the same thing . . . jewelry.

The lady who wants something new can be pleased with a hair ornament for wear with her evening grandeur.

Choose Right Shape.

Just give a bit of thought to the shape of her face and what shape tiara will look best. And choose a rounded shape for her with long, narrow face, and for a round-faced girl, a tiara with a point to give her height.

There are other hair ornaments, too, if a tiara doesn't seem just her style. Sparkling clips, fancy hair pins, side combs and barettes . . . all much in evening fashion for holding stray locks in place. Or purely for decoration.

Practical Gold.

Any fashion-knowing woman will recognize the practicality of jewelry in antique gold finish. It goes with anything and is particularly effective with the new dusty pastels.

Almost any dress she has can use a bracelet, since sleeves are usually plain and close-fitting in the lower part. A pair of these in antique gold finish . . . wide and heavy looking though not necessarily actually heavy . . . will do her noble service throughout her entire daytime wardrobe.

"Something decorative." Certainly practically any jewelry is that. But some of the most decorative ideas would be a set of some sort—earrings, necklace and bracelet (or brooch, or bracelet, brooch and necklace)—all in the same design.

Jade and Pearls.

We've had one sketched—a pendant necklace, brooch and earrings of carved jade set in tiny pearls. A decorative thing in itself and doubly so when on a costume.

Such a combination of jade and pearls would also satisfy the lady who wants something "really elegant." Or you can go into the matter still deeper by giving her a piece of real stone jewelry.

And then for the lady who doesn't care just as long as it is "very smart." Any of the jewelry pieces mentioned fill that bill. So do sparkling rhinestone pieces for evening, especially wide bracelets; earrings to wear with small hats; pendant necklaces designed to be worn with high necklines without spoiling the lines of the dress, and old-fashioned looking brooches to wear just below the chin.

Tomorrow: Small rugs are both practical and a luxury.

De-Versification.

By Katherine Smith.

What can one write about when hands
Are clenched—the little brain-cells chill
With unknown rage? What can one do
But let the whispered sputters spill
From curling lips. What can one say
When all one thinks about is —"WHEN
Will I be sane enough to write
Another sappy verse again?"

Repeal Imparts A Fine Flavor To Bracelets

Chicago, Dec. 19 (AP).—Repeal bracelets are one of the newest novelties in costume jewelry.

These tricky feminine decorative gadgets have little bottles in semiprecious stone or colored composition dangling from a small link chain bracelet. They are like the familiar chain bracelets from which hung tiny dogs, elephants and other members of the animal kingdom.

That old favorite, the Scottie, is still a smart bit of decoration in the way of a sports pin, but the very newest breed are of colored glass or composition, making them just a little more formal.

And then very new and equally smart are trim, flat cuff-bracelets of feathers. They are matched with a flat collar-like choker of feathers. They are offered in black, white and gay colors. The feathers are held in place at one edge by bands of rhinestones.

They dress up a simple afternoon frock or they may be worn with a formal evening costume.

Carved jade, coral, lapis, turquoise and amethyst pendants, necklaces, bracelets, earrings and rings to match are much in evidence as fashionable jewelry. Coral combined with gold or pearls is in the front line.

Yellow gold jewelry, especially in jazzed-up antique patterns is chic.

Evening Suit of Wool Worn With Small Hat

Paris (AP).—An evening suit, made of black bagheera or wool, is one of the season's outstanding creations. It combines a slender floor-length skirt with a hip-length jacket collared in fox. The blouse—generally a tunic—may be made of white satin or silver lame.

The hats worn with these costumes are almost universally small. A net cap which extends over the eyes to form a veil and has a crown worked with bands of black velvet, a black velvet toque with birds of paradise curling on the crown, and a little feather toque are among the smartest.

What Today Means

"Sagittarius."

If December 20 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 to 10:10 a. m., from 3 to 4 p. m. and from 6:45 to 7:55 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 to 8:20 a. m., from 12 noon to 1:10 p. m. and from 9:40 to 10:15 p. m.

Things will go "about as usual" on this date in both the office and the home. Little will come up to disturb the day's routine and if an inclination to "let up" is overcome the average amount will be accomplished. People generally will be inclined to be late in keeping social appointments and much irritation will ensue to those kept waiting.

If you were born on December 20, you will more than likely get by in life not because of any aggressive and forceful qualities, but because of your rather winning personality and decidedly ingratiating manner. You always seem to "strike people just right" and without trying to, come to their attention. Your success will be attributable largely to the fact that you make no enemies; whenever someone must be found to whom no one will have any objections, you will just fill the bill. You always try to do the right thing and nine times out of ten, you succeed in doing it. You have a marvelous run of luck and at times it seems that things couldn't possibly break against you. You do not gamble in any way and wherever possible you avoid taking risks.

If December 20 is the date of your birth, you can get people to do about what you want. You could be an executive with the proper backing, but you are more the type to take orders from others than to give them yourself. Thoroughly honest, you will more often than not find yourself in a position of trust. You accept people too much at their face value and never suspect them of being what they do not appear to be. You are a religious person though probably not a regular attendant at any church.

Successful people born on December 20:

John Wood, soldier and politician.
Samuel J. Kirkwood, statesman.
You give much to charity.
Romeyn B. Ayres, soldier.

Gift Giving Originated With Romans

Parents Gave Children Gifts on First Day of Saturnalia.

Perhaps you did not know it, but the custom of giving Christmas gifts comes from the Romans who on the first day of Saturnalia gave to their children dolls, candles and little doll-like pastries. When Saturnalia was over, Paganalia began, and parents gave their children cakes, toys, boxes, little wagons, apples and nuts.

We still maintain this custom when we fill the children's stockings with candies, nuts, sweetmeats and cookies.

Czech Cookies.

First we have the Czechoslovakia cookie. Mix two cups of powdered sugar, four eggs beaten to a cream, one and one-half cups of almonds, grated, one cup of hazelnuts or pecans, chopped, one teaspoon of cinnamon and one pint of flour. Roll out on sugar and flour mixed. Cut in circles or squares. Bake in moderate oven. They are easier to handle if allowed to chill thoroughly. These cookies are pretty when decorated with candied cherries and citron.

German Cookies.

Then we have the German cookies—Pfeffer-Nuesse. Mix well four cups of brown sugar, one tablespoon of cloves, one tablespoon of cinnamon and one tablespoon of ginger. Beat in four unbeaten eggs, then add two cups of flour, sifted with two teaspoons of baking powder. Work in enough more flour to make a very stiff dough. Roll one-half inch thick and cut with a tiny round cutter. Bake in a moderate oven.

French Honey Cake.

Both French and German people have a Christmas cookie but we've given one German recipe, so here is the French honey cake: Cream one-half cup of butter and one-third cup of sugar. Add one unbeaten egg, then one cup of strained honey. Blend thoroughly. Add two teaspoons of lemon rind, one tablespoon of lemon juice, one-fourth teaspoon of salt, two and one-half cups of flour, and three and one-half teaspoons of baking powder. Roll on a floured board and cut into strips one inch by two inches and bake in a moderate oven. Ground almonds are often sprinkled on top. The dough is very soft so if it is to be cut into shapes, work in more flour and allow to chill thoroughly. Decorate these by using green sprinkle sugar and red cinnamon drops after cutting the cookies in stars, Christmas trees, wreaths and crescents.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

There is no best remedy for worms. There are several varieties of these parasites and if we could say that some one medicine is best for some one kind—and this we can do sometimes—it would not follow that the medicine named would be even a poor remedy for another. For instance, Drs. W. W. Cort and G. F. Otto think hexylresorcinal is the best worm medicine where the round worm is the kind that troubles, and yet no one would expect to get much results from it if the troublesome parasite were thread worms.

Some health authorities are undertaking to survey the prevalence of round worms in human beings in various sections of the United States, just as was done a generation ago with hookworm. Probably in another generation the same plan will be carried out as to the tapeworms, and, possibly, in the next succeeding generation, as to some of the parasites that have come in from the Orient and are now threatening the people on the West Coast somewhat.

The region already studied is that part of the United States lying east of the Mississippi River and south of the Ohio. The survey shows the regions where the largest proportions of the children have round worms are southwest Virginia (a mountainous region), the rural mountainous part of Kentucky, the mountainous section of east Tennessee, that part of the population of Tampa that came from Cuba, the rural sections of Tennessee and certain rural regions in Louisiana.

In the most badly infected of these regions more than half the children are infested with this variety of worms. In some other sections of the country not one child in 25 is so infested.

The way above all others to meet the situation is to teach the people sanitation of the premises.

The Family Marketer

White Clover Honey Most Delicious, Marketer Finds.

"Anyone who knows about honey knows that the best is that which the bees get from white clover." The marketman was informative.

"White clover?" The Marketer was interested.

"Yes, the honey has a better taste. When the hives are near buckwheat fields, the bees get honey when the buckwheat is in flower. The honey is darker then, and has a pecular flavor."

"So you think white clover honey is the best?"

"Well, tastes differ, even honey ones. I like it better and some other people do too."

"Do you have any of this honey?"

Wild Rice with Fowl.

The marketman explained that wild rice is the thing to serve with wild duck or any fowl or game dinner. The rice costs 55 cents for a pound package.

The tiniest daintiest pickled onions are just the thing for your pickle dish. They are 20 cents for a half-pint. Most pickled onions must be awkwardly bitten into two hunks, but these are small enough to slip unobtrusively into the most rosebud mouth.

The Marketer sampled some delicious mince-meat yesterday. It is home prepared, moist and marvelously seasoned. Even in its raw and chilly state it is delicious. So what would it be like, steaming between flaky pie crust? It is 30 cents a pound.

Big shiny eggplants on a market stall sell for 15 to 25 cents each. Some of them are as big as a hubbard squash, firm as an apple. String beans are 10 cents a pound and fresh peas 15 cents a pound, or two pounds for 25 cents.

Lady apples, small as crabapples and colored red and yellow, are 30 cents a dozen. Delicious apples, extra fancy, shiny and perfect, are 5 cents each. McIntosh reds, a real apple delicacy, are 4 pounds for 25 cents. Stayman winesaps are the same price.

Oranges Cheap Now.

If you are on the lookout for extra large California oranges, you can get them at the market for 60 cents a dozen. Oranges range in price from 15 cents a dozen up, but these are large and beautiful, fit for a banquet table.

The Marketer suggests that you try fried spare ribs tonight. Fry them in a little butter and you'll have a wonderful dish. Spare ribs are 10 cents a pound, a chuck roast for pot roasting is 12 cents a pound. Stewing veal sells at 10 cents a pound. If your family is too small to eat up a large ham, try one of the smoked pork dainties—they are 18 cents a pound, and can be sliced like Canadian bacon. Pickled pigs feet are 5 cents each.

Potatoes Best Baked in Skins Until Mealy

Children Early Learn to Relish Them Cooked This Way.

Perhaps our universal liking for baked potatoes is a "throw-back" to childhood. Certainly every well-brought-up child learns early to like the soft and mealy texture and good flavor of potatoes baked in their jackets. Incidentally, this also saves the valuable minerals and other food values.

Select medium to large potatoes of uniform size and shape, so they will be ready at the same time, says the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Scrub them thoroughly so the skins can be eaten, for many people like them and the layers next to the skin contain good food value.

Bake in a moderately hot oven, 375 to 400 degrees F. for 45 to 60 minutes, or until soft when pressed. If you have the oven too hot, the skins will be hard and dry. Take them from the oven as soon as they are soft. Make two gashes with a fork on the flat side at right angles to each other. Pinch from underneath so as to force the potato through the opening. This allows the steam to escape and prevents sogginess. Drop a piece of butter in the opening, sprinkle with salt and paprika. Serve at once.

Dude Whaling Latest Pastime in Alaska

Seattle, Dec. 19 (AP).—"Thar she blows!"—it may not be a whale, but only a Seattle woman blowing off about her experiences with the gentle sport of "dude whaling."

Dude whaling has become a business to Campbell Church, jr., who uses six yachts on which amateur whalers may pursue the elusive leviathan far up to Alaskan waters.

"A good many whales get away," said Church today, "but just to have shot a line into one is a lot of fun for most men."

The dude whalers who do land a leviathan are unable to bring it home to be stuffed and mounted in the den, he said, since they "smell to high heaven," but they are satisfied with a piece of whale bone to mount over the mantle.

New Coverlets Quaint as Those Of Olden Days

Local Store Offers Them in Rare Witchery of Patterns.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

The art of coverlet weaving—a serious business in our grandmother's time—has lost the glamour and charm once attached to it. The lovely old patterns which originated centuries ago in England, and were so widely used during the colonial era of our country, have many of them passed from mind.

Down in Clinch Valley, Va., are some mills which weave coverlets like those of a century ago. These are exact reproductions of the old hand loom patterns taken from antique coverlets loaned by their owners in order that much genuine loveliness might not entirely disappear from the world.

These coverlets, made charming by their intricacy of design, witchery of color, and serviceable qualities are sold here in a large downtown department store. In most cases each robe comes in two sizes, one large enough for a regular bed, 84x100 inches, another for a day bed, 54x84 inches.

There are many of the old patterns including Lovers' Knot, a bold deep design in rich colorings of red and navy on white; Morning Star, a dainty intricate motif in colonial red, jade, yellow, blue, or lavender on white; olive leaf, leafy figures in the same shades; whig rose, a precisely symmetrical pattern; and ring and flowers, a wealth of romantic design.

There'll be a rainbow 'round our compacts if we take the suggestion of a cosmetician and present ourselves with her Rainbow Vanity Set. This includes a double compact with loose powder and cake rouge, in a case brushed in gold tone and jade, with an automatic lipstick to match.

Numerous compacts today are designed either for evening or afternoon, but the soft tone and conservative design of this one adapts it to one occasion as well as another.

We never pucker our brow about the care of playing cards.

We fail to note that half the wear and tear on them comes not so much on the card table as from lying around in desk and cabinet drawers, rubbing up against pencils and books, and sometimes scattering pell mell all over the place.

One way of preserving cards indefinitely and keeping them clean and sleek is to put them away in boxes manufactured for that single purpose. These may be bought in a downtown store in wood, painted to give an inlaid effect. Two drawers pull out, each one large enough to hold a pack of cards.

An F street gift shop has one window filled with what appeared to be wedgewood. As a matter of fact it wasn't the genuine ware, although made in the same summer twilight shade of blue, with the same detailed white figures. The only difference seemed to be the date and place of production. This was new and came from Germany.

The inventors of the English superfatted soap in a shop on G street are so sure of their product that they have printed their guarantee across the covers in bold, black type.

A cold cream soap of this kind is excellent for tender skins. It keeps them smooth and soft, and safeguards them from chapping.

Mothers with very precious babies, granduncles who are a little bit fussy, particular parties of one type or another, are all willing and glad to pay the price of this highgrade product.

The notion department in a large store has a counter loaded with new supplies. One of the best sellers in the lot is a washing set for gloves. This includes a wooden hand on which to scrub the gloves, a sponge to aid, and a cake of special soap. There's also a pair of steel frames on which to dry them.

A little 110-volt iron weighing all of 15 ounces is the prize midget in electri iron ranks. It was designed for travelers who are averse to the usual wrinkled wardrobe which comes from the valise after a trip. A large iron weighing several pounds is inconvenient not only for packing but for carrying. This little one may be slipped into its pigskin case, the zipper top pulled to, and easily fitted into any corner of a suit case.

It has qualities which recommend it to the domestic laundry, too. The way it slips inside sleeves, around the folds of pleats and down into pockets is highly satisfactory to a scrupulous presser.

"Chile for chilly days" isn't the slogan of an E street food shop, but it very easily could be. There's no cosier refuge than this small restaurant which specializes in three red-hot viands: tamales, chile mac, and chile. A great big popcorn machine in the window and sawdust sprinkled floor contribute a hail-fellow-well-met atmosphere.

Guava jelly which is clearer, fresher and far more delicious than ordinary guava jelly may be purchased in a downtown fruit store. It was made in Orlando, Fla., by some jam and jelly specialists and shipped here to show Washingtonians what a real Florida product is like.

"Ripe Tomato" Captures Paris Evening Modes

Paris—Trained evening gowns for early spring wear in vernal tones of "ripe tomato," sky blue and cafe au lait have made their debut here before Christmas festivities.

"Accent the back" seems the slogan for those designed by Patou. A little sun-ray pleated cape, a pleated fabric fan placed at the base of a low decollete, a soft frill cascading below the waist, as well as the brief train, emphasizes the back of the frock.

The fronts are simple in design with the decollete generally higher in front than in back. Busts are full and emphasized, while waists and hips remain slender.

A crystal comb set with brilliants and worn in a manner recalling the tiara of bygone days appears with one white crepe evening frock. It is trimmed with crystal buttons set with sparkling brilliants and worn with a bracelet to match.

Cafe au lait taffeta fashions another which has frivolous frills lined in brown over the back of the hips, and sky blue crepe makes a third finished with a sun ray pleated fan at the base of the low back decollete. These sun ray pleated effects used in trims, capes and fanlike insertions below the knee line of skirts are a feature of the collection.

Linings of contrasting color occasionally appear. One unfurred model of gray green wool is lined in dark green satin and worn with an afternoon frock of the same shade.

Frocks for daytime wear designed of soft wool and crepe in gray, greige and black are fashioned on slender lines with rather high necklines. A number appear with narrow belts worn considerably higher in the front than in the back.

A violet-tinted crepe frock worn with a gray coat made an unusual color combination in a costume worn by Mrs. Frank P. Noyes, social leader, to a concert. Her coat was trimmed with gray fox.

Junior League Girls Plan Cheer for Hospital Wards

Mrs. Henry A. Willard Busy Organizer of Young Visitors.

A tall lithe figure in a rust color suit with gray fur strode quickly across the pavement to the entrance of Garfield Hospital. She had just come from the Junior League Headquarters, and she was on her way to several hours of hard work. For, yes, it is hard work, bringing good cheer and brightness and gayety in to hospital wards of white beds.

She stopped a moment to talk with the reporter.

"Yes, I'm Mrs. Henry A. Willard," she said. "I come here twice a week, an average of about 12 hours a week, I should say. And it makes me happy, because I feel those are the most precious and important hours I spend anywhere."

She laughed herself at that. Imagine a society woman admitting her most important hours are spent in a hospital's wards. Mrs. Willard's interest in children has led to one of the most important services she performs at Garfield. She personally directs 200 women who make clothes for infants to wear during their stay at the hospital. Under her supervision these women bring cheer to drear hospital rooms in the form of bright cretonne drapes and other decorations. And they raise money for Garfield's various needs. These women, known as the Ladies Aid, give dances for nurses, who would otherwise have little diversion.

Mrs. Willard is now busy making plans to have several members of the Junior League assist at the hospital each day. They will make hours of pain seem less tedious to the patients by taking them flowers, books and magazines. They will do office work for the social worker who interviews people entering the wards.

The young society woman, who is doing so much for Garfield, became interested in the hospital through her husband's family. Mr. Willard's grandfather was one of the founders, and Mr. Willard is a member of the men's board.

Sororities Budget Selves on Pledges

So That Chapters May Be Not Too Large.

Champaign, Ill., Dec. 19.—Just like big business and governments, University of Illinois sororities have adopted a "temporary emergency plan" to help them solve economic problems.

The system calls for strictly unselfish observation of a budgeting scheme for pledges so that the various groups may have chapters, not too large or too small, to be economically accommodated in the chapter houses.

The plan has been presented to alumnae advisers as a mean of determining just how many girls are needed at each house to meet "current expenses." Nine sororities have agreed to cooperate with their sister groups in maintaining the best balance of memberships.

Capital Matron Starts Career In Middle Age

Mrs. Isabel Gates, With a Belated Diploma, Wins Success as Writer.

She'd wings to fly, her whole life through;
Broad sweeping wings to cleave the blue;
To mount an eagle-pinioned high
And touch the zenith of her sky,
While far beneath the earthbound lie.
She'd wings to fly her whole life through,
And yet—she never knew.

ISABEL LINKEN GATES.

One arrow shot by Cupid with perfect aim. Result, one young girl at the University of California tossed aside her prospects of a diploma and embarked on a matrimonial career.

Thus the story might have ended, but Isabel Yikens Gates determined otherwise. Twenty-five years later, her children grown and married, a white-haired Washington matron tossed aside the shackles of household duties and went to George Washington University in search of that discarded sheepskin.

"I wish," she exclaimed yesterday, "that I could make every woman realize how thrilling middle age can be! Youth is a happy time, yes! But its pleasures become pale and uninteresting besides those of middle age. I have never known life to be so vivid. Every moment is one of intense pleasure, and it is a glorious privilege just to be alive and working."

Certainly Mrs. Gates has found many compensations in her later years. Her stories and poems have been published in magazines and newspapers throughout the country. She was one of the first women in the District of Columbia to broadcast over the radio. Her interest in colonial history led to the fascinating discovery that she is related to George Washington. Her resemblance to the Father of His Country is so marked that a picture of her taken in colonial costume is often mistaken for one of him. Her greatest interest, however, is in helping other women to find themselves.

"A woman's home and family are the most important factors in her life," she said. "But during her youth every woman should be preparing to do something creative later on. And all the years when she is busy caring for her children she should be storing up treasures for the days later on.

"For every woman has a gift of some kind which she can develop. All she needs is faith in herself, and the desire to fulfill herself.

"There is no reason why middle-aged women should feel that their work is over, and that there is no place in the world for them. Their's is the greatest opportunity. They can bring all the wealth of their experiences, all the wisdom living has taught them, and incorporate it into their work. Not only will they gain in their own happiness, but they will find their marriages benefitted.

"Women must learn to try their wings," she concluded. "Many of them could fly high. They could write their names in flame against the blue. The trouble is they are afraid, and so they remain earthbound all their lives."

Puff Sleeves And Yokes Deck Gay Sweaters

Designs Those of Tyrolean Peasants of Olden Times.

Sweaters have progressed from simple slipover affairs to elaborate knitted blouses with medieval sleeves and gay yokes that show the peasant influence.

A good-looking Tyrolean cardigan is fitted as snugly as an old-fashioned basque. A white oval yoke with drawstring at the neck gives the effect of an underbodice such as peasants wear. A white string belt is run through the cardigan at the waist. Because of its neat fit, this little sweater may be worn beneath a coat for winter sports without making bulges or bumps.

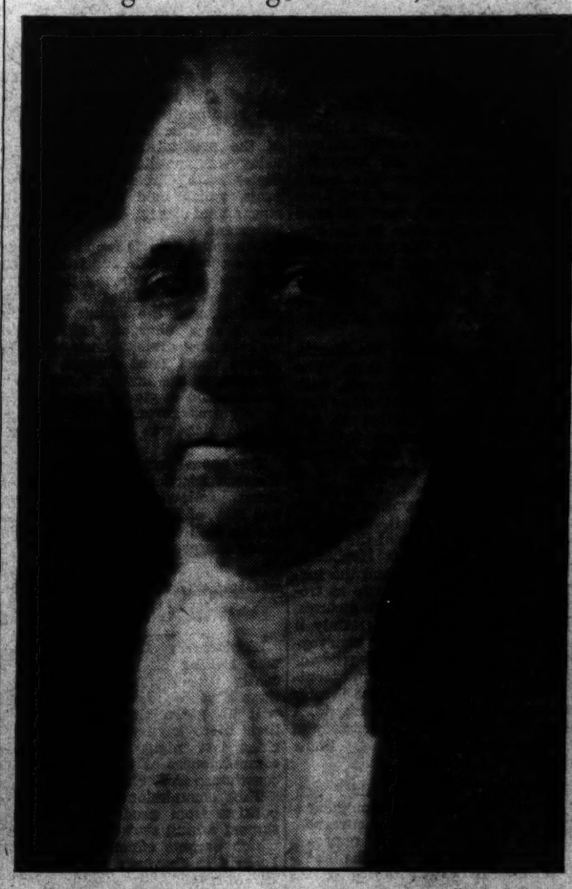
The peasant idea is also carried out in fine hand-knit sweaters from France. Design of the old provinces are beautifully woven into the soft, woolly garments.

Sleeves with puffs running up and down the arm, divided by tight shirred bandings, give a medieval appearance to sweater blouses that are suitable to wear for afternoon as well as sports. Dark, rich colors are used as a rule, although this style is attractive in white or pastel shades. Other medieval versions are plain knit bodices with long, full sleeves in a contrasting color.

With few exceptions, the new sweaters give a "bosomy" look that is highly in vogue.

Skirts to be worn with these interesting tops are smooth, slim and symmetrical. One of the very newest materials is linen mixed with wool, which gives warmth without bulk. The wool keeps the linen from crushing and aids in creating patterns that are distinctly novel.

George Washington?—No, Indeed!



Harris & Ewing.

But a very clever Washington matron and one of his collateral descendants, Mrs. Isabel Linkens Gates, who returned to her college classes in middle life, and has been very successful in her career as a writer. She believes women who think age prevents them from accomplishing their dreams are all wrong.

Dr. A. Maris Boggs Heads Enterprise for World Amity

Films Shown in Every Country Reveal How the People of Other Countries Live, and Stimulate Exchange of Ideas and of Products.

By Frances Mangum.

This is mostly a world of simple, humble folk who are all brothers, if they only knew it. The trouble is, they don't all know one another.

Yesterday a very tiny, feminine person—she measures but 4 feet 9—who is also one of the great women of the world, sat serenely at her desk in an office at the Shoreham and talked of introducing the peoples of this old world to one another. Such introductions comprise her life work.

Dr. A. Maris Boggs is highly regarded in many countries as an economist. She is a fellow of the Royal Geographic Society, a member of the Academy of World Economics, and of the Academy of Political and Social Sciences. Recently she has received the thanks of the United States Government and various other nations for the constructive work she has done in behalf of humanity.

But sitting there, chatting sociably with The Post reporter, she seemed just the most friendly, unofficial person imaginable—with a gentle, engaging manner, a quick understanding, and a warm, ready enthusiasm for the working people, those who are struggling and toiling and hoping, everywhere, for the dawn of a happier state of things in the world.

Sees Goodwill Era.

Fortunately, Dr. Boggs, closing her eyes a bit to think, could see and predict that such a time of goodwill on earth was not as far away as everyone imagined.

"Friendship between nations is the natural order of things," she said, out of her vast fund of knowledge of the facts. "It is very far from being an impossibility. It is in fact, only necessary that the peoples of the world should be better acquainted with one another.

"And that is what the Bureau of Commercial Economics, which I started years ago, and which I am carrying on, is endeavoring to bring about.

"Its very purpose is to introduce one nation to another, not on political grounds—that is up to the governments—but on the plane of the people.

"By means of films and lectures distributed to 54 major nations, we are teaching the people of various countries how their international neighbors live.

Learn From Other Nations.

"Take for instance the natives of Syria. After they've seen a film depicting life and industry in this country, in Britain, or in Germany, they are able to compare their own methods of living and working with ours. From this comparison they may derive new ideas both for themselves and their community.

"Such films are distributed by the Bureau all over the world, and invariably audiences are admitted free. The effect has been enormous!"

Dr. Boggs has had 20 years of proof that such work is productive of splendid results. In 1913 just out of Bryn Mawr and filled with a motivating force to better humanity, she founded the Bureau of Commercial Economics. At that time it was merely an organization which sponsored educational films in this country—the first educational films ever to be shown.

Leading industrialists financed the filming of their plants. These were shown in community centers, or other public places where the working men could see them. In that way they learned what was going on in the way of industry, north, south, east, and west, and could form their own ideas about the work of which they wished to become a part.

Bureau Her 'Topsy.'

"From the very beginning the bureau was my little Topsy—it 'just growed,'" said Dr. Boggs. "Inside of three months after it was started, we were receiving letters from foreign countries inviting an exchange of films. Now nearly all the nations of the world are cooperating.

"Our efforts to promote international understanding have never been aimed at governments, although oftentimes our work has resulted in commercial treaties.

"That's entirely natural. Presentation of such films is little less than an exchange of economic ideas. People in one country see the farming or the manufacture in another country of the products they need. Immediately a contact takes place.

"We are proud of this phase of our work, but we regard the introduction of working people here and there, to working people elsewhere, as vastly more important.

"It is among this class that a real harmony is developed. An attunement to other peoples takes place. They can see with their own eyes that a mother whose son was killed in war is like the mother in any other corner of the world.

See We're All Alike.

"They begin to realize that the heart emotions of us all are the same, and with this realization comes a feeling of friendliness and goodwill. That is our aim."

Dr. Boggs explained that the work of the bureau was carried on in a somewhat different manner in Washington.

"Every year," she said, "we have ten diplomatic salons. People are admitted only by invitation. The guests include members of the Diplomatic Corps, Congressmen and officials of the United States Government.

"The counselor, or the first secretary to the embassy of the country in whose honor the salon is held, gives a short address, and then pictures of this foreign nation are flashed upon the screen. These give the latest economic data of that country, show certain of its industries and some of its geography.

Black Velvet Favored For Ultraformal Wrap

Paris (AP).—When it comes to gala occasions, the evening wraps which smart women wear are often as regal as the robe of a medieval queen. Many of them recall the clothes of the Middle Ages with their long flowing robes and big sleeves.

Black velvet is a favorite for the ultraformal wrap, many of which are given an added royal touch by an ermine trim. Lelong designs a black velvet wrap with deep sleeves which fall almost to the hem of the skirt and which are finished with a band of ermine. Lanvin fashions another in the same fabric with big bishop sleeves made entirely of the costly white fur.

Virginia's Famous Painters Exhibit

Troubetzkoy and Campbell Among Those to Show Works.

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 19 (Spl.). An exhibition of paintings by artists of Charlottesville, Albemale County, and the University of Virginia is being planned to be held here during the winter.

Artists in six communities, Richmond, Norfolk, Lynchburg, Danville, Lexington and here are forming organizations for the purpose of sponsoring exhibitions of local painters. After the shows have been held in home communities the paintings will be shown successively in the five other communities.

As the cycle is completed there will have been held in each locality six exhibits of work by Virginia artists.

Several artists whose work will be seen in the exhibition sponsored here are of national, even international prominence. Among these are Prince Pierre Troubetzkoy, Edmung S. Campbell, head of the University's art school; Duncan Smith and Eliot Clark.

Among those present at the first meeting of local artists were Prince Troubetzkoy, Prof. Campbell, Mr. Clark, Stanislaw J. Makielski, Hugh McLane, Mrs. J. K. Symmers, Mrs. Brooks Johnson Silvette, Mrs. E. T. Hagle, Mrs. James Bardin, Mrs. Roger Boyle, Mrs. Charles Henderson, Miss Anna Barringer, Miss Emily Duke, Miss Munn, Miss Barbara Rosser and Miss Anne Wood.

Max Gordon to Present Mary Pickford in Stage Play—Jed Harris' Lucky Break

Play Is Being Written by an Ace Dramatist

Mary's First Since "Devil"; Changes in "The Lake"; About Showshops.

Since filing her divorce suit against Douglas Fairbanks recently, Mary Pickford's plans for a continuance of her professional career have shaped themselves speedily.

From New York comes the wire report that Miss Pickford, temporarily abandoning the screen, will appear in a stage play at a date which it is now estimated will fall about the middle of February.

The play, in point of fact, has not as yet been written, but Max Gordon, the producer under whose managerial auspices it will be presented, states that it is being prepared by "one of America's leading playwrights," not otherwise indentified. Mr. Gordon further declared that the new play will open outside New York and be whipped into shape on the road, although specification again was wanting as to the city in which the premiere would be held.

"Our Mary's" Last.

If memory serves, Miss Pickford has not appeared in a play in the living theater since the late David Belasco's production of "The Good Little Devil," in which she played the role of a little blind girl opposite Ernest Truex. Having just then acquired her first world-wide screen fame as "Our Mary," she was so billed in the Belasco production. Lilian Gish also was a member of the company, along with numerous others who since have risen to stardom.

It is to be hoped that Miss Pickford's new venture behind the footlights, where she received all of her early training prior to appearing in pictures, will be as successful as her last under the Belasco aegis.

One learns belatedly that on Monday night three distinguished representatives of the municipal government of San Francisco, Calif., were interested spectators at Loew's Fox, where the principal features of the program are the screen production of "My Lips Betray," starring Lilian Harvey and John Boles, and George White's abridged version of his last edition of the "Scandals." The "city fathers" in question were Angelo Rocci, mayor; John J. O'Toole, district attorney, and Leonard Leavy, comptroller.

Salmaggi's Success.

With an attendance record of 20,000 patrons in the last three days of its run, the so-called Chicago Opera Company closed its six months' season at the New York Hoppodrome Monday night with a performance of Verdi's "La Traviata," the operatic version of "Camille."

Maestro Alfredo Salmaggi, whose Washington ventures were not crowned with such triumphant success as has attended his Manhattan enterprises, will take his company on the road for a national tour, opening in Atlanta early in the new year.

Since Salmaggi departed from Washington, after a desultory production or two in the Belasco Theater—at the last of which Nino Martini, the popular radio star, did not appear—his organization has presented in the neighborhood of 200 performances in the Hippodrome in New York since June to a total attendance of close to 900,000 persons. The final house was another of the Hippodrome's habitual "sellouts" under the Salmaggi management.

Alfredo Salmaggi is an imposing figure in or out of the operatic world. Standing well over 6 feet in height, with a great shock of jet black hair and a persuasive smile, he looks every inch the impresario—especially in his striking uniform of single-brested frock, striped trousers, broad-brimmed, black Stetson and flowing black windsor tie. He is the father of nine children, a supreme self-confidence and what has turned out to be a fine idea of grand opera at popular prices.

A new company, backed by several wealthy families in New York, who wish to perpetuate opera at low prices, will open at the Hippodrome in January, according to present plans.

Beginning Thursday, December 28, the Rialto Theater will present as its major screen attraction Universal's much-discussed picturization of Elmer Rice's play, "Counsellor at Law," with John Barrymore in the title role. This is the play in which Paul Muni was seen at the National last season. In the Muni role, the younger Barrymore is said to bring one of his most facile performances to the screen, supported by a splendid cast, led by Bebe Daniels, Doris Kenyon, Thelma Todd, Melvyn Douglas, Onslow Stevens and Mayo Methot. It is inconceivable that the Muni and Barymore methods in the interpretation of the pivotal role of the play should be identical, and curiosity is considerably stirred, therefore, by the promise of appreciable differences in treatment. It will be interesting to note whether Mr. Rice has written a genuinely actor-proof part.

A Little Play-Pruning.

Although Monday night's first performance on any stage of "The Lake," in which Jed Harris presented Katharine Hepburn as star, with Frances Starr, Blanche Bates, Colin Clive and Lionel Pape leading the supporting cast, betrayed few structural defects in the fashioning of the play itself, Mr. Harris has been busily engaged since the opening performance in tightening the drama's already closely knit fabric.

Last night the opening scenes of the first act revealed a liberal use of the pruning knife—perhaps too liberal. As presented last evening, the servants' entrances with the tea things were eliminated and the action was initiated by the immediate first entrance of Miss Starr, closely followed by Miss Bates. The dialogue, too, had been cut to delete some of the references to Miss Hepburn's escapade a-horseback with the husband of one of Miss Starr's early callers.

While these alterations may have had a quickening effect upon the projection of the play's central theme, they eliminated what some may have looked upon as desirable, if not actually essential, "building up" of atmosphere and situation. It seems to this observer that fullest comprehension of the true import of "The Lake" is retarded, rather than accelerated, by the scissoring of the preparatory matter, which was present in the script on Monday night.

However, Mr. Harris probably knows best. His errors in the theater have been neither frequent nor costly.

A Manager Denies.

Mr. Harris, by the way, heartily deprecates the acclaim that is being accorded him for an apparently supreme exhibition of managerial astuteness and foresight in signing Miss Hepburn for the stellar role in "The Lake."

He rather resents, one gathers, being patted on the back for a coup which he insists he did not intentionally consummate. It is, of course, common gossip that Jed Harris is being applauded for having beaten all of the other Broadway managers to the punch by putting under contract the most potent name in the theater at the moment. Since her triumphs on the screen in "Morning Glory," and "Little Women," there has not been another box-office name comparable to Miss Hepburn's.

But Mr. Harris insists with some asperity that that name is not the one he put under contract. It seems that arrangements were made for the production of "The Lake," with Miss Katharine Hepburn in the stellar role, while she was busy making her second film for RKO-Radio, "Christopher Strong."—stronger in title than in dramatic fiber, by the way.

Gave Small Promise.

The nature of the picture, while it was in production, was deemed such that no overpowering expectation was entertained that Miss Hepburn's option would be taken up by Radio. The assumption was that once more—as had happened variously on the stage—she would be a young actress who had been given a chance and then released from further obligation to her employers. It was at this juncture that Mr. Harris approached her with the project of doing "The Lake," a seeming opportunity to embark on a joint enterprise which both had long anticipated.

"Miss Hepburn," says Mr. Harris, "was not a big 'name' then. She was a comparative unknown, with only one or two moderate stage successes and many failures to her credit and no assurance that the future held anything definitely advantageous to her ambition for a career as an actress. I signed a young girl, without fame or any immediate prospect of it, as far as anyone could perceive at the time.

"The fact that Miss Hepburn's options were taken up and the further fact that she did score so tremendously in her next two pictures, was my good fortune. Certainly it was not the result of any clairvoyance on my part and the legends of my vaunted shrewdness in executing this tour de force in the theater is, consequently, purely a legend. I have merely been the beneficiary of a marvelous bit of luck. Show business is like that."

Speaking of "The Lake," as everybody will be throughout the remainder of the current week, there was a little unprogrammed drama during the first act intermission at the National Monday night. By some freak of magic materialization, a grimy, white alley cat appeared suddenly on the outside of the rail of the left stage box, terror-stricken and clinging to its precarious perch by no more than an eyelash and a couple of eager claws.

In imminent danger of falling on the heads of those sitting underneath, in total oblivion to the hazard that threatened them, the feline attendant at esthetic drama presented something of a problem, calling for the understanding and skill of a Frank Buck, who "brings 'em back alive."

Quickly appraising the situation, a young woman, whose reassuring ministrations soon won the confidence of the kitty, succeeded in lifting her out of danger to herself and those below. The act was greeted by as spontaneous a round of applause as any that greeted the later developments of one of the season's best plays.

Joe Cook Canceled.

It is one of the day's unhappy bits of news that Mr. J. J. Shubert, irked by what he deemed a too lukewarm attitude toward his vague carbon copy of the late Flo Ziegfeld's production of "Bitter Sweet," on its recent visit to the National Capital, is spanking Washington by canceling the proposed week's engagement of Joe Cook in "Hold Your Horses," scheduled to begin at the National on Monday, January 8.

Taking into consideration the personal popularity of Joe Cook in this city and the paucity of musical entertainment of the first grade this season, it is by no means a certainty that the Messrs. Shubert are not amputating their joint proboscis in order to achieve the usual futile result in such cases.

It is to be hoped they will reconsider and rescind their hasty action.

Inquisition.

Third Concert Is Given Here By Symphony

Stokowski Wields Baton for Philadelphia's Musicians.

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Presenting a program equally balanced between classicism and romanticism, the Philadelphia Orchestra gave its third Washington concert of the season last evening in Constitution Hall, under the magisterial direction of Leopold Stokowski. An alert audience, keenly appreciative of the shades of meaning in the conductorial readings and of the tonal nuances in the splendid organization, which was at its mettlesome best, waxed enthusiastic on every occasion when applause was in order.

The evening's musical delights began with the graces of Gluck as exemplified in the suite which Felix Mottl arranged some 30 years ago from the operas, "Iphigenie en Aulide," "Orfeo ed Euridice" and "Armide." From this music emanates the wistful charm of an epoch irrevocably evanished from our social ways. Despite the efforts of the composer to make it represent the chaste symmetry of the Grecian ideal, it reflects the age in which it was written.

Atmosphere of the Courtly.

A spirit ardent in the pursuit of beauty, Gluck succeeded to a remarkable degree in enmeshing loveliness in his melodic strands, but he was not great enough to transcend his own period. There remains, therefore, in his music, to us of a later day, the atmosphere of the courtly and a tinge of artificiality. But for all that, it has the timeless tinge of the etheral woven into its very fabric. The sweet sadness of the "Dance of the Blessed Spirits" in the Elysian Fields will rouse the same emotion in its hearers as long as music has its appeal.

Happily juxtaposed with Gluck was the G Minor Symphony of Mozart, one of those three masterpieces he wrote under the pressure of mounting debts. Every composer has favorite tonalities, and Mozart preferred G minor for his sadder moments as he liked C major when he was exuberant. His peculiar melancholy found its fullest and finest expression in this symphony.

His was the melancholy not of the embittered cynic or the frustrated libertine, but of a bewildered soul who did not understand why life had to be difficult for a man of good will. Consequently, there is no tinge of morbidity in the G Minor Symphony, but a gentle complaint at the inexplicable coil of circumstance in which he found himself. And no mortal complaint was ever voiced with such supreme felicity of phrase.

An Oriental Impression.

After the intermission, Mr. Stokowski introduced Henry Eichheim's latest Oriental impression, the gorgeously plangent "Bali," inspired by that East Indian isle which travelers tell us is the last earthly paradise unspoiled as yet by the mechanical age. Mr. Eichheim has for several years past been putting on scored paper the enchantment which the Far East wields over him, and this is by far the best of his orchestral weavings.

Although it appears, as do his previous pieces, like a mosaic of sound to Western ears, it has a more definite pattern, a closer molding of material to the lines of design. Its consistency is solid and its tonal colors are more firmly applied. At a first hearing, its most engaging quality is the use of discords which flash through the mass like bolts of lightning.

Voices Holiday Greetings.

The concert closed with an extraordinary reading of the pulsating "Liebesnacht" music from "Tristan und Isolde." Never have Mr. Stokowski's magical hands evoked more beauty from the orchestral instrument upon which they play.

From the spell of that interpretation the audience awoke to recall the enchanter again and again. At his last return, after some of the assemblage had left the hall, he spoke from the podium a wish for happiness, peace and understanding among all men for the coming year.

"I wish you a Merry Christmas, too," he said, "and if you can give the time, we will play you a little Russian Christmas music."

So it was with the sound of a liturgical chant in their ears, that the auditors dispersed after a program long to be remembered.

Court Annuls Dry Sentence

Circuit Court in Texas Voids Penalty Under Prohibition.

New Orleans, Dec. 19 (AP).—A two-year penitentiary sentence and a $500 fine, assessed for violation of the prohibition law in Texas, today was annulled by the United States Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, which held that eighteenth amendment repeal had voided the judgment.

The court said it found no error in the conviction in the trial court, but held that if "during the pendency in an appellate court of a criminal case the statute creating the crimes charged is repealed without any saving clause, the appellate court must dispose of the case under the law in force when the decision is given, though to do so requires reversal of the judgment which was right when rendered."

The appeal was brought from the Western District Federal Court of Texas, following the sentencing last May of Edwin Smallwood and his wife, jointly accused of violating the prohibition law.

Montgomery Dairymen Will Get Extensions

Montgomery County dairymen, who are unable to meet the recently promulgated health regulations because of financial reasons will be given time extensions if their cases have merit, it was decided last night by the county commissioners at a meeting in the courthouse at Rockville.

The commissioners received a petition from producers and consumers asking that the regulations, which become effective January 1, be held in abeyance. The commissioners decided against the proposal.

Kay Francis and Husband Are "Amicably Separating"

Film Stars Were Married on West Coast in January, 1931.

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—Kay Francis of the movies, and her husband, Kenneth MacKenna, are "amicably separating," Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., announced today.

They said the announcement was made at the request of Miss Francis, who is "somewhere in the country" just now.

The MacKennas were married in California, January 17, 1931. She went to the movies from Broadway, he from the banking business. Mac Kenna left finance for footlights during an actors' strike. He is really Leo Mielziner, brother of Jo Mielziner, scenic designer.

Miss Francis made her Broadway debut as the player queen in "Hamlet" in modern dress, in 1925. She also played with Stuart Walker's Stock Company and in other Broadway plays, including "Elmer the Great."

The marriage was Miss Francis' third. The actress never would tell the name of her first husband. The second was Dwight Francis, a business man, whose name she kept.

Hollywood, Dec. 19 (AP).—The Kay Francis-Kenneth MacKenna "amicable" separation came as news to most of Hollywood today.

Miss Francis made her film debut in an early talkie, "Gentlemen of the Press," and came to Hollywood soon thereafter, under contract to Paramount. Along with Ruth Chatterton and William Powell, she went to Warner Bros. two years ago in that studio's "star-raiding" campaign, which caused a flurry in the industry. She was starred recently in "Trouble in Paradise," "Man Wanted," "The Keyhole," "Mary Stevens, M. D." and "The House on Fifty-Sixth Street."

MacKenna came to the films from the stage play, "The Big Pond," and appeared in numerous pictures, including "Pleasure Crazed," "Crazy That Way," "Men Without Women" and "Sin Takes a Holiday."

Miss Francis' maiden name was Katherine Edwina Gibbs, and she was born in Oklahoma City.

International Matches.

Europe, due to the lesser distances between countries and capitals, has gone much further in the way of international Bridge matches than we on this side of the Atlantic. Here, if an American team wishes to cross swords and match wits with a team representing any other country, it is a matter generally of crossing an ocean, or, in the case of our neighbor to the north, Canada, riding hundreds, and perhaps thousands of miles. I have no doubt, judging from some examples I have seen of Canadian Bridge, that the trip, however long, would be worth while, and that Canadians would give a fine account of themselves against the strongest teams in the United States.

Some interesting examples of team-of-four play occurred in a recent match between Crockford's Club, of London, and a team representing Holland. One of the hands which produced a very considerable swing in favor of Crockford's team was the following:

West, Dealer.

	♠ A 5 ♡ A K 8 7 4 ◇ 5 ♣ 10 7 5 3 2
♠ 10 6 4 3 2 ♡ 5 2 ◇ J 10 6 4 ♣ 3 2	N W E S	♠ Q J 8 7 ♡ J 6 ◇ Q 9 7 ♣ J 9 6 4
	♠ K 9 ♡ Q 10 9 3 ◇ A K 8 ♣ A K Q 8

In Room 1 the British team was seated North and South and there the bidding went as follows:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♡	Pass	3♣
Pass	4♣	Pass	4◇
Pass	4♠	Pass	6NT
Pass	7♣	Pass	Pass
Pass

The bidding here is, of course, somewhat involved, due to the fact that at the time the hand was played Crockford's team had not been converted to the efficacy of the Four-Five Notrump Convention. However, by good fortune they reached the correct contract.

Where the Dutch team was seated North and South the bidding went:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass

The seven-club contract was made without difficulty, even with the four adverse clubs in one hand. The seven-heart contract was defeated, because East chose to open a club, which his partner ruffed. The lead, it must be admitted, on this bidding, was a lucky one as there is nothing in the bidding to make a club lead seem preferable to a spade or for that matter a diamond.

The hand is interesting as an example of the great strides in bidding which have been made recently. With the use of the Four-Five Notrump Convention, the Grand Slam could not be missed, and if it were to be played in hearts and West, desiring a club lead, should make a lead-directing Double, then North and South, with their massed and tremendous honor strength, could find a safe refuge in seven notrump, where ruffs are not available.

Tomorrow's Hand.

How should South defend against a contract of four hearts on the following hand after being allowed to take his partner's Opening lead of the club eight with the King?

West, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

	♠ Q 9 8 7 ♡ 8 ◇ Q J 10 9 8 7 6 ♣ 8
♠ 4 ♡ K Q J 10 7 6 ◇ A 2 ♣ Q 7 6 5	N W E S	♠ K 3 2 ♡ A 9 ◇ K 5 4 3 ♣ A J 4 3
	♠ A J 10 6 5 ♡ 5 4 3 2 ◇ — ♣ K 10 9 2

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Lily Pons Bares Secret Divorce As Philadelphia Season Opens

Metropolitan Star Wins Triumph for N. Y. Troupe in "Lakme."

Philadelphia, Dec. 19 (AP).—With Lily Pons in "Lakme," the Metropolitan Opera opened its Philadelphia season tonight in the Academy of Music.

Not since Tetrazzini sang this opera here 20 years ago has Philadelphia heard the tragic tale of the Indian maid and her luckless love for a British army officer.

Tonight was the first time in the history of the Metropolitan that the Philadelphia opening came before the inaugural at the home of the golden horseshoe in New York.

The shorter season in New York was the cause.

The visit of Pons, the Parisian coloratura, solved one question New York musical circles have been asking for some time—What had become of August Mesritz?

"Ways Just Drifted Apart."

Miss Pons disclosed she divorced the Dutch atttorney in Paris last Metropolitan, Mesritz was the companion of the soprano. Last year he did not show up. Frequent were the reports of a separation.

But Miss Pons kept her silence until today.

13,000 Applaud Prima Donna.

The singer said she and Mesritz were still good friends, that they lunch together when she is in Paris.

The Metropolitan opening was the formal opening of the Philadelphia winter social season. Society was on hand—braving a crowd of cameramen to dazzle and sparkle inside.

With Pons in the opera were Gladys Swarthout, the contralto, as Mallika, and Martinella as Gerald, the army officer.

The petite prima donna was in excellent voice tonight. Prolonged applause and many curtain calls were her reward from an audience of more than 3,000.

298 Convicts Get Parole in Alabama

41 More Free Saturday as Governor's Gift.

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 19 (AP).—The Yuletide spirit pervaded Alabama's penitentiary and road camps tonight as 298 long-term convicts eagerly awaited daybreak to start home for the holidays—their Christmas gift from Gov. B. M. Miller for meritorious prison service.

Although ill since November 13 with undulant fever, the chief executive sat up in bed and signed the official order that releases 298 convicts tomorrow, 41 trusties on December 23, and 21 cooks and waiters on January 3 for holiday paroles, in recognition of their outstanding records.

Those leaving at dawn, all of whom have served more than two years, are 65 white men, 8 white women, 201 Negroes, and 24 Negro women.

Gas Well Explodes, Injures 13 Persons

Geneva, N. Y., Dec. 19 (AP).—Thirteen persons were injured here tonight in a gas well explosion. Ten were taken to the Geneva hospital. Several were seriously hurt.

The explosion occurred at a new well on a farm three miles north of here. A spark from a small gasoline driven electric generator was blamed.

Speaker Describes Route of Pan-American Plane Line.

William Van Dusen, of the Pan-American Airways, last night described a flight around the South American continent with moving pictures in the seventh of a series of lectures sponsored by the Washington Travel Guild with the cooperation of The Washington Post at the Masonic Auditorium.

Van Dusen said that 200,000 passengers have made the flight over the route linking 21 countries in a system using 106 air liners, which carry 44 passengers, a ton of mail and express, and cruise at 120 miles per hour.

Starting from Miami, the planes land at Port Au Prince, Haiti, Santo Domingo, Peurto Rico and Port of Spain, Trinidad. The plane arrives in five days at the mouth of the Amazon River.

In turn the planes follow into Rio de Janiero harbor, Montevideo, and Buenos Aires.

The climax of the trip is a flight over the Andes Mountains at a height of 20,000 feet into Chile. The two-week flight ends in Peru after a visit to Guano Island.

The next lecture will be given January 9, with Walter T. Biscoe as speaker, on "India, Burma and Ceylon."

Ouster for Gold Policy Attack Refused.

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 19 (AP).—Attorney General John W. Bricker today refused to file court proceedings for ouster of "The Crusaders," an antiprohibition organization incorporated in Ohio, for its alleged attacks on Roosevelt's monetary policy.

Bricker wrote that since the acts were done only in New York he had no jurisdiction.

Weir Steel Plant On Full Schedule

Steubenville, Ohio, Dec. 19 (AP).—J. C. Williams, president of the Weirton Steel Co., announced today the Steubenville works of the company are operating on full schedule and that additional mills will be placed in operation at the Weirton, W. Va., plant within 10 days.

Williams said that orders received in the last four days promise a step-up during January and February.

ENTERED AS SECOND CLASS MATTER POSTOFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

D. C. Expects Million Tax On Liquors

Commissioners Put City Average Hard Drinking at .7 Gallon Yearly.

District Plan Finished; $1.10 Levy Proposed on Whisky.

Washingtonians are expected to drink enough hard liquor in 1934 to bring the per capita consumption to seven-tenths of a gallon, or 350,000 gallons for the city.

This was revealed last night as the basis for an estimate of $1,000,000 which the District Commissioners hope to collect next year from beer, wine, and liquor taxes and license fees.

Commissioner George E. Allen also disclosed the scale of license fees to be recommended to the Board of Commissioners in the legislation drafted by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride. The complete bill, following a final check today and tomorrow, will be submitted to the board Friday.

The Commissioners have virtually agreed upon a local liquor tax of $1.10 a gallon because of the certainty that Maryland legislators on District Congressional committees will insist that the Washington tax parallel Maryland's levy, so that local dealers will not be able to undersell nearby Maryland retailers as is the case in gasoline.

Wine Tax, 60 Cents a Gallon.

The tax on wines and champagne probably will be fixed at 60 cents a gallon, and the $1 a barrel tax on beer will be retained.

Allen, Bride and Auditor Daniel J. Donovan at a conference yesterday arrived at the $1,000,000 estimate by figuring that the hard liquor tax would produce $385,000, the wine tax $100,000 and the beer tax $150,000. The remaining $365,000 or so would be raised by license fees.

Afterward Allen expressed the personal belief that the liquor revenue had been underestimated and that the District income would be nearer $1,250,000.

The scale of license fees agreed upon is as follows: distillers, $2,000; wholesalers, $1,000; retailers, $800; hotels, $1,000; private clubs, $500; drug stores limited to filling prescriptions for liquor, $25; boats, $10 a month, and dining cars, $5 a month. Beer retailers would continue to pay $100.

Three $6,000 Jobs Provided.

The legislation contemplates the abolition of the beverage permits board, now headed by Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Fowler, and the taking over of its duties by the liquor control board. The latter would be composed of three full-time members, paid $6,000 a year, and employing a dozen or more clerks.

Administration cost of the liquor and beer control is expected to be limited to 7 per cent of the revenue.

The Commissioners will hold no further hearings after approving the legislation, but will forward it immediately to the Senate and House District Committees.

They will give an audience tomorrow, however, to the Columbia Heights Citizens Association, which contends it has a peculiar problem in that a large residential area is adjacent to a completely commercial section. The 51 per cent proposal, the citizens assert, would in most instances deprive residents of the power to bar liquor sales in their immediate neighborhoods.

New Trial Appeal Filed In White Slave Case

Attorney for Mike Borelli, of Shamokin, Pa., convicted with two others of conspiring to violate the White Slave act, yesterday filed motion for a new trial. The others, Louis Rolando and Arthur Biazzi, have not yet filed motions.

Assistant United States Attorney Julian Richards, prosecutor, yesterday said he did not believe argument for the new trial could be heard before the Christmas holidays. The trio are now in the District Jail.

Drummer Admits Taking 13 Piano Keys.

And Frank Abbo, manager, is worried because the orchestra can't play "Annie Doesn't Live Here Anymore," or anything else. So he has sworn out a warrant charging Gene Allen, of 2039 Second street northeast, a former trap drummer at the club, with purloining the missing ivories.

Served with the warrant by Washington police yesterday, Allen admitted taking the missing octave and five eights from the piano. But, later, he said he put them back on the club's porch.

Allen said he took the keys—valued at $5 apiece—in lieu of $65 back wages. He says this was later paid and that was when he put the keys back.

More of the missing piano keys will be heard in court.

285 Gallons Of Rum Taken In Montgomery

Four Arrested at Castle Gatehouse on State Dry Charges.

Montgomery County's first liquor raid since the repeal of the eighteenth amendment was made yesterday on the gatehouse of Rossdhu Castle, netting 285 gallons of alleged alcohol and four prisoners who were charged with violation of the Maryland liquor law.

The Maryland statute provides that liquor can only be sold by dispensaries or hotels and clubs. The gatehouse was used as a private residence. It is also illegal to sell liquor on which the State tax has not been paid. Rossdhu Castle is just off the Brookeville pike in Maryland, near the East-West highway.

Police said that in less than half an hour orders for more than 1,000 gallons of liquor were received over the two phones. One of the raiders was kept busy in taking the orders. One of the calls was for 50 gallons, police asserted.

Those arrested gave their names as Mrs. Betty Donnelly and her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Donnelly, living at the gatehouse, and George Woodin and Hunter McGuire Jordan, of Washington. They were charged with possession of liquor with intent to sell, and held in bond of $500. Trials are set for January 15 at Rockville.

The raiders were led by W. R. Blandford, deputy prohibition administrator for the Washington district.

Attorneys for Clarence C. Calhoun, owner of the Castle, said last night that the persons who rented the gatehouse had been ordered last Friday to move. Those arrested had no connection with the Castle itself, it was said.

Optimist Club to Boost Post's Toy Fund Today

The gathering of the Washington Optimist Club at the Hamilton Hotel today will be "The Washington Post Toy Fund Luncheon." Each member will bring a toy to go to The Post's Santa Claus.

A Christmas program is planned for the luncheon, at 12:30 p. m. Carols will be sung by 10 young women, under the direction of Mrs. J. Lester Brooks. The Rev. George Farnum will deliver a Christmas message.

Message From St. Nick Approves Work at His Shop Here.

A message expressing his confidence in the people of Washington and their Christmas spirit arrived last night at the headquarters of the Washington Post Toy and Doll Fund in the Washington Building at Fifteenth street and New York avenue from Santa Claus in his North Pole workshop.

While the need for toys and funds to buy toys has become more apparent as Christmas Eve and stocking-filling time approaches, jolly old St. Nicholas says he knows toys being sent the fund will increase during the next five days before Christmas.

Those in charge of the Toy Fund with some ready volunteers are busy at Santa Claus' headquarters filling requests in letters sent to The Washington Post.

Each letter is read and the wishes of the little writer filled as far as possible. If a little girl wants a doll with a blue dress on, those in charge of the Toy Fund are not going to send her a doll with a pink dress, provided they have a blue-gowned doll. The boys who want books and games are sure to find books and games in their stockings Christmas morning.

Bring in Many Gifts.

Among the visitors to the Toy Fund headquarters yesterday were many tiny boys and girls who wanted to bring their contributions to the fund themselves and drop their own letters to Santa Claus in the red chimney postoffice box. The letters are removed every night.

Just as the pile of dolls of the headquarters of The Post Toy and Doll Fund in the Washington Building was growing rather low, in came a merry group of girls from the Woods Secretarial College yesterday with 103 dolls the members of the school had dressed for the fund.

The Typothetae of Washington, through its entertainment committee headed by S. P. Olmer, sent a choice collection of toys, the proceeds of its annual Christmas party.

Light Signals Rearranged in Hope of Solving Confusion.

An experiment to solve the traffic problem at Thomas Circle, and subsequently at other circles, was ordered yesterday by the District Commissioners upon recommendation of Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer.

The scheme is to separate Fourteenth street traffic from that entering from Massachusetts, Vermont avenue and M street.

Electric signals on the inner rim of the circle will be operated in three timing periods instead of two, so Fourteenth street traffic will move while vehicles from the other thoroughfares wait.

The plan is similar to that at Scott Circle, except that traffic will not be divided into two lanes by means of concrete barriers.

Traffic will be allowed 45 seconds on each cycle, with 20 seconds for pedestrians—when all lights will be red.

Thomas Circle has long furnished a difficult traffic problem.

A proposal to reduce the park area and reroute street cars through the center was advocated for a long while by Engineer Commissioner John C. Gotwals, but was finally blocked.

If the three-period operation proves practicable, it will be applied to Dupont Circle, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen said.

Loan Office Asks Arrests In Fee Cases

Results of Illinois Probe Given Justice Dept. for Action.

Favor Racket Is Found in Several States, Fahey Says.

Additional steps for criminal prosecution of persons attempting to collect money in return for Government favors were taken yesterday.

Facts involving the Illinois office of the Home Owners Loan Corporation were turned over to the Department of Justice with a request for criminal prosecution. The investigation is said to have revealed alleged illegal activities of some of the employes of the corporation of at least two lawyers, one at Chicago and one at Joliet, and of several persons active in politics.

John H. Fahey, chairman, announced he had asked both the Department of Justice and the Postoffice Department to investigate alleged irregularities and the influence peddling in other States. He declared illegal practices are not confined to Illinois.

P. W. A. Probe Continues.

At the Public Works Administration, where the drive on lobbyists began, it was stated that the Department's own investigators still are busy collecting facts, some of which have been turned over to the Justice Department. It was added that the Interior Department had been advised there is sufficient legal basis for prosecution.

Investigators still are checking the activities of persons who are said to have been involved in the Home Owners Loan Corporation situation in Chicago. It was said at least two lawyers there have been collecting fees in direct violation of Federal law.

Had to "See" Politicians.

These lawyers, it was said, approached both mortgage holders and home owners, informing them that for a fee they could obtain more favorable exchange of bonds. It was said persons interested in mortgage exchanges had been told that such a favor could be accomplished only if certain politicians were "seen."

"We are placing at the disposal of the Department of Justice such information as we have obtained," Fahey said.

"Complaints of this sort are not limited to the State of Illinois. We have information concerning similar attempts in some of the other States. We are asking the Department of Justice to carry the matter through with a view to prosecution.

Believe Mails Are Used.

"Because we have every reason to believe that the mails have been used, we are also asking the Postoffice Department to make an investigation."

At the Public Works Administration it was said that information is being turned over to the Department of Justice only after it has been gathered and confirmed by investigators of the Interior Department.

The Home Owners Loan Corporation law provides a maximum fine of $10,000 and maximum imprisonment of five years for persons collecting fees to "put over" transactions. While the Public Works Administration has no such statutory safeguard, laws covering false pretenses and extortion are expected to apply.

Henry G. Zander, jr., of Chicago, was named manager of the Home Owners Loan Corporation office in Illinois. The office was closed following resignation of William G. Donne as manager.

Philip W. Kniskern, of New York, who has been assigned to Illinois to advise relative to the appraisal conditions in that State, has been retained by the Home Owners Loan Corporation as consulting expert on appraisal problems.

Truck Driver's Necktie Cut Off by 2 Companions.

It seems that "necktie parties" are not unusual in the fraternity of truck drivers, but this one ended in Police Court.

Bernie Jennings, truck driver, testified yesterday that when he went to work last Sunday wearing a necktie, it was cut off by two brother truckdrivers, Albert Beale and John Burns. They were charged with assault.

They testified it was against rules for a truck driver to work with a necktie.

Cancer Salve Proved Cure, Says Witness

Doctors' Counsel Offers Testimony of Former Patients.

Technical Wrangle Halts Manslaughter Charge Trial at Rockville

Patients of Dr. Sherwood Ferris and Dr. Harry Street, who claim to have been cured by the same salve which, the State alleges, caused the death of Mrs. Cora Britton, yesterday testified in defense of the two physicians on trial on manslaughter charges in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville.

When the State rested its case, the defense brought forward a number of patients who had been subjected to applications of the same salve, which the State contends resulted in Mrs. Britton's death while under treatment for cancer.

Mrs. A. A. Brensinger, 71, of Takoma Park, Md., testified that Dr. Street, a Washington physician, treated her 23 years ago for a tumor. After the treatment, she said, the growth disappeared.

Witnesses Questioned

"Was the treatment successful?" asked States Attorney Prescott.

"If it wasn't, I wouldn't be here," she replied.

Mrs. Nellie Elkins, of Towson, Md., told the jury that the same salve had been used in treating her for a tumor, and while some healthy tissue was destroyed, the growth was successfully removed. Other witnesses were prepared to testify regarding the curative value of the salve when proceedings were halted by a technical dispute between defense and State attorneys over admissibility of evidence.

The State completed its case with testimony of chemists who declared that the salve used in treatment of Mrs. Britton would have "dissolved a substance as hard as wood."

Dr. W. B. Penniman, a Baltimore chemist, testified that he found zinc in Mrs. Britton's kidneys and other organs. In his opinion, he said, the tissue about Mrs. Britton's ribs was dead before she died.

Death Due to Toxemia.

The death of Mrs. Britton was caused by toxemia, due to burning away the area to which the salve was applied, testified Dr. Howard J. Maldies, Baltimore medical examiner. In his opinion, he said, the body showed no indications of malignant cancer, for which Mrs. Britton was being treated.

U. S. Living Costs Survey Is Rushed

Fate of Federal Pay Is Resting on Study.

The Department of Labor's cost-of-living survey, on which restoration of the Federal paycut largely depends, will be ready for president Roosevelt Saturday, Secretary Perkins—said yesterday.

Although the Secretary did not indicate recommendations in the report, it is generally believed the indexes show a sufficient increase in living costs to justify restoration of at least part of the 15 per cent cut.

Work on the report is being rushed to get it to the White House before Christmas. President Roosevelt has until January 1 to act.

Cab Fare Asks $5,000, Charging Sudden Stop

En route in a taxi to a World Series baseball game here in the fall, W. Newton Jeffries, Stoneleigh Court, had his trip "interrupted by the carelessness" of the cab driver, his attorney, Godfrey L. Munter, said yesterday in filing a damage suit for $5,000.

The suit named Harold V. Robey and the Independent Taxi Owners Association as defendants. Jeffries claims he was thrown from his seat into a window and injured when the cab stopped abruptly on Rhode Island avenue.

Repeal Fails to Dull Lady Temperance

Now that repeal is in effect, Miss Temperance is receiving a lot of attention. Workmen are brightening her up a bit. She is a Greek maiden in white flowing robes, painted on a red wall panel in the Library of Congress. She still smiles proudly by her sisters—Industry, Courage, Patriotism, Justice and Fortitude. She faces the Capitol, where she can watch lawmakers wrestle with the liquor control problem. In her right hand she holds a bottle, but it contains water and flows to a bowl in her left hand.

D. C. Budget Plan to Stand, Rainey Feels

Doubt that Congress will approve radical changes in the present system of handling the District budget was expressed yesterday by Speaker Henry T. Rainey.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen has urged that the budget be removed from control exercised over it by the Bureau of the Budget.

Speaker Rainey prefaced his comment with a statement that he was disposed to leave District legislation largely in the hands of responsible committees and those who have made a more thorough study of local affairs than he has.

Representative Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, chairman of the House District Committee, and others have urged radical revision of the present system. Removing the District budget from control of the Budget Bureau, it is argued, would make for a closer relationship between District authorities and Congress than does the present arrangement.

The proposals, however, are expected by those familiar with the situation in the House to meet with determined opposition from several quarters. In contrast with such opposition changes will have the earnest support of only a few, while the great bulk of the members will take no great interest.

Considerable influence will be had by the action of the Senate District Committee. Senator William H. King, of Utah, chairman, is to receive soon a report on changes in the present law. This report is being prepared by a committee composed of William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel; Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, and F. J. Bailey, of the Budget Bureau.

District Water Works Control Contract Let

Award of a $26,522 contract for furnishing and installing control equipment at the Dalecarlia Reservoir Pumping Station was announced yesterday by the War Department.

Unions Seek CWA Hiring Plan Change

Bearing charges that the District Employment Agency is violating both Civil Works and Public Works provisions by its method of hiring building trades workers, a committee representing organized labor here will call today on Harry L. Hopkins, C.W.A. Administrator, demanding a showdown.

The protest will be made by the Washington Building Trades Council. It will be lodged by John Locher, executive secretary, and Charles F. Scott, Larry Kelly and John Fitzgerald, union business agents.

According to the council, David L. Ruml, head of the local employment bureau, is not complying with the C. W. A. provision that union men may be hired directly through locals instead of having to be placed through an employment bureau.

Hopkins has been quoted as saying this rule, which makes a concession to unions, is fair.

Young Democrats to Meet.

Coast Guard Cash-Saving Merger Nears

High Officials Debate Issue in White House Meeting.

President Roosevelt has virtually agreed to merge the Coast Guard, Lighthouse Service and the Navy, it was reported on good authority late yesterday, as a $2,000,000 economy measure.

The merger was discussed at a White House conference during the afternoon, attended by Rear Admiral Henry G. Hamlet, commandant of the Coast Guard; Acting Treasury Secretary Morgenthau; Budget Director Lewis Douglas, Admiral William Standley, chief of naval operations, and Henry L. Roosevelt, assistant Navy secretary.

It was stated the President and Navy Department strongly favor the merger, and that aligned against the consolidation are the Coast Guard and its present supervisor, the Treasury Department. After thorough discussion of the proposal, it was understood the President virtually decided the merger would be undertaken.

Shippers Oppose Merger.

It is claimed $2,000,000 a year will be saved. Coast Guard officials have challenged this.

The merger has been rumored for some time. Marine associations, shippers' groups and seaboard towns have opposed the proposal.

Navy authorities, however, long have cherished ambitions to take over the Coast Guard. The services have been consolidated in wartime and when the President was Assistant Secretary of the Navy he made a study of unification.

The merger, it was understood, is to be effected shortly after January 1 by the President's executive order under powers conferred upon him by Congress to merge Government bureaus and agencies for economy. It would require that Congress either raise objections in 61 days after the order or allow the matter to pass.

New Navy Jobs Expected.

What effect the merger would have on the personnel of the Coast Guard has not been developed, but Navy men say the consolidation would create positions for commissioned naval officers. The record of the past year does not support this view, as economy moves in the guard reduced its forces by approximately 1,500 men and 200 officers.

A further effect would be discontinuance of the Guard training school and recruiting of Guard officers from Annapolis.

The Guard at present is under the Treasury Department, and one of its principal functions has been that of customs assistance and suppression of smuggling.

The Lighthouse Service now is under the Department of Commerce. It was felt logical to merge this with the Navy Coast Guard in a single service.

D. C. Fighter Staggers Italian

DONALD "REDS" BARRY, last night earned the right to clamber into a local ring without being inundated in a shower of catcalls by soundly trouncing Salvatore Rugirello in a ten-round bout at Portner's. The highly touted "Italian Giant," who turned out to be lighter and very little taller than his conqueror, made a valiant effort to get over his vaunted knockout punch, but 'twas all in vain.

Strange as it seems, Barry, the powder-puff puncher who reputedly can not pound his way out of a cellophane wrapper, three times had "he who gets slapped" on the verge of a knockout, but each time the Italian managed to remain perpendicular. Barry displayed a brand of improved speed, improved ringmanship and improved punching power that brought almost continuous cheers from the crowd of 1,500, most of whom had come in the hope of seeing his nose buried in the canvas by the hard-punching Rugirello.

Shakes Barry in First.

In the first round Rugirello cautioned Barry against becoming reckless by lashing out with a ponderous left hook to the jaw that shook the Southeast red head to the heels. Forwarned, Barry boxed carefully and sanely for the rest of the bout, indulging in a minimum of the clownish tactics which have so often enabled less capable opposition to make better showings than they should against him.

Barry pumped a thumping left hook to the head and body almost continuously. Barry crossed a right neatly to the heart and jaw almost continuously. Barry brought up well-timed uppercuts to the button almost continuously. After a few rounds of this, Rugirello was so badly befuddled he didn't know whether he was in the ring with one heavyweight or five flyweights.

Italian Dazed in Seventh.

In the seventh round Barry pounded the Italian so soundly that Rugirello was in a daze at the bell, which may or may not have saved him from a knockout. In the ninth Barry landed a left, a right, another left and a right uppercut that almost knocked out Rugirello, who remained right-side-up by virtue of some desperate ducking and clinching. Rugirello was again foggy and wobbly at the bell which sounded the end of the final round and completed the redemption of Barry.

Barry weighed 202 pounds, Rugirello 192.

Jackie Aldair outboxed an improved Henry Irving to take a close decision in a stirring six-round semifinal. Irving lost the first three rounds, but the Northeast Noggin Knocker made a strong comeback in the fourth and almost pounded Aldair to the floor in the fifth with hard rights and lefts. The sixth was even.

Walter Kirkwood won the decision from Big Boy Smith in another six. In the fours, Baby Charles decisioned Joe Raspi and Roma La Bona knocked out Bill Howell in 1 minute and 5 seconds with a right hand to the button.

Bailey Clings To Gain in Life Fight

Injured Hockey Player Is No Better, No Worse; Shore Must Rest.

BOSTON, Dec. 19 (AP).—The stubborn, and to the medical profession, amazing battle that Irvin "Ace" Bailey, injured Toronto hockey player, is waging for his life continued unabated tonight at the City Hospital.

Dr. Donald Munro, who performed two delicate operations on the sportsman's fractured skull, said Bailey still held the slight gain he made after last night's sudden relapse.

"He is just as he was this morning," the report said, "no better and no worse. He continues to take nourishment through the veins and his chart is a bit nearer normal than it was this morning. His temperature is holding between 101 and 102, his pulse is 80 and tending downward, and his respiration is close to normal, ranging from 25 to 30.

Remains Unconscious.

"He slept this afternoon, and it seemed to be a natural nap. He is unconscious, but can be aroused. It is naturally advisable to avoid all possible strain and not arouse him any more than is necessary.

"The brain condition seems to be satisfactory as far as I can determine. He has definitely got no worse during the last 24 hours."

Eddie Shore, of the Boston Bruins, the other principal in professional hockey's most serious accident in 30 years, continues in a terribly harassed mental state. Broken in mind and spirit since he collided with Bailey in last Tuesday night's game, he was on the verge of a collapse today when he asked Charles F. Adams, president of the Boston Bruins, to select a place to which he could retire and regain his shattered health.

Shore insisted, however, that no move be made until Bailey's fight for life was settled.

Miss Jacobs Voted '33 Sports Queen

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—Helen Hull Jacobs, United States tennis champion and outstanding player in the Wightman Cup series with Great Britain, today took her place alongside Carl Owen Hubbell, the New York Giants' great southpaw, as an oustanding performer in sports for 1933.

Over a third of 179 sports experts, balloting in the third annual Associated Press sports poll, named the former crown princess of tennis as the Queen of Sports for 1933 as they had named Hubbell the outstanding performer among the men.

Helen Jacobs, National tennis champion, 64.
Virginia Van Wie, National golf champion, 45.
Katherine Rawls, all-around swimming champion, 16.
Dorothy Campbell Hurd, golfer, 5.
Helen Hicks, golfer, 4.
Helen Wills Moody, Wimbledon tennis champion, 3.
Mildred ("Babe") Didrickson, all-around athlete, 2.
Alice Marble, tennis player, 2.
One vote each for Anne Townsend, field hockey; Joyce Wethered, British golfer; Glenna Collett Vare, golfer, and Sarah Palfrey, tennis player.

Diegel's 69 Tops Golf Practice at Pasadena

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 19 (AP).—Leo Diegel demonstrated convincingly today he is going to be tough to beat in the Pasadena $4,000 open golf tournament which starts Thursday, by turning in a practice round of 69, 2 strokes under par for the Brookside course, where the championship will take place.

Craig Wood, defending champion, also was in good form with a par 71. Willie Googin, San Francisco, shot a 72.

The tournament will end Sunday, with the winner receiving $1,000 first-place money.

$32 Claim Threatens To Stop Portner Show

Mushky Jackson, New York local agent of Barry Managers, Inc., refused to allow his charge to enter the ring against Salvatore Rugirello until he was paid the sum of $32 for the expense of traveling from New York, where Barry trained, to Washington, where he fought, and return. The Portner's promoters claimed their agreement with Patsy Donovan, vice president and general manager of Barry Managers, Inc., called for a straight 20 per cent of the gate and no expenses.

Jackson remained adamant, Donovan remained noncommittal and Barry remained dumb during the ensuing haggling. The promoters finally paved the way for Barry's return to local glory my paying the $32.

Gotham Crowd Fetes Lions At Station

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 (AP).—Supposedly cold-blooded New York roared the Lions of Columbia westward today with a send-off that was almost hysterical as the first football team ever invited from Manhattan Island set out to battle Stanford in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif., New Year's Day.

A small town beauty contest winner leaving in glory for Hollywood never caused more concentrated excitement than did the departure of Lou Little and his 30 warriors, assistant coaches, wives and newspapermen to the number of another 20, from Pennsylvania Station on a special train at 3:40 p. m.

Mayor John P. O'Brien raced away from a board of estimate meeting, and charged through a howling mob of 2,000 in the station.

The Police Glee Club was already lined up, and the police band of some 40 pieces. They knew no Columbia songs, but they did have "California Here We Come" burning holes in tubas, cornets and trombones and they all but lifted the domed roof from the station.

The glee club sang, students cheered and broke through police lines, girls tried to kiss the players, a couple of suit cases were lost.

The mayor grouped the football players about him in a huddle to escape the din.

"Bring home the bacon," he yelled, like a quarter back calling signals. "Beat Stanford. We'll be rooting, every one of us. You mustn't fail."

Coaches from the Metropolitan district, headed by "Chick" Meehan, slapped Coach Little on the back and shouted advice and encouragement above the din. Flashlights were popping all over the place. Trainmen hustled the grinning kids aboard, hurled in the last few suit cases, and as the band gave its final all, the glee club strained its vocal cords, coeds squealed, students leaped and cheered, and whistles tooted, the caravan pulled out.

Miller Signed By Navy as '34 Coach.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 19 (AP).—Edgar E. (Rip) Miller, one of the seven mules of Notre Dame, will return to the United States Naval Academy next fall as head football coach, a position he has held for the past two years.

Miller's reappointment was carried in a single sentence in a formal announcement today from Capt. John W. Wilcox, jr., United States Navy, retiring head of the department of physical training and director of athletics at the academy. It read:

Other changes in the athletic staff as announced by Capt. Wilcox were the naming of Lieut. Comdr. John H. Brown, jr., as director of football, and Lieut. Thomas J. Hamilton as assistant director of football.

Capt. Giffin Given Post.

Capt. Wilcox, who completes his tour of shore duty in June, will be succeeded by Capt. Robert C. Giffin, now commanding the U. S. S. Neches, as head of the department of physical training and director of athletics.

Rip Miller, who learned his football under the late Knute Rockne and in the line in front of the "four horsemen," came to the Naval Academy in 1926 as head line coach under Head Coach William (Bill) Ingram. With the exception of one season, Miller has since been at the academy, the last two of which he has been head coach.

Commander Brown, at present the executive officer of the department of physical training, will relieve Lieut. Comdr. Harvey E. Overesch, whose four of shore duty ends in June. Commander Overesch will continue as director of athletics until he leaves the academy.

Hamilton a Former Star.

Lieut. Hamilton, who is now attached to the U. S. S. Milwaukee, on the West Coast, will report here upon orders from the Navy Department in Washington. He was a three-letter man in football, basket ball and baseball, while a midshipman, and won the athletic association sword for excellence in athletics in 1927.

Both Miller and Hamilton have worked together before. When Miller was an assistant coach of the Navy National championship team in 1926, Hamilton was its quarter back and both were assistant coaches the following year.

Commander Brown won the athletic asociation sword while he was a midshipman at the academy and was a star guard on the eleven.

Nats' Defense Rated Best In League

Top All Clubs in Fielding for 1933 With Team Average of .979.

Cronin and Kuhel Best in Circuit at Short and First Base.

OFFICIAL averages yesterday were ground out in wholesale quantities by the American League figure mill, the result being that fans who like to study the dope and see how their various idols compare with others in the circuit have enough figures to mull over to keep them busy until after the holidays, for two complete sets of statistics were turned loose on the long-suffering public. And it might be mentioned that the Nationals fare well in both.

Manager Joe Cronin and his charges, who led the league in team batting, are No. 1 in fielding, too, their average of .979, the same figure credited them in 1932, being but a point behind the world record in this respect.

Although the Nats finished third in double-plays, trailing Detroit and St. Louis, they tied a world record and established a league one for double-killings in a single game when they turned in six against the New York Yankees in a game played on September 30.

Cronin, Kuhel at Top.

Individually, the Nats furnished two leaders in their respective positions, Cronin topping all shortstops, while Kuhel was the league's best fielding first-sacker. Several pitchers fielded their positions perfectly, and the Nats boasted two of them in General Al Crowder and Jack Russell. Ossie Bluege, at third, played second fiddle to Willie Kamm, of the Indians, while Buddy Myer was fourth best among the middle-cushion guardians, who were topped by the peppy St. Louis veteran, Oscar Melillo.

Luke Sewell, although rated as among the best in the league, had to be satisfied with fifth position among the regular catchers, while in the other position yet to be accounted for—outfield—Dick Porter, of the Tribe, led the pack, with the two nearest Nats being Heinie Manush and Fred Schulte. They ranked sixth and seventh, respectively.

Two Indians Shine.

Two individual records were broken and another tied, Cleveland players being the honor men in two instances. Kamm, who topped the third-sackers for the seventh time in his career, set a new high with his .984 average, while Porter's outfield average of .995 tied the mark set by Sammy West in 1928. Melillo's .921 gives second-sackers a new mark at which to shoot.

Cronin and Kuhel also were Nat heroes according to the "miscellaneous" records compiled by the league. They finished fourth and fifth, respectively, in the important item of driving in runs, with Manush pulling up in thirteenth position. Foxx, Gehrig and Simmons occupied the three top positions, with the leader having the fine figure of 163 for his efforts. Cronin drove in 118, Kuhel 107, and Manush 95, giving Washington's "big three" a total of 320 against 469 sent across by all of their mates combined.

Babe Ruth coaxed the most passes, 114; Foxx fanned the most times, 93; while Jimmy Dykes, of the Chisox, was the best target while at the plate, being hit an even dozen times by opposing pitchers.

Loughran-Carnera Title Fight Sealed

New York, Dec. 19 (U.P.).—Tommy Loughran, former light-heavyweight champion of the world, today accepted terms to fight Primo Carnera, heavyweight title holder, at Miami on February 22.

The bout will be 15 rounds and Carnera's title will be at stake.

Joe Smith signed for Tommy and Billy Duffy for Carnera. All that is needed to make Carnera's acceptance is the signature of Louis Soresi, his Italian manager.

Although the percentage which Loughran will accept was not revealed, it is understood he will get the usual challenger's cut of 12½ per cent. Previously he had demanded a higher figure on the grounds that he too was a champion—American light-heavyweight title holder.

Sonnenberg and Rival Leave Ring, Bout Draw

Chicago, Dec. 19 (AP).—Gus Sonnenberg, of Boston, once recognized as heavyweight wrestling champion, and Jack Smith, of Chicago, settled for a draw at the Arcadia Garden tonight, when neither could continue after one of Smith's flying tackles had carried both from the ring.

Smith's lunge, the second of a series, hurled him and his opponent into the laps of ringside customers. The referee counted 20 before the boys had even started to climb back into the ring, and the bout was declared a draw after 29:30. Sonnenberg weighed 205; Smith, 200.

Charles (Buckets) Goldenberg, a member of the Green Bay Packers professional football team, defeated Joe (Big Bad) Wolfe.

Cavanaugh's Shot at End Decisive

JIMMY CAVANAUGH, the red-headed basket maker of Roosevelt High School floor team, made a last-minute circus shot to win a hard-fought game from Takoma-Silver Spring yesterday, 17-16. The contest was played at Silver Spring.

It was an uphill battle as far as Roosevelt was concerned. The Springers got off to an early start with Clark, center, and Vandervoort, guard, slipping in a pair of baskets from the center of the floor—both spectacular shots.

Springers in Lead.

At half-time the Springers were leading the Ruf Riders 9-5. However, the Roosevelt team then began its fight to overhaul the home team. Going into the final stanza, the Springers held a two-point margin. Baroni's charity throw cut it to one. Wild action followed, both teams taking the ball from each other. With time fast fading, Cavanaugh grabbed the ball and with an unaccountable hook, zipped it through the loop, to win the game.

G. W. Freshman Win.

The George Washington frosh five won its fourth straight victory of the season, defeating the strong Wilson Teachers quintet, 49-39, last night in the George Washington gym. The Colonial yearlings got off to an early start that showed a 26-12 margin at the half. McGibbony, Russell, Cannefax, and Forst were outstanding for the freshmen, while Fox and Fisher were the standouts for the Teachers.

Tech Five Triumphs.

Led by Red Daly and Leo McGahey, who scored 9 and 10 points, respectively, the McKinley Tech basket ball team soundly trounced the McDonough School, of Baltimore, in the Tech gym yesterday, 34-19. The Baltimore team managed to keep up with the local five in the first half, but a heavy splurge of Tech baskets in the second half completely routed the Macs. Allers, of McDonough, however, was the high scorer of the day, dumping 4 field goals and 3 baskets for 11 points.

High School Highlights

JIMMY GARNER, who was quite a threat in the Roosevelt back field the past season, is now handling the managership of the Ruf Rider basket ball team. Jimmy has also sent in his O. K. to play on the all-star Washington scholastic football team that is slated to meet a similarly recruited outfit from Baltimore, in Baltimore, on New Year's Day.

At an informal Christmas party prior to the start of the holidays, Georgetown Prep athletes received some fancy gifts last night.

Four of the five members of the Gonzaga basket ball team were also members of the school's eleven. They are Tom Roach, center and matinee idol of the Christmas school play; Ed Thebedau, Maury Luebkert and Ken Folliard.

In the Alumni Reunion Day at Eastern tomorrow, the Eastern alumni team will be coached by Heap Big Chief Charley Guyon, while the Tech alumni team will be handled by the Boyd-Hardell combo. The game should be somewhat of a pip.

One of the late season highlights on the Georgetown Prep basket ball slate is the game with Regis High of New York City. The Gotham scholastics specialize in basket ball tically all their games. The game and have a habit of winning practis listed as a night attraction in the Garrett Park cage.

The basket ball schedule today is quite a comedown from the top-heavy bill of yesterday. Only two games are on file, Gonzaga meeting Roosevelt on the Ruf Rider hardwoods and Western battling Takoma-Silver Spring at Silver Spring. The city public fives are heavy favorites.

Houghton, McCallum Golf Victors, 3 and 2

Al Houghton, Kenwood pro and Walter McCallum, of Washington Golf and Country Club, defeated George Diffenbaugh, of Indian Spring, and Al Price, of Rock Creek, 3 and 2, in a special 18-hole match at Rock Creek's golf course yesterday.

Houghton shot a 71, four above par, to set the scoring pace, with his partner, McCallum, next with 73. Diffenbaugh and Price had 76's each. Houghton was out in 36 and back in 35.

After a ding-dong first nine, Houghton and McCallum led at the turn, 1 up. A par 3 and birdie 3 on the thirteenth and fourteenth, respectively, put them 4 up, but Diffenbaugh cut down the lead with a birdie 4 on the fifteenth and a par 4 on the sixteenth. Houghton's par 3 clinched the verdict on the seventeenth.

A return match at either Kenwood or Indian Spring will be played.

Liberty Five Practices.

The Jewish Community and Liberty five will practice tomorrow night at the center at 9:30 o'clock. All former players and candidates for the team are asked to report. The team desires games with strong unlimited fives. Call Coach Dave Keppel at the center.

Old Line Frosh Five to Play 16 Games

Waters, Ex-Eastern Star, Among Clever Youngsters Out for Team.

SIXTEEN games have been scheduled for the University of Maryland freshmen basket ball team this season, including 12 at College Park and 4 on foreign courts. The first contest is with Catholic University freshmen, January 9, at College Park.

Home-and-home series have been listed with the Cardinal frosh and with Johns Hopkins yearlings. Games with the latter will be played as preliminaries to varsity clashes. Other attractive single tilts have been arranged with Washington and Lee University freshmen, Tome Institute at Port Deposit, Md., Warrenton, Va., High, Georgetown University freshmen, Episcopal High, and Emerson.

Coach Jack Faber has a wealth of clever material for the quint, including Al Waters, former all-high forward at Eastern High, and Johnny Guckeyson, guard on last year's strong Bethesda-Chevy Chase High five.

January 9, Catholic University Freshmen; 15, Roosevelt High; 16, Western High; 24, Johns Hopkins University Freshmen at Baltimore (7 o'clock); 25, Emerson; 27, Warrenton (Va.) High; 30, Wilson Teachers' College.

Ever the Twain Shall Meet

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 (Spl.).—Here beginneth a curious argosy, that of the little band of Easterners, the Columbia University football players into the land of the Stanfords where live the football gods and where men are not men, but superhuman deities who reign supreme over the world in which muscular parties lug footballs irresistibly from one spot to another.

To hear them tell it on the coast there is little use for us to make the trip. Concede the Rose Bowl game to the Stanfords by as many touchdowns as they wish to make and save ourselves the trouble of journeying West to take a licking. Now that is the kind of an expedition that I like to go on—where we haven't been rated a chance to win. The shock to the favorites is always so much greater.

The only thing I don't understand about the way Columbia is looked upon by the Coast sports writers and supporters is the business end. If the boys out there continue to play us down there won't be many tickets sold for the Rose Bowl game. I take it that that is an important feature of the event.

I am annoyed. I am annoyed that I have permitted the attitude of the Coasters, native and transplanted, to annoy me. Usually when somebody tells me that their team is going to beat some other team by a tremendous margin I can take it calmly and say, "Well, I guess you're right, brother. That's O. K. with me."

I am as happy in the West as I am in the East. I love the South as I do the North. I am at home where my hat hangs and my portable typewriter rests. But the assumption that the 11 or 15 young men who will play for Stanford University on New Year's Day are so superior in the lore of football, such physical heroes, such mental giants, such adepts in the technique of the game that they will sweep the boys from New York from one end of the field to the other, scoring touchdowns at will, riles me. Am I geetting provincial?

Football on the coast is a cult, a religion. The football players are the high priests. The football gods have moved to California. Stanford gridiron men are a different breed. There is a spirit at Stanford that no other college can muster. Oh, come, come, young men, now you've got me laughing. Everything is all right now. I'm not sore any more. I've discovered what the whole trouble is. The Coasters take themselves and their football seriously.

Not that the kids who play the game do. I met that Stanford bunch in Chicago, and nobody will ever get a more modest or better bunch of men together on an athletic field. They're just out there having some fun for themselves and getting exercise. But, oh, the by-products of college football! Preserve me from them.

I talked to some resident Coasters before leaving New York with the Columbia team this afternoon and humbly suggested that I thought that Columbia would win. I said I thought they would win because they didn't have a chance. That's how I pick 'em. Well, the Coasters pitied me, and had their little laugh, and then explained tenderly and with infinite patience how this could not happen, and showed just why.

To this I replied, "I grant all your arguments and know that on their records, Stanford has a better and stronger team than Columbia, but what if Columbia should win anyhow—say by a fluke or by playing way over their heads?"

At this the Coasters waved their noggins from side to side, heaved long and dolorous sighs, rolled their eyes heavenward, and said that that would be a terrible thing, that they would not like to see that. They said it with awe and feeling like good Democrats telling you they would not care to see the Republican party get in. Don't the Coasters know it's just a game?

But here is the thing that saddens me. I am angry at the Coasters for an attitude. But deep down in my heart I realize that should Columbia win, should Columbia begin a dynasty of successful Eastern teams who are able over a period of time to vanquish all the Coast elevens who appear here, that we, too, would become Coasters—only East Coasters instead of West Coasters. We would get to fancy our football and our football players. We would begin to look down on the squads from other sections of the country. We would find ourselves parading the same snooty mental attitude that we resent on the part of the Pacific Coasters now.

How do I know? Because, brother, we had it before the Coast boys came East in 1927, or whenever it was, and walloped the tar out of two of our best teams. That is what tempers my wrath. I guess guys are all alike.

Bowler Averages 275 For Unofficial Mark

Cleveland, Dec. 19 (AP).—Scoring an average of 275 for five consecutive games, Joe Falcaro, former world's match game bowling champion, unofficially set a new world's record here today. His scores for the five games were 247, 273, 279, 278, and 298.

S. A. K. Quint Wins.

Sigma Alpha Kappa Fraternity quintet defeated the Southwest All Stars, 36 to 15, last night.

Anderson to Confer With N. C. State Heads

Anderson was understood to be under consideration at three other institutions, Dartmouth, Texas and Alabama Poly.

Duquesne Job Not Aim of Bergman

C. U. Coach Returns to City; Satisfied With Present Position.

HOME again after a two weeks' vacation in northern New York and Maine, during which he put aside the cares and worries of an athletic director to forget about gate receipts, football fundamentals, and Gazooka College's trick plays, Coach "Dutch" Bergman, of Catholic University, was back at his desk yesterday, looking forward to next year and drafting new plans accordingly.

Bergman ridiculed reports that he was seeking or had been approached on the Duquesne coaching position.

"There's absolutely nothing to it," he said. "I carried on no negotiations with Duquesne officials, and even if the position had been offered to me I would have declined. I am very well satisfied here at Catholic University, and I hope it will be a long time before there are any changes."

He also labeled as groundless, rumors that Forrest Cotton, his first lieutenant, sought the Duquesne position with an emphatic, "Nothing to it."

Bergman said he plans to leave either Saturday or Sunday for Chicago, where the coaches association will convene Monday for a three-day session. It is at this meeting that he hopes to contact several prospective opponents for the 1934 Catholic University eleven. He may stop over at his home in Peru, Ind., only 125 miles from Chicago, for a Christmas Eve visit with his parents.

Garibaldi Returns To Mat Wars Here

Italian Meets Clinstock in Feature Tomorrow.

Ready and willing to meet any rassler selected for him by Promoter Joe Turner, temperamental Gino Garibaldi tomorrow night branches out as an independent at the Washington Auditorium.

On a card that is to devote a portion of its proceeds to the District of Columbia Playground-Santa Claus fund Garibaldi ties up with big Jim Clinstock, Washington's outstanding build-up of the moment.

The "Masked Marvel" returns in the semifinal spot, drawing crowd-pleasing Scotty McDougall as his opponent. Despite a tumble from the ring that cost him a loss at the hands of Rudy Dusek last week, the hooded rassler impressed favorably in his local debut.

Burroughs Wins At Soccer, 1 to 0

In the eastern semifinal of the Municipal Playground Department elementary school soccer championship yesterday, Burroughs defeated Wallach by 1 to 0(earning the right to meet Lenox tomorrow afternoon for the divisional title. Park View won the western crown Monday and the city honors will be battled for by Park View and tomorrow's winners after schools reopen following the holiday recess.

Yesterday's game was the most strenuous seen in the series, both teams putting forth great efforts. Play was mostly in center field, and it was frem a free kick 20 yards out, which Eisnes placed nicely, that the winners triumphed, the point coming just a minute before half-time.

Both goal keepers had plenty to do.

Hitting the Headpin . . .

MISS LORAINE GULLI, whose ability to scatter the duckpins has gained her unprecedented fame in women's bowling circles, showed the class of pin mauling which made her the best in the country last night in the Washington Ladies League at the Columbia alleys, turning in games of 139, 148, and 113, for an even 400 set. The set was just 12 pins below the record mark established by Evelyn Ream of the Colonials. This is the first time since the organization of the league one 400 set has not been high.

Aided by this brand of pin busting by Miss Gulli, the El Gees took all three games from Nomads but did not increase its position in the standing as the leading Beeques, led by Billie Butler's 345 set, swept its match with the Shamrocks.

Evelyn Ream rolled a 134 game and 339 set when the Colonials collected a forfeit from Emanons. Columbia backed up to third place in taking the odd game from Vee Bees and Barristers crept up on the Cardinals in its two-to-one victory.

Billy La Bille, bowling from scratch in the preliminary competition in the Evening Star Sweepstakes, appears certain to qualify for the grand final roll-off with a free entry. La Bille turned in a sparkling 168 game and a 614 set.

Elizabeth Poorbaugh (Technical Staff), shared individual honors with Agnes Erwin (Bureau of Tax Appeals No. 1) in the Internal Revenue Ladies League at the Columbia drives, clicking for a 134 game and 338 set, respectively. Technical Staff's 482 game and Bureau of Tax Appeals No. 1's 1,378 set, were the best team efforts.

Fellinger (St. Mark's) rolled a brilliant 155 game and Atell (St. Paul No. 1) added a 397 set for individual laurels in the Men's Lutheran League at the Arcadia alleys. A 594 game by St. Paul No. 1 and 1,710 set by Takoma Blues, led the team scoring.

Claims, aided by Solly Rosenblatt's 362 set, carried away team honors in the Veterans' Bureau League at the Convention Hall drives, turning in a 587 game and total pinfall of 1,689. A 132 game by Lindsey (Finance) was unsurpassed.

Rolling a 114 game and a 296 set, Reynolds (Georgetown), led the list of individual feats in the Lutheran Church Ladies League at Arcadia. Takoma shared team honors with Zion with a 463 game and 1,331 set, respectively.

Charlie Bernhardt showed his ability to come through in a pinch last night at the Arcadia alleys, collecting a set of 401 maples to aid the Highway Engineer and Construction team's sweeping all three games in its crucial match with McGuire & Rolfe for the leadership of the Columbia Heights League. A 634 game by the winners helped to clinch the match.

Paulie Harrison did all that was expected when he turned in a 161 game and 424 set to lead Ambassador Laundry's whitewash of Arcadia, advancing his team from fifth place to third. Ambassador Laundry's total pinfall of 1,785 was the highest for the night.

Pete & Louie took the odd game from Vincients to remain in fourth place and Independent Laundry won two from Daily News. The Dismer-Pioneer match was postponed.

New Jerusalem's 570 game and Joppa's 1,664 set, were the best team efforts in the Masonic League at the Convention Hall drives. Belk (Petworth) led the list of individual feats with a 137 game and 376 set.

Congress Heights Baptist conceded nothing in the week's rolling of the East Washington Church League at Convention Hall, carrying away high individual and team honors. John Holden shared laurels with Huntt, with a 138 game and 361 set, respectively, and the team rolled a 601 game and 1,640 set.

Flashes Win After 3 Extra Periods

Penn Tires Bows, 22-19, in League Game.

It required the Western Flashes three extra five-minute periods to defeat the Penn Tires quintet in the feature game of the Y. M. C. A. 130-pound independent league last night. The score was 22-19. They were deadlocked at 17-17 when the whistle sounded to end the regulation period.

In other league games, the Merrick Boys Club whipped the "Y" Eagles, 26-20, and the J. E. Cauliflower team smothered Happy Hollow A. C., 82 to 8.

Foul Shooting Stressed by G. W. Coach

Each Player Tosses 50 Each Day; Team Has High Percentage.

FIFTY free throws are about all a fellow gets in an average basket ball season—unless the games are played in Philadelphia—but every player on the George Washington U. squad takes that many in daily practice. It's Coach Ted O'Leary's idea, and a pretty good one, if the results obtained in the first two games are a criterion.

"I don't have to tell you how important foul-shooting is to a team's success," O'Leary said yesterday. "A large percentage of games are decided by free throws each season—so many that you can't afford to have a poor foul-tosser on the squad. So I make the boys throw 50 in practice every day. It doesn't hurt them."

Convert 68 Per Cent.

In two games the Colonials drew 22 free shots and converted 15, or approximately 68 per cent of them. A team that can sink over 60 per cent of its foul tries will not lose many ball games on that account. Jimmy Howell, forward, is the most consistent performer on the 15-foot line. Thus far he is credited with seven in eight attempts.

A long scrimmage yesterday and another this afternoon will put G. W. on edge for its Friday night game with Geneva. Barney Kane, Howell's running mate, was not out for practice because of an injured leg. He will be ready for action Friday, however.

D. C. Church Bowlers Win at Hagerstown

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 19 (Spl.). The First Brethren bowling teams of Washington made a clean sweep in their two matches with the First Brethren teams of this city. They won three games from the men's team, 6,949 to 5,836. Simmons, of Washington, had high single of 184 and high total of 719.

The women's team of Washington won two of the three games, with a total pinfall of 1,288 to 1,166. Mrs. Minnich, of Hagerstown, had high game of 117 and high total of 291.

Hoursend's Front-Running Effort Wins Feature Race at Charles Town Track

Jelly Pilots Colt Home By Head

Palumbo Gets "Triple"; Old Field, at 9-1, Annexes Final.

By Walter Haight.
(Post Staff Correspondent).

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Dec. 19.—Running over a track that the horsemen call "fetlock deep" in mud, Hoursend, owned by H. R. Dulany, jr., defeated four of the juveniles in the 6½-furlong fifth race, the best event of a featureless card. Hoursend led from start to finish, but both the horse and Jockey Jelley had their hands full to take care of a determined closing bid which found Biff lapped with the winner and beaten only by a head margin. Manager Bill, himself a threat at one stage of the last two furlongs, was third, a half-length away.

The race marked the defeat of the Maple Stable's representative, Peedeeque, which was backed into favoritism. This gelding was crowded out at the first turn and could never make up ground. At one stage of the betting, Peedeeque was 6-5, with the other four entries being quoted at 4-1. Hoursend paid a $9.40 mutuel.

Jockey Palumbo Hero.

A better than overage week-day crowd saw the program run under mild weather conditions. The riding honors for the day went to Jockey S. Palumbo, who took three out of the first four races. Grayback and Dunair was another popular daily double combination and paid a $24.80 mutuel.

Grayback, a son of the mud-running Bright Knight and owned by Yancy Christmas, won the first race from a field of 10 juveniles competing over the 6½ course. Grayback ran Plain Ace into defeat and drew away from Dona Dolcin. The latter finished three lengths behind and eight lengths ahead of Repeal. The winner was favorite and paid $6. Palumbo started his afternoon's triple on Grayback.

Palumbo Wins Again.

Palumbo came right back to ride a front-running race on Dark Law. The son of Trauner broke from No. 1 post position and was never headed. Fair Clark, likewise never changed position, being second from the barrier. Changeable came from far back to take the show money by a nose from Eyota. This winner was also the favorite and matched Grayback's price at $6. The race was marked by a fall when Golden Princess stumbled in the stretch and tossed Jockey Sage. The boy was not injured.

Dunair, owned by G. C. Berger, followed the pace of Rock Sun and Don Carlos to the backstretch and then moved up with a rush to take command and stumble home three lengths in advance of Free Advice in the third. Tremendous, of the heavily-played entry, was third. Dunair, ridden by H. Lauch, supplied an $11.60 pay-off.

Palumbo came through with his third winner in the fourth race when he brought Whirry, a paddock tip, to the wire a length ahead of Dolicle. Monastic took care of the others. Girdles, a longshot, was away winging but folded in the backstretch and Palumbo brought Whirry around and they staved off the closing rush of Dolice. Whirry paid a $12.20 mutuel.

Semester Takes Sixth.

Semester was hustled into the lead at the start of the sixth race and bounced the remainder of the way to score by four lengths over The Bard, a 30-to-1 shot. Gay Party was third. The winner was a $12.80 mutuel.

In the final, Trenchard whipped Old Field into command at the first turn and he stayed there. Mainsheet was second and Little Stoke, the favorite, third. Old Field paid $19.80.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

Strange as it seems, the abbreviation for "and" is a phrase which includes "and" twice, to say nothing of two other words. The phrase is "and per se and," a mixture of English and Latin which, in that form, used to be the name of the familiar sign "&." Today the "end per se and" phrase has been shortened to "ampersand," which is the correct name for the sign "&."

Champions may come and go in other sports, but the great Gama still remains champion wrestler of India—and there are a lot of sports followers who think he would be champion of the world if the United States' various champs would meet him. But Gama is not interested in American championships. He is contented to remain titleholder of his own country—and the possessor of a 41-pound silver mace presented to him by his highness, the Maharajah of Patiala, as a symbol of his championship.

Early records of his exploits are a little in doubt, but he seems to have started wrestling when he was 10 years old—45 years ago. By the time he was 20 he was throwing all comers. Five years ago he took on Stanislaus Zbyszko and laid him flat in just eight seconds.

Benjamin Franklin, among his many other accomplishments, was the patron saint of cartoonists in America. The first political cartoon ever published in this country was Franklin's famous "Join or Die" cartoon shown above.

Tomorrow: The humble king of France.

Stocks React Fraction in Dull Market

Holiday Shadows Felt as Tone Firms; Sales Cut to 1,025,570 Shares.

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—Shadows of the impending holidays hovered over financial markets today, bringing dullness and narrow price changes.

Stocks closed with irregular and mostly narrow variations, the averages showing a small loss. However, the tone was firmer than in recent markets.

Dollars rose a trifle after the Treasury had announced no further shift in its gold price.

Shares Escape Rut.

A few shares moved out of the rut. Howe Sound, for example, moved higher in response to its increased dividend, amounting to 75 cents against 25 cents previously paid.

American Agricultural Chemical, United Fruit, Allied Chemical, Associated Oil and Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit gained a point or two, but elsewhere fractional net changes were largely of a fractional nature.

U. S. Steel, Union Carbide, Du Pont, General Motors, Chrysler, Santa Fe and Sears, Roebuck finished steady to firm. American Telephone, better supported than of late, was down slightly. General Electric, Consolidated Gas, Westinghouse and North American were down moderately. Union Pacific, U. S. Smelting and National Distillers products lost about a point. Atlas Tack quieted down. Transactions totaled 1,025,570 shares.

Trade Picture Broadens.

Such trade news as came to hand tended to broaden the recently encouraging picture of expansion. Car loadings last week, on the basis of returns so far in, continued their improvement over a year ago and over the previous week, the latter being against seasonal expectancy.

A survey of retail business indicated that many stores were handling larger sales volumes up to midmonth than in 1932; a gain had been evident for some time, but it was said that the rise actually shown was larger than expected.

American Metal Market reported further broadening of optimism among steel producers "as customers make still more favorable appraisals of their prospects."

Selling Less Active.

Brokerage houses say that tax selling is less in evidence this year, although they trace some of the recent heaviness in utility equities to that source.

The light and power division is not so far from its year's low, having had difficulty in following frequent bulges of the general list.

Some disappointment is being expressed over the absence to date of a "Christmas market," especially since general business conditions are regarded as more favorable than a year ago. Sentiment has been considerably scrambled by varying views of monetary possibilities; also, the imminence of a Congressional session frequently makes for hesitancy in trading circles.

Advance of Gold Price on Monday Indicates We Are Not Yet Through With This Experiment.

By Ralph West Robey.

One can do no more than speculate on why it was decided on Monday that the R. F. C. price of gold should be raised 5 cents an ounce. As usual Government officials refused to give any explanation whatsoever. We are, accordingly, just as much in the dark as we have been from the time of the announcement some two months ago by the President that the policy was being adopted as an "effective means" for raising commodity prices. This lack of positive information, nevertheless, in no way lessens the importance of continuing to sift all of the evidence that comes to hand in an attempt to see if the program can be made intelligible.

Outstanding among the recent developments which possibly might throw some light on the policy is, of course, the resumption of the practice of bidding up the price. For over two weeks it had remained constant at $34.01 an ounce. On Monday it was advanced to $34.06—an obviously inconsequential increase insofar as the amount is concerned, but just as significant as an indication that we are not yet through with the experiment as an increase of ten times this amount would be. The first question that comes to one's mind, therefore, is: Why, if the Administration still has faith in this policy as an "effective means" for raising prices, did it let the gold price remain the same for over two weeks?

Price Possibilities Offer Nothing as an Explanation.

In searching for an answer to this question consider first the possibilities in the field of prices. Had prices reached the level desired by the Administration, that alone would have been ample reason for the breathing spell, in fact, for a permanent cessation in the policy. Every one knows, however, that commodity prices are by no means as high as Washington wants, and has promised, to get them. The general level, in fact, as measured by the Bureau of Labor Statistics index of wholesale prices, is only about 71, as compared with the unofficially announced goal of 100.

Every one also knows that some weeks ago, when the gold price was being raised day by day, commodity prices did not advance proportionately. On the contrary, they remained sluggish, uneven, or reactionary. By no reasoning could it be maintained, therefore, that the R. F. C. stopped advancing its gold price in an attempt to prevent a runaway market.

Last among the possibilities in the price field is that a breathing spell was decided upon in order to let commodity prices "catch up" with the R. F. C. gold price. In the absence of official explanations one can not say positively that this was not one of the considerations involved. It appears unlikely that it should have been, however, because at the time the breathing spell started commodity prices were tending downward. One does not await for a car going in the oposite direction to catch up with him.

One must turn, then, to developments other than in the field of prices if he is to find an explanation for gold having been kept at $34.01 for over two weeks. It seems to me there are two events that deserve emphasis in this connection, namely, the great fuss that was started in the name of sound money and secondly, the necessity for Government financing at the middle of the month.

Sound Money Controversy Offers Possible Explanation.

The monetary controversy strikes me as improtant because of its emphasis upon the necessity of stabilization. The effective way for the Administration to answer this was, first, to continue to raise the gold price for a day or two, in order to assure inflationists that Washington was not being frightened by the "tories," and then having given this assurance to hold the price steady, and thereby undermine the very foundation of the demands of the sound-money group. I do not know whether the Administration reasoned along this line; but in any case, events followed this outline.

From the point of view of the Government financing, the desirability of keeping the gold rate steady is too obvious to need comment. Necessarily the Treasury offering would be more successful if the public had faith that nothing violent was to be done with our currency. The best way to insure such faith was to hold the gold price steady for a few days.

Admittedly whether these two reasons account for the steady gold price for two weeks is an open question. It is nothing but surmise on my part. Nevertheless it seems to me there is a reasonable chance that it is approximately correct. Not only does it fit two major events of the past month but, further, it would account logically for the return to the practice of raising the gold price. In other words, since the sound money cry has disappeared and the Treasury financing is out of way—the subscriptions were paid last Friday—there is no reason for further delaying a continuation of the experiment.

Of course none of this, even granting it is correct, throws any light on why the increase was 5 cents. That problem is quite beyond me.

Minor Losses In Bonds Mark Day's Trading

Sales Total Expands.

Owing to two large transactions in United States Government issues, the sales total expanded to $12,935,000, par value, compared with $10,672,000 in the previous session. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans sagged .3 of a point.

Two $1,000,000 blocks of Treasury 3¼'s and 4¼-3¼'s changed hands at losses of 5-32ds and 4-32ds of a point, respectively. The Treasury 3⅜'s, 3⅛'s and Liberty bonds were slightly higher, and other Federal loans were a bit lower. The Federal turnover amounted to around $3,600,000.

Gains of a fraction to a point were shown by some issues of American Rolling Mill, American Smelting, American Telephone, Chesapeake & Ohio, Cincinnati Gas, Dodge Bros., General Cable, Southern Railway and several New York traction loans.

On Losing List.

Among losers of fractions to two or more points were loans of American Foreign Power, American Water Works, Armour & Co., Atlantic Refining, Baltimore & Ohio, Central Pacific, St. Paul, Chicago & North Western, Rock Island, Consolidated Gas, Erie Goodrich, Great Northern, Inland Steel, International Hydro-Electric, International Mercantile Marine, International Telephone, Liggett & Myers, Meade Corporation, New Orleans Public Service, New York Central, Philadelphia Co., Southern Pacific, Utah Power and Youngstown Sheet & Tube.

Foreign obligations were mixed. Those of Dutch East Indies, Japan and the United Kingdom advanced 1 to about 2 points. Some of the Germans improved a little notwithstanding decision of the Reich to reduce cash payments on its foreign debt service with the exception of the Dawes and Young plan loans.

Rotterdam 6s lost 2 and some of the Belgians and French cities were off more than 1.

Stocks—Shadows of impending holidays were felt and stock trading turned dull. Losses averaged only two-tenths of a point, and the general tone firmed. Sales dropped to 1,025,570 shares.

Bonds—Trading presented a ragged pattern and minor losses resulted. Prime investment loans held steady. Declines averaged three-tenths of a point. Sales increased to $12,935,000.

Curb—Trading was somewhat spotty, with some leaders advancing. Alcohols stepped ahead. Fractional losses were recorded in several lines. Sales fell off to 256,000 shares.

Wheat—Failure of rain to relieve crops in the Southwest resulted in causing prices to firm. Wheat closed at ⅞ off to ¼ up. Corn gained; oats were mixed. December wheat sold at 81⅞; May, at 84⅝.

Cotton—Prices gained a little in a slow market. March contracts, which had eased off from 10.11 to 10.04 in early trading, rallied to 10.12 and closed at that figure. The general market advanced 5 to 13 points. December sold at 9.91; January, at 9.95.

Rubber—Crude rubber futures closed dull, 2 to 5 points higher. December sold at 8.65; January, at 8.75.

Coffee—Spot coffee was steady. Santos No. 4, sold at 9¼; Rio No. 7, at 8¼.

Gold—Bar gold was unchanged in the United States, and remained at $34.06 per ounce. It sold in London at 126 shillings and 9 pence.

Dollar—The United States dollar gained slightly on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $5.14 to the English pound; 6.16½ cents to the French franc, and 37.60 cents to the German mark.

Farm Crops Value Exceeds Four Billions

(Associated Press.)

This year's farm crops were valued yesterday by the Department of Agriculture in its final report of the year at $4,076,537,000.

Revised figures gave the value of the 1932 crop as $2,879,517,000, and that of 1931 as $4,102,354,000.

The figures were based on farm value as of December 1 for most crops, but on seasonal averages for crops already marketed.

The production this year and the farm value of the principal individual crops were announced as follows:

Corn, production, 2,330,237,000 bushels, and farm value, $917,605,000.

Production of Wheat.

All wheat, 527,413,000 bushels and $357,525,000. Winter wheat, 351,030,000 bushels and $250,601,000. All spring wheat, 176,383,000 bushels and $106,924,000. Durum wheat, 16,109,000 bushels and $10,133,000. Other spring wheat, 160,274,000 bushels and $96,791,000.

Pears, 21,192,000 bushels and $10,252,000; grapes, 1,808,584 tons and $32,114,000; oranges, 48,216,000 boxes and $53,623,000; grape fruit, 12,689,000 boxes and $12,303,000; lemons, 6,800,000 boxes and $14,280,000; cranberries, 667,700 barrels and $3,752,000; pecans, 61,210,000 pounds and $4,749,000; sorgo sirup, 14,961,000 gallons and $7,170,000; sugar cane sirup, 19,106,000 gallons and $8,992,000; sugar beets, 11,085,000 tons and $58,988,000; maple sugar, 1,322,000 pounds and $278,000; maple sirup, 2,175,000 gallons and $2,567,000; broom corn, 32,900 tons and $3,584,000; hops, 36,440,000 and $11,059,000.

The value of commercial truck crops for market except potatoes, was $155,551,000, compared with $166,250,000 for 1932 and $208,590,000 for 1931.

The total value of truck crops for manufacture was $30,099,000, compared with $27,064,000 for 1932 and $42,826,000 for 1931.

Germany Develops Strong Motor Bus

What is claimed by the makers to be the most powerful motor bus in the world has just been developed in Germany, according to a report from the American consulate general, Berlin, made public by the Commerce Department.

The vehicle has a 320-horsepower twin-six cyclinder engine. This power, it is pointed out, is not intended primarily to develop maximum rates of speed, but mainly to develop high average rates of speed in long overland trips in the mountains of middle Germany without overloading the motor.

Each of the 160-horsepower motors drives one of the two rear axles. The capacity of one engine is sufficient to achieve an average speed of 80 kilometers per hour on level stretches. Both motors are operated for climbing.

The first motor busses of this type will shortly be placed in operation, the report shows. They are equipped with a very roomy body, with a seating capacity for 43 passengers.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—Trading on the stock exchange was quiet, the principal business being investment buying of gilt-edged securities, home rails and industrials which hardened. Other sections were mostly dull. Germany's cut in transfer payments caused a temporary weakness in German bonds, which improved later. The market closed quiet.

Paris—Business on the bourse slumped into a preholiday stagnancy, with traders generally abstaining, except to lighten their positions. The closing was heavy.

Berlin—An increase in the volume of business on the boerse pushed prices up a point or more. The tendency remained cheerful at the close.

Wool Market.

Curb Leaders Advance in Spotty Sales

Trading Turns Quiet as Dealing Falls Off to 256,000 Shares.

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—The Curb Market was somewhat spotty today in quiet trading. Slight easiness prevailed among metals and oils. The power shares were slightly mixed but alcohols stepped ahead for advances of around a point or more. A few specialties advanced.

Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A" and "B" gained 2 points apiece. Safety Car Heating and United Shoe Machinery registered similar improvement. Sherwin Williams and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore finished around a point or more higher.

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—Union Pacific Railroad Co. reports November net operating income of $1,884,229, compared with $2,120,695 last year.

L. A. Young, president of L. A. Young Spring & Wire Corporation, says the company will resume dividends in the first quarter of 1934. The last payment was 25 cents in January this year. The company's 1934 policy, he asserts, will be to pay out in dividends virtually all earnings, since surplus is adequate.

Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. has declared an extra dividend of 40 cents and the regularly quarterly dividend of the same amount, both payable January 2 to stock of record on December 18.

The Howe Sound Co., copper mining concern, raised the quarterly dividend to 75 cents from the 25 cents paid in previous quarters. The distribution is payable December 30 to stock of record December 29.

The board reported that "earnings for the quarter with December estimated are satisfactory, due in part to favorable exchange rates and to a lesser degree to inventory sales."

The company announced that it would hereafter make all dividends when declared payable at the end of each quarter.

Atlanta, Dec. 19 (AP).—Dividends amounting to more than $5,000,000 will be distributed by business concerns in this territory during the next 10 days, the Atlanta Journal said today.

The Coca Cola Co. alone will pay approximately $3,000,000 to stockholders, and the Georgia Power Co. $560,000.

San Francisco, Dec. 19 (AP).—Caterpillar Tractor Co. more than doubled its profits in November as compared with October, the monthly report showed today. Net profit was $177,833 for November, against $83,270 in the preceding month.

Cotton Prices Rise Slightly in Slow Market

December Closes at 9.91 as General Market Gains 5 to 13 Points.

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—Cotton gained a little in a slow market today. March contracts, which had eased off from 10.11 to 10.04 in the early trading, rallied to 10.12, and closed at that figure, with the general market ending steady, at net advances of 5 to 13 points.

After showing net advances of 4 to 7 points, the markets eased off under liquidation and a little scattered selling. January, which had sold up to 9.93 early, declined to 9.87, while May reacted from 10.24 to 10.18.

This setback brought in a little more covering or trade buying, and the market reached the best levels of the day in the late trading. January sold up to 9.95 and May to 10.27, and closing quotations were at or within a point of the best.

January Evens Up.

The evening-up of January contracts in preparation for possible delivery notices next Friday was in evidence again, but near-month offerings were absorbed by the trade, partly against sales of later deliveries.

Exports today, 54,311, making 3,912,953 so far this season. Port receipts, 52,141. United States port stocks, 4,128,053.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was quiet and prices easier today under liquidation and scattered commission-house selling of distant positions. The market closed 3 to 8 points net lower. Sales were 59 contracts, of which 56 were in the way of switches of March to July at 40 points. Bleachable spot nominal; December closed 4.15; January, 4.20; March, 4.42; May, 4.62; July, 4.79.

Argentine Rice Production Is Seen Doubling

Production of rice in Argentina has increased to a remarkable degree in the past five years, according to Vice Consul T. S. Cleveland, Buenos Aires, in a report made public by the Commerce Department.

Official Argentine estimates just made available show that this year's rice harvest will amount to more than 23,000 tons. This figure is double that of last year and three times that of the average annual production during the preceding five-year period. The 1933 rice crop has only been exceeded twice before, the report shows. In 1920-21 and the following year the total harvests were in excess of 25,000 tons.

That domestic production is supplying a much greater share of Argentine consumption is shown in the marked decline in rice imports. These had fallen to less than 18,000 tons in 1932 as compared to an average for the five-year period 1928-32 of more than 50,000 tons.

While it is not believed in Argentina that the country will ever be able to produce the entire internal demand for rice, future imports may become negligible except for the finer grades of the grain if production continues to increase, it was stated.

Britain Lifts Duty on Tools For Chemistry

A Treasury order, effective from December 12, 1933, to December 31, 1934, exempts amido guanidine sulphate and fermentographs (instruments for measuring and recording carbon dioxide during dough fermentation) imported into the United Kingdom from the "key industry" duty of 33 1-3 per cent ad valorem, according to a cablegram from Commercial Attache Lynn W. Meekins, London, to the Department of Commerce.

The order also continues until the latter date the present list of articles exempted from that duty (except synthetic carbolic acid, synthetic phenol, synthetic benzo-phenol, lead acetate of reagent quality, photogravure screens and planimeters, all of which become dutiable on January 1, when imported from nonempire sources, at 33 1-3 per cent ad valorem).

The present duty exemption of mercury vapor rectifiers having mercury cathodes is limited to those of a capacity exceeding 200 amperes and having over three main anode terminals.

Goods exempted from "key industry" duty are, however, subject to the general tariff rate of 10 per cent ad valorem when imported from countries outside the British Empire.

Smaller Units Proposed for U.S. Industry

Decentration of Plants Studied as Aid to Prosperity.

By Rader Winget.

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—A new theory designed to stabilize economic recovery—decentration—is being put under the microscope of investigation by private and Government engineers and economists.

The pronunciation has been solved—dess-entration, with the accent on the first syllable, please—but its many-sided aspects are open for discussion.

The theory of decentration, of which decentralization is an important part, has been in formation several years.

Would Change Present Order.

Successful evolvement of decentration, it is claimed, would Nationalize the United States, individualize its citizens and, in the long run, effect an almost complete change in the present industrial order.

In its present form decentration seeks to:

1. Break up old industrial concentrations and reform them in smaller units over the country—a decentralization.

2. Allocate new industries to these smaller self-contained municipalities rather than place them alongside plants in the congested urban centers.

This is expected to:

1. Minimize the effect of single industry depression.

2. Create economically independent workers.

3. Foster craft-pride of the individual.

4. Create an approach to a self-contained nation.

Importance Being Studied.

Working to determine the importance of decentration is the committee on decentralization in industry, a subcommittee of the business advisory and planning council of the Department of Commerce in Washington.

W. A. Julian committee chairman has defined decentralization as "The shift in location of manufacturing establishments from highly congested urban areas to suburban and rural areas."

Any Government action probably will depend on the committee report expected in January.

Limitations On Economic Side.

Maurice Holland, director of the Division of Engineering and Industrial Research of the National Research Council, and liaison officer for the committee, says, concerning the theory:

"First we must determine whether it is a good thing socially and economically.

"We must remember that science is the spearhead of the advance to the social ideal, and science is developing new industries daily which could be allocated according to the plans of decentration."

Can't Scatter Industries.

Holland believes it would be possible to place small units of new industries in various parts of the country but he thinks it impossible to uproot a large industry and scatter it.

"The one-industry towns suffered the most in the depression," he says, "and towns with diversification of industry suffered less."

He points to the automobile industry as a subject for decentration because, he says, it really is composed of scores of industries and therefore there is no need for centralization.

Sees Textiles A Fit Subject.

"Cotton textiles could come under decentration," he says.

"Cotton mills were established in New England because of favorable climatic conditions, but when air conditioning was discovered the mills were extended into the South to be near the source of supply of raw cotton. But there is an added expense in shipping cotton textiles from the South to the ultimate market.

"Reallocation of the textile business with all of its scientific developments and processing aids could be accomplished with the definite objective of obtaining favorable marketing location through decentration."

With the formation of small industrial units, Holland believes, there would come "a return to the consciousness of craftsmanship.

Mexico Seeks Better Market For Its Cattle

Cattle raisers of Sonora, Mex., are seeking ways and means to improve marketing conditions in their industry, according to Consul Thomas H. Robinson, Nogales, in a report made public by the Commerce Department.

At a recent meeting of prominent cattle interests held in Magdalena, the governor of Sonora outlined a program which stressed the desirability of increasing sales in Mexican markets. A committee was apointed to study the situation and recommend steps for improvement of the industry.

The chief problems concerned with the development of Mexican markets for Sonora cattle are those of transportation, it is pointed out. The markets naturally do not exist in the regions where the cattle are raised. Lower freight rates on cattle shipped to other points in Mexico are to be sought as one method of improving existing conditions.

A market for Sonora cattle is shown to exist in northern Lower California which can not be supplied because of lack of transportation facilities. The only possible transportation routes through Mexico to this market would be through the deserts. These routes, it was stated, might be made practicable for cattle on foot by the construction of water holes at proper intervals.

Radio Waves and Ripples

ALL this talk about radio censorship is giving the broadcasters a laugh. They heard the same thing last year when the Democrats were out and the Republicans in.

The reason, say the broadcasters, why anti-NRA and anti-Roosevelt talks haven't got on the air is because there is no one to make them. Republican guns big enough to dent the public consciousness are waiting for something to shoot at. Any noise they might make now would only irritate the majority of the people, who are still pro-Roosevelt.

One of the N. B. C. minds yesterday said any "responsible person" could get on the air at any time with any sort of speech about the NRA without being asked to submit a copy of his speech beforehand, except for publicity purposes. By "responsible person," the mind meant any prospective speaker whose opinion would carry weight—would be, in other words, news. Radio consorship has never existed, generally speaking, although editing for obscenity or other similarly objectionable matter has been found necessary.

It is conceivable that the licensing powers of the Federal Radio Commission might be used to gag broadcasters. But no one believes it ever will be. Denial of broadcasting opportunity to administration foes, assuming the story should get out to the newspapers, might put the offending broadcaster out of business by impugning his facilities as reputable advertising media.

It is true that the broadcasters never lose an opportunity to put themselves in the good graces of the powers. But that is about as far as any of them care to go.

Among messages broadcast this year by KDKA in Pittsburgh to missionary posts strung along the brim of the Arctic circle in the Hudson Bay region will be a letter-carrying greetings and cheer from 42 young men who are preparing for priesthood and mission life at Oblate College, near Catholic University, in Brookland.

Those Catholic fathers in far-flung outposts of the frozen North communicate with their friends and brothers in civilization three times a year, twice by letter—the regular mail goes to them every six months—and once by radio at Christmas time. This year's radio letter from "home in Washington" will be broadcast Saturday.

"One of the priests has said," Rev. Eugene Dooley informed this department, "that when the mail does come he always receives a bundle of newspapers, all in regular order. He turns the pile upside down, and each morning reads a paper from the bottom of the pile, with the result that he is always six months behind in the news. By the time he has finished the pile, the next mail is in."

President Roosevelt broadcasts twice next week, during the community Christmas tree lighting ceremonies Sunday afternoon and from the Woodrow Wilson Foundation dinner, commemorating the birthday of the War President, Thursday night at the Mayflower.

WJSV will carry both broadcasts, the tree ceremony at 5 p. m. and the memorial dinner at 10:30 p. m.

Dinners similar to the one here are being arranged by the Wilson Foundation in the Nation's principal cities. It is probable that both C. B. S. and N. B. C. will carry the Roosevelt speech to them.

First broadcasts of a major diplomatic event in South America—Edward Tomlinson's on-the-scene account of the Pan-American Conference at Montevideo—start at 11:15 p. m. tomorrow on C. B. S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull, chairman of the American delegation, has been invited to speak.

Columbia puts three regular air shows on new schedules next week. Alexander Woollcott has been assigned Tuesday and Friday at 9:15 p. m; Andre Kostelanetz Tuesday at 9:30 p. m. and California Melodies the same hour Thursday.

Daily Christmas festivities in the sunken plaza of Rockefeller Center reach the sort of climax you'd expect—a mass meeting and carol singing by personnel of N. B. C., Radio City Music Hall, RKO Center Theater, and other occupants of the RCA, RKO British Empire and French Buildings the morning of Saturday, December 23. The only reason we mention this at all is because some of you probably will have your radios turned on between 11 and 11:30 a. m. and will want to know what's all the fuss.

The Greater National Capital Committee tried hard to get one or both of the Roosevelt grandchildren to broadcast round-the-world with the embassy young Christmas morning. Their mother, Anna Roosevelt Dall, wouldn't allow it, said she didn't want the children to become prematurely self-conscious; that they were receiving hundreds of similar requests to which she was steadfastly saying "No."

No such objections were encountered among parents in the Diplomatic Corps. Jean Torr, daughter of the first secretary of the British Embassy; Dominic de Leusse, son of the attache of the French Embassy; Eva Maria Luther, daughter of German Ambassador Hans Luther, and Shizuo Tanaka, son of the military attache of the Japanese Embassy, have been added to the list of broadcasters.

YOU SEE, HERE'S THE WAY WE'LL DO IT, BOYS - WE'LL TELL 'IM THAT PLACE IS A VACANT BUILDING WHERE WE'RE HAVING A CHRISTMAS PARTY.. THEN AFTER WE ALL GO DOWN THERE WE'LL PRETEND WE FORGOT THE KEY TO THE PLACE
WE'LL ASK HIM, ON ACCOUNT OF BEING SMALL, TO GO DOWN THROUGH THE SKYLIGHT ON A ROPE AND LET US IN. WHEN WE GET INSIDE AND HE SEES IT'S A SAFE-CRACKING JOB, WE'LL TELL HIM HE CAN'T BACK OUT 'CAUSE HE'S IN ON THE JOB-BY LETTING US IN THE BUILDING.
NO, JIM... IT WON'T WORK. HE'LL SEE THROUGH IT.. WE GOTTA WORK HIM IN ON SOMETHING ELSE!
I HAVE IT! LET ME WORK HIM IN ON A CAR-STEALING JOB... I'LL TAKE HIM WITH ME AND HE WON'T KNOW IT'S A CAR-SNATCH TILL THE JOB'S DONE. THEN I'LL TELL HIM HE'S IN ON IT!
SAY, SAUCE- THAT DON'T SOUND BAD!

Walt Mason, Himself

The Masterpiece.

Leigh Hunt (and may his tribe increase!) resolved he'd write a masterpiece. He was resolved that his renown through ages should be handed down and he would rank with classic bards who still enjoy the world's regards. And so he bought a quart of ink and organized his head to think. Through weary years he toiled away, he worked by night, he wrought by day, and while he labored, tired and frail the coppers took him off to jail and there he labored at his pome as sternly as he did at home. And thus his "Rimini" was made, an epic that would never fade, a noble narrative in verse that generations would rehearse. His fame, he felt, was now secure; so great a poem must endure. His comrades, Byron, Shelley, Keats, declared it best of modern treats. The critics hailed it with delight, but still it withered in a night. Now "Rimini" no man recalls; it's dead in bleak Oblivion's halls with Bailey's "Festus," strange and quaint, and Haydon's mighty daubs of paint and 57 other things that once seemed good enough for kings. Leigh Hunt (still may his tribe increase!) had firm belief in elbow grease; and so one day, to pass the time, he scribbled down a little rhyme about Ben Adhem, who, you ken, declared his love for fellowmen. The little rhyme won great renown and Leigh Hunt's name is handed down, although the work that roused his pride was scarcely born before it died.

National Group Backs Single Traffic Court

Present D. C. System Weak, Auto Association Tells Hazen.

Establishment of a single traffic court in place of the present set-up was urged on Commissioner Hazen yesterday by the American Automobile Association.

Ernest N. Smith, A. A. A. executive vice president, in a letter stressed the desire to avoid reflecting on the ability of present traffic judges. He added centralized control was necesary for proper enforcement of traffic regulations.

"First and formost," Smith wrote, "we have been convinced that the set-up in the District of Columbia as regards trial and judgments in traffic violations cases has been extremely weak, and that this has been due to the fact that the set-up itself is fundamentaly wrong.

"We have come to the conclusion there should be established at the earliest posible time a single traffic court for the sole purpose of hearing and pasing judgment on traffic cases, such a court to be presided over by justices specially selected on the basis of their experience, interest in the problem and knowledge of traffic conditions."

Smith said experience in other communities adopting single traffic courts, "has absolutely demonstrated that it promotes efficiency, decreases congestion and helps uniformly in dealing with offenses, at the same time giving justices more opportunity to study every phase of the very complicated problems presented to them from day to day."

Auto Fatalities In District Fall

7 Persons Killed in Nov., Against 13 Same Month of '32.

November traffic fatalities in the District were slightly more than half the number for the corresponding month in 1932, the Police Department revealed yesterday. Only seven persons lost their lives in accidents, while last year the toll was 13. In November, 1931, only six traffic fatalities were recorded.

Three hundred and thirty-eight persons were injured in automobile accidents last month, as against 348 in 1932. High mark for the past three years was recorded in November, 1931, when 406 persons were hurt.

Arrests for traffic violations last month totaled 4,433. Six hundred and fourteen persons were tagged for parking overtime, the bulletin showed.

Cumberland Auto Crashes, 4 Hurt

Two Lawyers Injured as Machine Hits Tree.

Frederick, Md., Dec. 19 (Spl.). Four of a party of five persons were severely injured tonight when the car in which they were riding crashed into a tree at Libertytown, 10 miles north of here, ending a gay Christmas trip. The car was demolished.

The injured, all of Cumberland, are Fuller Bernard, prominent attorney and former Democratic candidate for Congress; F. Brooke Whiting, sr., attorney, who suffered a broken leg; Francis Torrington, 17; Robert Dixon, 17.

F. Brooke Whiting, jr., 17, another passenger, was not injured. The party was returning from Port Deposit, Md., where the three youths attend Tome Preparatory School. They were on Christmas holiday.

The injured were brought to the Frederick General Hospital by Elmer Chandler, principal of Libertytown High School.

Auto Kills Boy, 9, Playing in Street

Driver Held Under Bond Pending Inquest.

Playing near his home with happy anticipation of the holidays to come, 9-year-old John D. Angelo, of 219 K street northeast, was killed last night when he ran into the path of an automobile.

The youngster was thrown several feet. Physicians at Casualty Hospital said his skull was fractured.

Heart Ailments Shown Fatal to 2

Autopsies Performed in Women's Deaths.

Autopsies performed on the bodies of Mrs. Marie Oru, 83, of 1129 Eleventh street northwest, and Mrs. Helen Francisco, 45, of 1425 Rhode Island avenue northwest, by Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy yesterday revealed both women died of natural causes.

Mrs. Oru died at Gallinger Hospital Monday. She was removed from her rooming house December 13, taken to Emergency Hospital, treated for a heart ailment and removed to Gallinger. After her death, her daughter, Mrs. Margaret France, called police and said she had discovered her mother bore marks of violence. A heart and kidney condition was responsible for Mrs. Oru's death, Dr. Murphy said.

Surrounded by Christmas gifts which were to be mailed to her friends, Mrs. Francisco succumebd in her apartment Monday. A heart attack caused death, Dr. Murphy found.

Just a Dream

Senator Adams Objects to Word "Prosperity."

Senator Adams (Democrat), Colorado, indicated yesterday he doesn't believe in the word "prosperity."

Robert O. Lord, former president of the Guardian Detroit Union group, testified before the Senate Banking Committee that it had been a "great mistake" to organize the group when the Nation was "at the peak of prosperity."

"I think so," Lord replied.

"Well," said the Senator, "I'd like to call it the National delusion."

D. C. Asks Funds For Women's Jobs

The District Commissioners yesterday asked a grant of $265,000 of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration to carry forward the employment of civil works service women who can not be paid out of C.W.A. funds.

Additional appropriations to care for this relief work will be asked of Congress. There remains only $200,000 in the District emergency relief fund, and this will be exhausted within a few weeks after Congress reconvenes.

Most of the women engaged by District relief headquarters are occupied in sewing, canning and nursing.

Bullitt Will Return To D. C. in January

Moscow, Dec. 19 (U.P.).—William C. Bullitt, United States Ambassador to Russia, will leave for Paris Thursday to spend Christmas there, sailing for Washington December 28 from Le Havre.

He will leave details of establishing an embassy here to Keith Merrill, embassy construction expert, of the State Department. A site has not yet been selected.

Fireman Granted Reduction in Fine

Victim Was 12 Minutes Late for Work.

Taking a cue from Portia's famed oration on mercy, the District Commissioners yesterday reduced the fine imposed by the Fire Trial Board on a fireman who was 12 minutes late to work.

A fine of $50, plus the serving of 100 extra hours of duty, imposed on M. T. Coleman, of No. 2 Engine Company, was reduced by the Commissioners to $10 and no extra hours.

Coleman had been tardy five times in eight years' service, but otherwise his record was good.
